'Enough Is Enough!' Business Fights Back On Tax Classification

ENOUGH IS ENOUGH!

That was the battle cry Monday at a Quincy Business Council rally at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce protesting the recent 175 percent maximum tax classification imposed by the City Council on commercial property.

The Business Council, which represents 500 businesses located in Quincy, indicated it will look into the legality of the city council's surprise vote which amended Mayor James Sheets' proposed 169 percent classification for businesses.

Phyllis Godwin, a Quincy native and life-long resident of the city and owner of the Granite City Electric Supply Co. which has been in the family since 1923, was the keynote speaker for the business community Monday in what was called the "Business

State of the City" address, in reference to the mayor's State of the City address given only hours earlier.

Godwin said recent actions on the part of the city send "the clear message that the business community is the enemy."

"Quincy enters the new century strong and healthy," she said. "But its strength is in grave danger."

"Today Quincy works. It

Elected City Council President Harold Seeks Tax Break For Small Businesses

New City Council President Paul Harold proposes a third category for the classification of real estate to provide up to a 10 percent tax break for small businesses with 10 or fewer employees.

The proposal was likened to an olive branch being extended to the business community which is still angered over the city council imposing a maximum 175 percent tax classification on business.

'Burden On Business Is Unfair' Sheets Will Aid Business To File Tax Abatements

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he understood why the Quincy Business Council called for its members to seek tax abatements and offered the help of his office for that purpose.

"We will cooperate with them in that abatement process," Sheets said. "We will make sure the assessor's office works with the business community and, if the assessor's office wants to do a mailing, this office would help."

The mayor's comments came in response to a Quincy Business Council meeting where QBC members were urged to seek tax abatements in protest of the new 175 percent tax classification passed by the City Council and signed by the mayor.

The 500-member QBC is furious that the tax classification rate was increased from 169 percent, which had been the rate since 1992 and was the mayor's recommendation for this year, to the state maximum 175 percent with no advanced notice and that, at a later special meeting to reconsider the rate, a 4-3 vote kept the city's business leaders from even having their say.

According to the QBC, the new classification means that city businesses, which own 23 percent of the city's property, pay 40 percent of the city's property taxes.

"I really agree with the business community, obviously," Sheets said. "I sent down a tax classification which I thought was fair and it was changed. I still feel that the tax burden on business is unfair and that, in the long run, it will damage Quincy's ability to attract new business."

Sheets said that he didn't veto the tax rates, a fact many QBC members pointed out at their meeting, for two reasons: he knew he just didn't have the votes to sustain a veto; and the tax bills needed to be out by Jan. 1 in order for the Feb. 1 due date to be enforceable.

If the bills were late, the mayor said, then payments would not have been due until the next quarter, causing a cash crunch where the city would have had to borrow $20-25 million, at 4 percent interest, just to meet payroll demands. "That's another $300,000 in interest," Sheets said. "It would have been irresponsible of me to have sent the tax bills out late at a cost to the taxpayer."

The mayor, who said he also supported the tax incentives for Twin Rivers Technologies which were lost in December when Twin Rivers and the City Council failed to come to terms on certain amendments to the agreement, defended his support of business and wanted the current situation seen in a larger perspective.

Sheets said that his office has put $20 million into Quincy's three major business districts -- Quincy Center, Wollaston, and North Quincy -- and has

Begins Historic Sixth Term Sheets Reviews Decade, Cites Future Challenges

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets chose Monday's inauguration ceremonies at North Quincy High School to reflect on the challenges Quincy had faced in the previous decade.

Its greatest challenge and of its finest hours, Sheets said, was the saving of the hospital.

But the mayor, urging both residents and public officials to be "worthy" of the new millennium, outlined what he saw as the

Improving MCAS Scores Also Goal Of New School Committee Vice Chairwoman

Reading Specialists, Eliminating Fees Among Bragg's Top Priorities

Adding reading specialists throughout the system, eliminating athletic and extracurricular user fees and finding ways to meet the needs of all children are among the priorities of new School Committee Vice-Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg.

Bragg outlined her goals in her new capacity after being elected to the committee's second highest position during the city's inaugural ceremonies Monday at North Quincy High School. She was nominated by Linda Stice, who served as vice chairwoman the past two years. School Committeeman Michael McFarland seconded the nomination.

Bragg, who is beginning her seventh year and third term on the school committee, also said the Massachusetts Comprehensive Assessment System, or MCAS, will remain a major concern in education locally.

"We just received our results and I am pleased to report that we have shown overall improvement since the first round of testing. If you look at communities that have a population of 50,000 or higher, Quincy ranks fourth in the Commonwealth with only Newton, Brookline and Framingham surpassing us.

"The process now is to determine where we are strong and where are weaknesses are. Once those are determined, efforts will be made to capitalize on the strong areas and strengthen the weak areas," Bragg said.

"These tests are going to be used by the Department of Education to evaluate every public school in the Commonwealth, and are going to determine which students will graduate from our high schools."

In an effort to improve test scores, Bragg advocates providing more professional development for teachers as they seek out new ways to assist students in achieving their best. "To meet this challenge," she said, "our most recent negotiated teacher contract included language to improve professional development offerings by building in 20 additional hours for all teachers. This will help us provide the extra assistance our students need to improve their test scores."

Another of Bragg's goals is eliminating or phasing out athletic or extracurricular user fees. "This can be done without cutting the budget by using the unspent funds in the Athletic Revolving Account to substitute the funding that will be lost, if this action is support. It will be one of our first official votes in the 21st century. We hope that this action will result in increased student participation in athletics and after-school activities, thus creating more well-rounded students," Bragg said.

Adding reading specialists across the school system, Bragg said, will "help our special education students as well as all students because reading is fundamental to each and every subject we teach. If students can read and comprehend what they read, we should see improvement in all academic areas."

Bragg said she is proud of the strides the school committee and system have taken during the past six years, notably reduced class size.

"This commitment has led to hiring more teachers and having the best teachers in the state working in the Quincy Public Schools. Much research has been done that proves low class

City Clerk, Joseph Shea has been named Census Liaison for the city and announces that the Randolph Local Census Office is accepting applications for temporary positions with the U.S. Bureau for Census, 2000.

The position, which pays $10.25 per hour, is for Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. for the time and location most convenient for each person employed.

Those interested may call Census Office Manager, Peter Capernaros, at (781) 961-1753.

Shea Re-Elected License Board Chairman

The License Board voted unanimously Tuesday to re-elect Joseph Shea as chairman of the board.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman was absent, was re-elected vice-chairman.

The motion was made by Police Chief Thomas Frane, and seconded by Building Inspector Walter White.

Prior to the election, Shea introduced the new secretary to the License Board, Mrs. Cindy Manning, succeeding Ann Lind.

Manning had worked in the assessor's office for more than 10 years.

Shea thanked Lind who he said has "moved three floors up to the housing office", for her years as secretary.

He's Now Also Sachem Sheets

James Sheets began an historic sixth term as mayor this week.

And, you might say, his first term as Sachem Sheets.

The latter title was bestowed on him by some 40 four and five year olds from the Beechwood Community Life Center in a recent holiday visit to his office.

As pre-schoolers at Beechwood, they have been studying Native American life and learned that a sachem is a chief.

So, they thought, it would be quite appropriate for Mayor Sheets to be also known as Sachem Sheets as in "Chief of the City" and the "Chief of Our Quincy Tribe."

They presented him with a Mandella, made at Beechwood, wishing him "strength, good luck and happiness."

Mandellas, Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals informs us, are a variation of the shield used long ago by Native Americans in tribal dances, battle, travel, ceremonies, and in homes.

It was believed the Mandella would bring the owner strength, good luck, success, wealth and happiness.

In addition to the Mandella, the Sachem got an impromptu song from Colleen Bellotti, four-year-old daughter of Sheriff and Mrs. Michael Bellotti.

She belted out "Tomorrow" from "Annie" and wanted the Sachem to know that the song was a favorite of Grandpa Frank Bellotti (the former attorney general and lieutenant governor.)

The youngsters introduced themselves to the Sachem and then had a few questions for him:

Q: What time do you get up in the morning?

Q: What's your favorite candy?

A: Jelly beans.

Q: What's your favorite color?

A: Red.

Q: Are you a grandpa?

A: Yes, I have five wonderful grandchildren.

The youngsters thanked Sheets and said their good-byes.

Bet he found being sachem a little easier and a lot more fun than being mayor.

FRANK MCCAULEY is being honored tonight (Thursday) by the Quincy Lions Club for his 40 years as a member and his long service to the club and to the city.

The black-tie (optional) event at the Quincy Neighborhood Club starts with a social hour at 6 p.m. with dinner and a program at 7 p.m.

Featured speaker will be Chuck Costo, Past International Director of Lions Clubs International. And there will be some surprises.

The Lions Clubs, as most people know, raise funds for research to eliminate preventable blindness. And collect used eye-glasses, which they have cleaned and sized to be sent to third-world countries with professionals who volunteer to fit and distribute them.

Friends attending tonight's tribute to McCauley are asked to bring along a pair of used glasses to donate to the worthy cause in Frank's name.

He would consider a pile of glasses a real nice tribute.

SPEAKING OF MCCAULEY, he finally got his man elected city council president this week.

In nominating Paul Harold for the presidency, McCauley noted it was 22 years to the exact day that he nominated Harold in 1978.

That year Harold got only two votes: McCauley's and his own.

"Those two votes have laid dormant like Rip Van Winkle but are ready to rise again," McCauley said.

This time Harold again got McCauley's vote and his own and those of the seven other councillors to make it unanimous.

See, it pays to be patient, Frank.

WHEN NEW Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton was sworn in Monday, it gave the council four backsliders.

He joins Paul Harold, Mike D'Amico and Patrick McDermott from last year's council.

That could change, though. This is Leap Year.

If a Dixie, Idaho lady berates her husband in public causing a crowd to collect, the husband can be fined.

He'll Take Quincy First Night

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Happy New Year! Quincy has now entered the new millennium after yet another great New Year's Eve Celebration in Quincy Center.

Boston can have its First Night. New York can have its Times Square. London can have a 10-story Ferris wheel, Paris can light up the Eiffel Tower and they can hold a rock concert at the pyramids in Egypt, but I'll take First Night, 2000 Quincy over them all.

Yeah, it was cold but not that cold and everything was great from the laser show bouncing off Presidents

Place to the fire works to the ice sculptures to the various events scattered in Downtown Quincy such as my favorite of the night, Rex Trailer over at Quincy High School. Is there any better way to saying goodbye to the 20th century than singing along with Rex the Boomtown theme song? I don't think so.

I wish to thank everyone who made the celebration such a great success. I want to thank all the volunteers who helped keep everything going right. Kudos to the Quincy Police Department and to Quincy's Emergency Management Team.

Finally, I wish to thank Quincy's business community whose role in the success of First Night is so vital. It is truly a public/private partnership. Let us hope that this spirit of commonality continues well past First Night. Recently, Quincy's business got lashed at a council meeting when it came to taxes and tax rates. I believe the business community was treated very rudely and hope that such rudeness ended with the last century.

Quincy works because we all work together. This spirit of cooperation is what makes Quincy such a vital and growing midsize city. It is time for the new Quincy City Council to enter the new millennium without the rhetoric baggage of the last one.

The ice sculptures will melt. Let us hope the hard feeling generated at a recent city council session also melts. We're in this together for the long haul. Quincy's partnership between government and business must continue because it has worked and needs to continue working. We have no alternative, eh?

As that billboard says, "What are you waiting for, the year 3000?"

Quincy Residents Take Part In BC High Serv-A-Thon

Quincy residents Timothy F. McGillicuddy, Ronald L. Devera, and Jonathan M. Gray, all students at Boston College High School, recently gave up a Saturday to clean up the Kennedy Playground in Mattapan.

The three, along with 52 other BC High students, under the supervision of Megan Danaher, a BC High guidance counselor, and Patrick Donaher, a former

BC High teacher, contributed almost 400 hours of community service for City

Year's Serv-A-Thon. The group worked in conjunction with Massachusetts Community Water Watch and AmeriCorps members in removing five tons of trash from the site along the Neponset River.

"This was my second year participating in the Serv-A-Thon," said McGillicuddy. "I always have a good time."

The BC High students were a small part of the 10,000 people who served in other parts of Boston. This was a fundraising event to help City Year with its year round projects. The BC High group raised over $1,300.

Quincy's Yesterdays Della Chiesa Boosts High Rise Development

By PAUL HAROLD

In his annual address at the first city council meeting of the year, Amelio Della Chiesa lent his support to development of high rise apartments in the city. He cited apartment construction as the very impetus needed for the city's "resurgence as a progressive and grown-up community."

37 Years Ago

He also called the planned million dollar expansion of off-street parking in downtown as "far-reaching." He saw the proposed construction of an incinerator by a private operator as "the solution to a vexing problem."

Following the mayor's address, the council, on the motion of John Quinn, re-elected Charles Shea as council president. Carl Anderson was re-appointed vice chairman.

ROTARY HONORS 'HEROIC OFFICERS'

The Rotary Club honored those police officers who thwarted the hold-up of the South Shore National Bank last September.

Presented citations were patrolmen William Murphy who was wounded by the gunman, patrolman Anthony Pollara and Detective Lt. Leo Antonelli who felled the gunman with a single shot.

The presentations were made by Chief William Ferrazzi, club president Dr. Charles Djerf and program chairman Frank Anselmo. The commendation from the Rotary cited the "loyal and brave officers who directly aided the capture and arrest of a criminal who was endangering the lives and property of people of this community."

RETAIL SALES FLAT

A survey of Quincy Center stores by the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce showed that two thirds failed to increase sales over the same period last year. Of the 28 stores checked, 18 had sales either under or barely even with last year, while 10 stores topped last year's sales.

Bernard Moore, head of the retail division at the chamber, said that parking problems played a major role in the leveling-off of business.

Business Leaders Join Easter Seals Campaign

John Farmer, Senior Vice President at the Bank of Canton, is chairing the Greater Quincy 2000 Easter Seals Campaign for Independence, according to General Chairperson Alison Coady.

Marilyn Manning, Executive Director of the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association, is vice chairperson of the campaign.

Working with Farmer to raise money to fund Easter Seals services that help people with disabilities expand their independence are:

Robert J. Clark, Lawrence DiNardo, Joseph Finn, Erin Farmer Noonan, John Keohane, Anthony and Mary Ellen Losordo, Edward and Marge McDermott, James McLean, Wayne Robertson, Cathleen and Patrick Rowland and Kristen Williams, all of Quincy; Steve Dinger, Braintree; Judith Farmer, Canton; and Susan D. Smith, Stoughton.

"One of the good things about raising money for Easter Seals is that the money funds direct services for children and adults with disabilities — right here in the community," Farmer said. "Our disabled neighbors find that Easter Seals programs really help them live more independently and participate more in community life."

Easter Seals services include technology for independence, physical and occupational therapy, adapted swim programs, summer camp, speech therapy, support groups for people recovering from strokes, vocational rehabilitation, after-school programs, equipment loan, advocacy and information and referral services.

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS was all smiles after an apparently productive meeting with Santa Claus himself at the first annual "Christmas With Santa" party at St. Boniface Church. The party provided over 200 gifts to children ages 2 to 11 in the Germantown area of Quincy. Event sponsors were: the Quincy Housing Authority, the Harbor View Residents Committee, St. Boniface Church, Fallon Ambulance, Quincy Police Patrolman Association, Sheriff Michael Bellotti, State Rep. Steve Tobin, and Ward One Councillor-elect Gregory Hanley.

HOSPITAL BENEFACTORS — Mrs. Claire and Dr. Edward Gordon of Quincy present a check for $5,000 to Quincy Medical Center's Foundation Director Maryrose Mirick and Vice President of Strategic Services Mary Sweeney. The Gordons, shown here in front of a grandfather clock they previously donated to the hospital, made the contribution to benefit patient services and programs at Quincy Medical Center. Both have been active with the hospital for many years, Dr. Gordon was on the medical staff for 39 years and Mrs. Gordon was recently nominated to serve on the Foundation's Board of Directors.

24 Parent To Parent Program Volunteers Recognized

Twenty-four Parent to Parent program volunteers were recently recognized at an appreciation dinner held at Quincy Medical Center.

"It takes a special person to do the job as a Parent to Parent volunteer, someone who has the capability to give a new parent support and encouragement," said Sandra Horvath, program director of The Commission on the Family Parent to Parent program.

"All of you are fine examples of this," she told the 24 home visitor volunteers.

Administered by the Commission on the Family, and funded by the Department of Education through the network lead agency, Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. and the City of Quincy, the Parent to Parent program is a new-born home visiting program offered to all Quincy families with new babies. Experienced parent volunteers visit families and present them with a gift basket that contains a hand-knitted blanket, a board book for baby, many baby necessities, and a copy of the Pink & Blue Pages, a resource guide that explains the services offered for families with children from birth to aged three.

Horvath reports that the Parent to Parent volunteers have made home visits to over 300 families of Quincy newborns since April of 1998. "The dedication and enthusiasm from the Parent to Parent volunteers amazes me," reports Horvath. "I can count on all of my volunteers and feel confident in their ability to provide each family with a nurturing and resourceful visit."

Linda Stice, executive director of the Commission on the Family, thanked Mayor Sheets for his support of the Parent to Parent program. "He has always understood the importance of reaching out to families," Stice described the new "My baby and Me" series or workshops offered by the Parent to Parent program for new Quincy mothers. The series was held at Quincy Medical Center and will be repeated in February.

John Keenan, representing Mayor James Sheets, thanked the Parent to Parent volunteers on behalf of the Mayor. He said that the city was a caring community and the volunteers brought that spirit into the homes of newborns.

described the work of the Quincy Family Network, which provides playgroups, parent education, information and referral, and services to Asian families with young children.

Heather Chauncey, assistant director, thanked the following volunteers for their ongoing support and commitment to the program and presented them with a certificate and gift: Anne McEvoy, Kathy Kennedy, Michelle Sylvia, Sue Hersey, Dora Chung, Joan Rodeck, Donna Ackerman, Sophia Zhu, Mary Huang, Judy Schlichting, Evelyn Coughlin, Mimi Robison, Jana Harrington, Lauren Cogeshall, Pam Bonfiglioli, Gerry Shea, Margaret LaForest, Maureen Breen, Fran Meade, Marion Bogue, Gail Minuitti, Dorothy Shea, Mercy Essien, and Mary Shiffer.

For more information or to volunteer as a home visitor, call Horvath or Chauncey at 689-8352.

If I Could Have One Wish...

It would be that everyone had some place to go for the holidays. I cannot picture anybody out in the cold with no place to go. There's an expression "Tis the season to be jolly!" Well, I think everyone should be jolly and thankful.
Allison McDonough Marshall

It would be to have my grandpa get better. He is in a nursing home. I want him to be able to come home for the holidays. Even though he is sick he always has a smile on his face.
Thomas Hurney Marshall

It would be for everyone to have an enjoyable holiday. For example, I want all the children to receive one gift. I also want everyone to have a place to go during the holidays.
Colleen Reardon Marshall

It would be that people who are sick get better. I want to see my aunt get well again. I had a friend that died from a serious sickness and I don't want to see that happen to anyone else. I think that all sick people deserve to feel good on the holidays.
Kevin Ferrara Marshall

It would be that my uncle would come from Ohio. I have not seen him in over a year. My aunt wants to move to Ohio to be with him. If she moves I won't have anyone to visit when I'm at my mom's house.
Michael Hoy Marshall

It would be to see my cousins who live in Florida.
Daniel Montani Montclair

It would be to give presents to the whole wide world and a year's supply of food to the poor.
Louis Chin Montclair

It would be that my whole family would be at my house for Christmas.
Kevin Maffei Montclair

It would be for everyone to have a computer in their house or apartment.
Gregory Wong Montclair

It would be that the poor and hungry would have a wonderful dinner on Christmas Eve.
Amanda Jackson Montclair

It would be that everyday we would receive one present because everybody likes new things to play with.
Jun Xiang Peng Montclair

It would be that the homeless get a home, food, friends, and a good education.
Saralyn Donovan Montclair

It would be to see my Uncle Lee who lives in New York. I only see him three times a year. When he does visit he tells funny jokes and talks about interesting facts about storms.
Patrick Timmons Marshall

It would be that my family would be happy forever. Merry Christmas to all!
Juliana Martinelli Montclair

It would be to have a puppy. I would like to have a puppy because they are so cute and fun to play with. I would take her for walks I would feed the puppy every day.
Amanda Maggio Parker

It would be to have a present and to have a party for Christmas. I would like to have a big family get together because my family is nice. It would be so much fun.
Johnny Kim Parker

It would be to become a teacher. When I get older and go to college, I want to learn about being a teacher.
Zulany Bonet Snug Harbor

It would be to have $999,669.00. I would help the poor people in need and find them a shelter until they can get a house of their own.
Katlyn Ayer Snug Harbor

It would be to have all the best books in the world in my very own library so I could read all day.
Victoria Haskell Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have a robot that could build a Metro Dome in two seconds.
Kevin Mason Beechwood Knoll

It would be to get a dog.
Lauren Stille Bernazzani

It would be to go on a trip to Disney World.
Caroline Cunningham Bernazzani

It would be that every child has a good education.
Sarah Esterquest Bernazzani

It would be that there was peace all over the world and to stop the anger in everyone's hearts.
Olivia Parsons Montclair

It would be that everyone in this world would be happy. I hope everyone has a peaceful, happy and a prosperous Christmas.
Nitya Karki Montclair

It would be to have my father back. It can be in a dream or in real life. I want to be able to see him face to face. I want to remember him.
Fernando Silveira Montclair

It would be to have two weeks of vacation instead of one. Then, I wouldn't have to think about school for two weeks. I would have more time to do things like sleep very late, play with my laptop and watch TV.
Mandy Liem Parker

It would be to be a scientist when I am an adult. This is my wish from my heart.
Ananth Akkiraju Montclair

It would be to have my family that has passed away and my family that's still alive to come for this Christmas. The reason I want them to come is because I miss them.
Dimi Filandrianos Squantum

It would be to get a Game Boy because if I am bored I can play it. My birthday is Dec. 17. This could be a gift for my birthday and Christmas.
Henry Chen Squantum

It would be for a kitten. I love kittens. They're soft and I like to play with them. Kittens are a lot of work but I still like them.
Alisha Alberi Squantum

It would be for my grampa to come back for Christmas because it's going to be very different this year without him. I would also make the rest of my family happy, too. They miss him also.
Lauren Ayers Squantum

It would be to get a dirt bike because I like speed and I like the wind in my face. I also wish for a dirt bike because I like going off jumps and having the feel of being in control.
Nash Winters Squantum

It would be a boat because with a boat you can go to islands and travel the seven seas. It would be cool to go fishing. You can also have parties.
Melissa Cochrane Squantum

It would be to house and feed all the people that don't have food or a home. Some of the people have a little food but not much. Some of them don't have any at all. I see men in front of stores sleeping. Imagine not having a home? That's why I would wish to feed and house everybody.
Mark McAuliffe Parker

It would be to have 10 feet of snow on Christmas.
Mike Nuzzo Lincoln Hancock

It would be that no one would go hungry this Christmas.
Randy French Lincoln Hancock

It would be to have crime stop. Every day a lot of people get hurt or something is stolen. I think that it's sad that a person would actually hurt someone else for no reason.
Ellen DiNicola Parker

It would be that people didn't litter at all.
Maggie Poon Montclair

It would be that my mother would quit smoking.
Michael Macpherson Montclair

It would be to have my own planet.
Jacquelyn Callahan Lincoln Hancock

It would be for a white Christmas.
Lindsay Fralick Lincoln Hancock

It would be to have a Darth Maul.
Ryan Griffiths Lincoln Hancock

It would be to help the people who need shelter.
Kristina Storer Montclair

It would be for all homeless and poor people to get some type of gift this holiday. Toys For Tots and other programs help with this problem. Let's help them!
Nicole Tucker Merrymount

It would be to visit my family in the Philippines and California.
Christel Lanin Merrymount

It would be that my parents live a long and healthy life because I love them.
Sean Lombard Merrymount

It would be to have snow on Christmas Eve because it gets everyone in the Christmas spirit.
Nicolas Gipparelli Merrymount

It would be for one hundred billion dollars so that I could give billions to charity and needy causes.
Kevin Tryon Merrymount

It would be that all the homeless people in the world would have a home and lots of money to buy food, pay the bills, buy toys, and clothes.
Lauren Pnans Atherton Hough

It would be to stop war because war could make people homeless.
Josh Wallace Atherton Hough

It would be for the children in North Carolina to have a nice Christmas with their families. They got flooded out of their homes and can't have Christmas with their family, and they no house to celebrate Christmas in.
Kaeleen Bock Atherton Hough

It would be for all homeless people to have a home or a shelter and enough money to buy themselves food.
Keith Uraibel Atherton Hough

It would be for a lot of cheer this Christmas for the less fortunate. They could use it. I want the children to have a fun Christmas.
Elizabeth Henry Atherton Hough

It would be for homeless people. I wish children could get gifts and have a Christmas tree to take the presents out from under it.
David Armat Atherton Hough

It would be for the homeless to have a home and for them to have food. I hope the homeless could have money so they can buy food and clothes.
Grace Casey Atherton Hough

It would be to win the lottery so I could donate a lot of money to my school and to the Jimmy Fund.
Chris Baker Beechwood Knoll

It would be to have a new, clean ocean and breathe clean air.
Kevin Girard Beechwood Knoll

It would be that I owned a huge planet with cool aliens.
Sean Guinto Beechwood Knoll

It would be for the streets to be paved with candy and gold.
David Ray Beechwood Knoll

It would be that everyone on earth can enjoy this holiday especially the firefighters' families in Worcester.
Matthew Sawlor Bernazzani

It would be to spend more time with my family and I wish I could have more animals.
Jamie Lasordo Bernazzani

It would be to own my own puppy. I always wanted one. If I could have a dog that liked cats because I have one, I would probably be the happiest girl in the world.
Jessica Bernazzani

It would be to get a computer because it would be helpful to my family and I. I could use it for research when I had a report.
Giandra Rivera Parker

It would be to move back to Florida because my parents are having a hard time deciding whether to stay in Quincy or move back to Florida. Plus, my mom and I hate the cold weather.
Erica Vasquez Parker

It would be to have all the Pokemon cards I could imagine then I wouldn't have to buy them in stores.
Charlie Yin Parker

It would be a trip to London because I could see many sights. Celebrating Christmas in London with my family is a wonderful wish for me.
Linda Man Parker

It would be to fly in a first-class airplane to "The City of Lights," Paris, France with my family because I always wanted to go there.
Anna Wong Parker

It would be to get a Sega Dreamcast and Soul Craibur.
Denny Wright Lincoln Hancock

It would be to get Donkey Kong 64 and the player guide for it.
Kevin Doo Lincoln Hancock

It would be for my family to stay healthy.
Stephen Connolly Lincoln Hancock

It would be to live in a huge mansion with a fifty-foot pool and sixty rooms.
Richard Penzo Parker

It would be that everyone could have a safe and happy Christmas and a wonderful New Year because everyone deserves a great season with their family.
Katie Doyle St. Ann's

It would be for every kid and teenager to sled, tube, and snowboard with two weeks of snow.
Kevin Croake St. Ann's

It would be for all of the firefighters who risked their lives for other people in the building. For all of the children that won't have a farther for Christmas.

SENIOR LIVING

by Laura Andrus, Director of Marketing

CHOOSING YOUR PARENTS WISELY?

One popular myth surrounding aging is that the genetic and lifestyle factors, not secret to successful aging is genes.

It's never too late to improve your lifestyle and having the right information to make good choices can help you make decisions that support your life. At Marina Place, a senior living residence at Four Sea- port Drive, we offer both independent living and assisted living. Our beautiful seaside location offers views of Boston, plenty of independent senior apartments, a marina, shops and restaurants. Phone: 617-770-3264.

P.S. The rate at which one's lung function declines with advancing age is linked more with environmental and lifestyle factors than with genes.

QUINCY MEDICAL AN AFFILIATE OF BOSTON MEDICAL CENTER
JACK ANSELL, MD
Chief of Medicine

Moving Forward At Quincy Medical Center

By DR. JACK E. ANSELL, M.D.
CHIEF OF MEDICINE

There is a new hospital in the City of Quincy. It is called Quincy Medical Center, a private, not-for-profit hospital with a strong affiliation with Boston Medical Center, the teaching hospital of Boston University School of Medicine.

What does this mean for residents of Quincy and the South Shore?

It means that the region now has access to a world class medical center. Quincy Medical Center offers a full range of primary care services as well as sophisticated secondary and even some tertiary services. Quincy Medical Center now has nationally renowned surgeons and other specialists from Boston University School of Medicine present to see patients, to assist the medical staff, and to provide services that exist no where else on the South Shore.

A true network of care between Quincy Medical Center and Boston Medical Center makes the transition of care between the two centers smooth and effortless for those individuals who require services such as open heart surgery and organ transplants. Quincy Medical Center's unwavering devotion to the highest standards of care and service to individuals is not empty talk; this is a commitment.

As the community is well aware, new leadership is present with medical staff from Boston Medical Center having joined the staff of QMC in the last month.

Dr. Timothy Babineau, a respected general surgeon, is the new Chief of Surgery, and I am serving as the new Chief of Medicine. The medical staff of Quincy Medical Center is keenly aware of recent events, and recognizes the need for change.

We are implementing a comprehensive review of policies and procedures to assure that our systems are fully integrated and responsive. The medical staff will play an active role in the reevaluation of care and service to patients. This will not be a top down, but a bottom up process, with all members of Quincy Medical Center involved.

What can you expect in the future? The future has already started. In early December, Boston Medical Center Surgical Associates opened its offices and surgeons are currently seeing patients in a number of subspecialty disciplines. Quincy Medical Center has employed a new kind of inpatient specialist, a "hospitalist," who is a physician skilled in the diagnostic and therapeutic management of patients admitted to the hospital. The hospitalist will assist primary care physicians, and in selected cases, oversee the diagnostic evaluation and treatment of patients.

The new clinical leadership is evaluating other services with a goal toward providing innovation and quality for the residents of Quincy. Geriatric care is one area that will be expanded with a full spectrum of integrated services for our older citizens. Quincy Medical Center already has an active postgraduate training program with residents in the Emergency Department. Other training programs may ultimately be implemented at QMC. Over the last year or two, some services have left QMC or have been drastically reduced.

As we move forward, careful consideration will be given to bringing services back that make the most sense for QMC and the City.

Stay tuned — there is a new Medical Center in Quincy.

(This is the first in a series of "Healthbeat" columns which will be written by staff members at Quincy Medical Center to inform the public about different health related topics.

This initial column by Dr. Jack Ansell, M.D., Chief of Medicine, introduces the new Quincy Sun feature and updates the community on the hospital's affiliation with Boston Medical Center.

Other columns this month will focus on nutrition, fitness and stress.)

Eastern Bank Makes Donation To QCAP

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., recently received a $2,500 donation from Eastern Bank.

The money will benefit QCAP's First Time Homebuyer Program which offers workshops and individual counseling designed to educate families of all income levels on every aspect of the homebuying process. Workshop participants become eligible for many different mortgage options offered through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA) and other financial institutions.

Since the program began in 1990, QCAP has graduated more than 1700 participants. Ten workshop series are offered annually, along with special bilingual workshops and informational sessions for residents of local public housing complexes. An estimated 70 percent of QCAP's graduates purchase their first home through the program, which includes 25 families from public housing.

Quincy 2000 Workshop On Writing A Business Plan

Quincy 2000 will host a workshop for small business owners on "How To Write a Business Plan."

The workshop will be held Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 24 and 25, from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Quincy 2000 eighth floor offices, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Don Rielly, Senior Management Consultant at Boston College's Small Business Development Center, will present the workshop. Anyone who wants to work for himself or herself, who has a business idea, who is ready to take the first step toward starting a business, or who needs financing will benefit from this course.

Participants will learn how to define their business, create a marketing profile, plan for expenses and figure out pricing, examine tax and insurance issues, and learn about financing options.

Cost for the workshop is $35 for members of Quincy 2000 and $45 for non-members, and includes written materials and snacks. Call Marcia Golden at (617) 847-1454 to pre-register.

Board Approves First Brewery In City

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday voted unanimously to have the first brewery in the City of Quincy.

The site is Owen O'Leary's at 579 Southern Artery and will be now known as the Quincy Ships Brewery Co.

Atty. Dale Malone of Cohasset is the new owner. His wife, Emily Malone operates a catering business in Cohasset, and will be the consultant for the restaurant part of the establishment.

According to Atty. Matthew McDonald, representing Malone, the name of the "family type restaurant" will be in keeping with the "Quincy ships and the Shipyard Industry"

Malone said they are awaiting federal and state permits before he can install the serving tanks for the beer, which will be made "on site."

He said there will be four or five of these tanks which will hold 10 barrels of beer in each one (31 gallons).

Malone said he expects to do minor decorating and will probably open within two weeks for the restaurant part of the business. He will submit plans for the installation of the tanks to the health and building departments.

Kevin Gill, former owner of O'Leary's said he felt "emotional" about leaving the restaurant.

He said he had been at the Southern Artery site for 6 and a half years, and commented, "You wonder, why you work so hard just to break even."

He added that the concept of the menu at the restaurant depended on the "success at lunch time" and it didn't materialize.

O'Leary said he will now concentrate on a brewery he owns in Natick, and his restaurants in Southboro and Brockton as well.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the license board vote was the "first step" in the transfer and that it will now go to the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission for approval.

Shea read a letter from the new Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley, who supported the transfer of the business, but whose only concern was any noise from the entertainment would affect the River Bay Club which is in back of the restaurant.

McDonald said they presently hold a cabaret license (no more than three musicians) and assured the board that the new owner did not plan to change the type of entertainment now at O'Leary's.

Shea praised Gill and said he had "done a good job" and had a good record..

Quincy Red Cross Courses

The following courses will be run at the American Red Cross Quincy office during the month of January:

Jan. 5: CPR for Professional Rescuer Review, 6:15 p.m. to 10 p.m., $40.

Jan. 8: CPR for Professional Rescuer, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., $75.

ARTHRITIS

Arthritis, or degenerative as the severity of the arthritis disease, is a condition characterized by inflammation and swelling of the joints, very often with fluid accumulation in the joints. The symptoms include joint swelling, pain and tenderness as well as occasional redness, increased temperature and joint stiffness or decreased range of motion.

Physical therapy, exercise and medication have all been used to treat arthritis with the goal to relieve pain, control inflammation and preserve the joint.

If you are experiencing pain and stiffness in your feet, see a qualified Podiatrist for treatment. If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

works at a time that many cities of its size don't work anymore. And it works because we have all pulled together to make it work -- business and labor, taxpayers and government.

"The business community has been an essential part of the equation and not just because we create jobs -- and we do. And not just because we pay taxes -- and we do pay taxes to the city, at more than twice the rate of residential property owners.

"Now, the message from the City is that our contributions don't count.

"Without warning and without public discussion, the council raised the taxes on business property a staggering 9.2 percent. And when the council met to reconsider that decision, they refused to allow anyone a chance to speak, even though some of the city's most active citizens and some of its largest taxpayers were there.

"Business represents 23 percent of the property in this city, but it is being asked to pay 40 percent of the property taxes! And yet, not a single representative of the business community was allowed to address the city council.

"After the vote, the Mayor said some soothing words. But he could have vetoed the tax increase and he did not."

Saying that actions spoke louder than words, Godwin said the 9.2 percent tax increase for business made it clear that politicians wanted to discourage, not encourage, the growth of business in the city.

Godwin called for business owners in the city to sign a resolution which said, among other things, that "the arrogant, unwarranted, and punitive action of the City government has divided the city and has shattered the spirit of cooperation that did so much to revitalize Quincy at the close of the twentieth century" and that business owners will "work to restore a City leadership that will again commit itself to that spirit of cooperation and common civic purpose."

Tony Agnitti, a Quincy businessman and chairman of the QBC, echoed Godwin's words and had a few of his own. Saying that the tax increase was just one example of politicians' anti-business sentiment which he had noticed on other issues such as Twin Rivers and Highpoint, Agnitti urged his fellow business leaders to take a stand here and now. "The business community is an asset to the city of Quincy, not the politicians," Agnitti said. "The City Council is squandering that asset. We will not go quietly in the night. We will request, require, and demand to be heard."

Ron Zooleck, president and CEO of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said the meeting was the first in a series of events scheduled for the next two years to remind citizens of actions "not in the best interest of the community." He also said that materials would be sent to all 500 QBA members guiding them through the abatement process.

Tax bills are due Feb. 1.

Robert Curry, owner of Curry/Ace Hardware in West Quincy, said that businesses owners generally accepted a tax rate 200 percent above residents but that the new rate showed politicians just weren't getting the message. He urged his fellow businessmen not to blindly support any political candidates but to "support the people who support us."

After the meeting, Loretta DeGrazia, president of East Coast Petroleum in North Quincy, worried that she's seeing the same trends happening in Quincy as she did in Boston just before she relocated her company from Boston to Quincy in 1985. "I moved because the city of Boston was not compassionate to small business the way the city of Quincy was," DeGrazia said. "Now it's happening again and I really want to send a message to the city to listen to the small businesses which are the heart of your community."

"I love Quincy," DeGrazia said, adding that she moved to Quincy in 1998 "to support a community that supported me."

Thomas Feenan, owner of Feenan Financial Group of 40 Willard St., West Quincy, was quick to sign the resolution, adding that he would request an abatement and "give help to anyone who needs it."

"I'm a property owner," Feenan said. "And when I have to pass on the cost to my tenants, it might kill them. They might move to Milton now because, right now, Milton's cheaper."

Thomas Galvin of Galvin Co. said that he has volunteered at Quincy 2000, the public-private partnership designed to attract new business, since its inception but now wonders why even bothers. "The developments of the past few months have made me question it," Galvin admitted, adding that he fears a loss of membership and maybe even solvency for the organization.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, said that he is in the process of comparing tax information from 1999 and 2000 and will present his findings to Quincy 2000's Board of Directors Feb. 2.

TONY AGNITTI, a Quincy businessman and chairman of the Quincy Business Council, signs a resolution which cites, among other things, that "the arrogant, unwarranted and punitive action of the city government has divided the city and has shattered the spirit of cooperation that did so much to revitalize Quincy at the close of the 20th century."

BUSINESS LEADERS ATTENDED Monday's meeting of the Quincy Business Council to protest the 175 percent tax classification imposed on business by the City Council.

Some QBC members were intrigued but not overly excited about Council President Paul Harold's announcement that day of a third tax classification which would give up to a 10 percent tax break to small businesses. Most wanted to know more but argued that the breaks went to owners, not tenants, and that some of the qualifications seemed arbitrary.

Robotics Team Open House At Center For Tech Education

The Quincy Public Schools/Gillette Robotics Team HYPER (Helping Youth Pursue Engineering and Robotics) will hold its second annual Open House Thursday, Jan. 13 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Center for Technical Education, 107 Woodward Ave.

Community members are welcome to attend.

For more information, contact Donald Young at 984-8839 or Jerry Quintiliani at 984-8828.

For the fifth consecutive year, Quincy Public Schools Robotics Team is developing a robot for the regional and national FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) competition in April of 2000. The team comprises approximately 75 students from North Quincy High School, Quincy High School, and the Center for Technical Education. The team is working with students to introduce them to different technical fields. Students and professionals design, construct, test, and ship a working robot for competition. Working with their corporate partner, The Gillette Company, students are divided into sub-teams dealing with animation, web page development, design and construction, and Chairman's award project.

Using computer software (3D Studio), the animation group is creating a 30-second clip explaining the team's robot design. The web page development group is learning how to use HTML to create a web page (<http://www.qhs.gillette.com>) for the team.

Big Sister Assn. Seeking Volunteers

The Big Sister Association of Greater Boston is seeking women to provide friendship and support to girls in the community.

There is a particular need for women of color.

A volunteer information

session will be held at its Quincy office, 1458 Hancock St., Tuesday, Jan. 18, from 6-7 p.m. To register, or for more information, call (617) 328-1061 or (617) 236-8060.

The design and construction team has spent a majority of the fall renovating the facilities that have been relocated within the Center for Tech Ed. They have also undertaken the design and construction of the "War Wagon." The wagon will be used to transport the machine back and forth from the pit area to the competition area.

Students on the Chairman's award team are working to document the progress of the entire team. The documentation (video, print, photographs, etc.) will be submitted to FIRST, as evidence of the teamwork needed to succeed in this project.

The team thanks the community for their continued support.

Sheets Reviews Decade, Cites Future Challenges

three biggest challenges of Quincy's future: the preservation of open space, the reclaiming of Wollaston Beach for public use, and the guarantee of affordable housing.

Sheets' remarks were the centerpiece of an event which saw the mayor sworn in for an historic sixth term of office and the swearing in of the new City Council and School Committee, along with new Councillors Joseph Newton and Gregory Hanley and new School Committee Member William Phelan.

Councillor Paul Harold was unanimously elected council president and JoAnn Bragg was unanimously elected vice-chairman of the School Committee.

"We, in this city, in this generation," Sheets said, "are by destiny -- rather than by choice -- the watchmen at the gate of this new millennium. As keepers of the gate, we must demonstrate that we are worthy of the power and the responsibility with which we have been so fully entrusted."

Sheets looked back on Quincy's decade of strong economic growth, new businesses, and investments to business districts and schools, but made it clear that saving the hospital was the city's greatest achievement. Said Sheets:

"There can be little question that the greatest economic accomplishment of the last decade has been the redemption of Quincy Hospital with the preservation of 1000 jobs; the continuation of acute health care services for our seniors and Quincy residents of all ages; the affiliation with Boston Medical Center, a teaching hospital; the infusion of new doctors and specialists; and the elimination of an enormous debt that threatened the economic well-being of our city."

"I remind you that we were surrounded by institutions and individuals who wanted us to fail, but failure was never an option. Instead, one of our darkest hours became one of our finest hours."

The mayor was just as clear on what he saw as the city's top priority for his new administration: the preservation of open space. "A new millennium and a new century will provide the city of Quincy with new challenges," Sheets said. "None is more important than our quest for the preservation of open space."

Sheets cited the recent acquisition by eminent domain of the five-acre Dickinson parcel at the intersection of Victory Rd. and East Squantum St. as proof that the city was making progress on open space, but said that the real goal was to "create a funding source which allows us to purchase and preserve open space as it becomes available throughout the city."

The city's second goal, Sheets said, was to work with the Wollaston Beach Task Force and the Quincy Beaches and Coastal Commission to reclaim Quincy's beaches for public use. The mayor said that funds to improve city-owned beaches would be part of the city's FY2001 budget. Sheets said that Quincy had "no greater resource" than its 27 miles of seashore and that that resource would be improved upon. "We owe future generations no less," Sheets said.

For his third goal Sheets promised to work with both federal and state governments as well as local agencies to "ensure affordable housing for all our families."

"Prosperity has brought with it good times, but it has also created a housing shortage which increases the number of homeless families in our midst."

The mayor listed many other accomplishments of the city in the 1990's and emphasized the city's efforts to reach out to both young and old with $74 million in school renovations and increased senior services. Accomplishments included:

Education: The mayor spoke of September 1998 opening of the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School and the recently built Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, the expansion of the Bernazzani and Parker Schools, and the re-opening and expansion of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School. "We have ended elementary classroom overcrowding for decades to come," Sheets said.

Sheets also mentioned the renovated Point Webster Middle School, funds to improve Broad Meadows and Atlantic Middle Schools and Atherton Hough Elementary School, and proposed funding for Sterling Middle School, and the new Quincy High School, slated to open in 2004.

Sheets called for residents to work with the city and teachers to revise the state's Education Reform Act, which needs reauthorization, because it treats Quincy students unfairly. "78 percent of Quincy's public school budget is funded by the Quincy property tax dollar,"

Sheets said. "In many other cities in the Commonwealth, the public school budget is funded virtually 100 percent by the state through the Education Reform Act formula."

Seniors: According to the mayor, the 27 acre Squantum Gardens site will be conveyed by the Navy to the city for only $1 within the next six months, allowing the construction of new senior housing complete with a senior center and a health clinic. Also, the number of senior transportation vans in the city has risen from 6 in 1996 to 12 with two more expected this year. The Trans Van System, the mayor said, now has over 800 elders in the program.

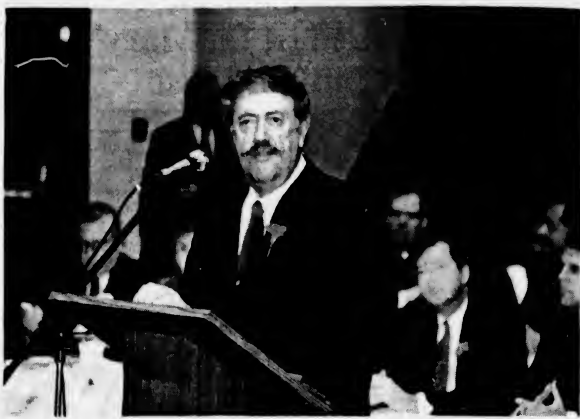

The Economy: Sheets cited both good planning and a good economy as reasons why the city was able to afford to save what is now Quincy Medical Center and still add $1 million to the city's stabilization fund, bringing the current total to $3.1 million dollars. Business areas, said Sheets, have been revitalized and many new businesses brought into the city, such as Boston Scientific, Roche Bros., Twin Rivers, Wal-Mart, and the new 99 restaurant. "At this time," said Sheets, "the foundation is being poured for the 437-room, full-service Marriot Hotel at Crown Colony in South Quincy, which will open for operation in just 14 to 18 months."

Sheets added that construction on the state-of-the-art Fore River Shipyard is 78% complete.

Other important accomplishments, said the mayor, included the creation of Quincy 2000, the new commuter rail station, the water shuttle system, the USS Salem, a renovated Crane Library, a trolley system for the Adams National Historic Sites, the new Quarry Hills Golf Course, and events such as First Night and the annual arts festival.

Said Sheets:

"We have accomplished this and more through our hard work and our willingness to work together. We have been successful because we have set aside traditional political fears... and we have worked for the common good of the citizens of the city of Quincy."

Harold Proposes Tax Break For Small Businesses

president at inaugural ceremonies held in the North Quincy High School auditorium Monday said:

"The recent council vote shifting taxes to businesses sent the wrong message to existing businesses in our city and others who are considering moving here."

Under the 175 percent classification the commercial tax rate increased by $2.97 while residential rate went up 47 cents.

The new tax rates now are $35.25 per $1000 valuation for commercial and $15.71 for residential.

Mayor James Sheets had proposed a 169 percent classification for business but Councillor Daniel Raymond amended it to the maximum 175 percent.

Under Sheets' proposed 169 percent classification for business the commercial rate would have been $34.04 and residential $16.07.

Raymond's amendment passed 4-3 with Tim Cahill, Bruce Ayers, and Michael D'Amico supporting him.

Opposed were Frank McCauley, Patrick McDermott and Harold.

A later move for reconsideration was blocked by another 4-3 vote, this time with Council President Peter Kolson, Ayers and D'Amico lining up with Raymond. Voting for reconsideration were Harold, McCauley and McDermott.

Harold said he will submit his proposed third classification to the city council at its Jan. 18 meeting.

"This new tax classification will help Quincy stay competitive and provide stability to our businesses," he said.

Harold said the Massachusetts General Laws allow the city to adopt a third category for small businesses.

To be eligible, small businesses would be certified by the State Department of Revenue as having 10 or fewer employees and occupying property valued at less than $1 million.

Harold said he will also propose that two new council committees be established: Committee on Housing and a Municipal Relations Committee.

The Committee on Housing, he said, would be "to enhance the coordination of programs by the Quincy Housing Authority and the city government to boost their efforts in gaining grants such as the Hope Program, which would revitalize the family units in Germantown."

Harold said if the committee is established, he will appoint new Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley as chairman "because of the location of housing authority properties in Ward 1."

The Municipal Relations Committee, he said, would meet regularly "with our counterparts in contiguous communities on issues we share concerning traffic and flooding (in) Braintree, Weymouth and Milton, and with the city of Boston concerning the city's current and future uses of Moon Island and Long Island."

Harold said that because Boston's uses impact Ward 6 he would appoint new Ward 6 Councillor Joseph Newton as chairman of that committee.

Harold also announced that through Charles Phelan, director of data processing, the city council agenda is now on-line at: www.ci.quincy.ma.us.

Harold thanked McCauley and Newton for the "kind words" in nominating him and congratulated Mayor Sheets and members of the council and school committee "as together we launch this term of office for our city government."

"I would also like to extend a special thanks to my city council colleagues for their election of me to serve as council president."

"It is an honor afforded to few individuals and I'm truly thankful and appreciative of this vote of confidence. As presiding officer I pledge to serve each one of you fairly and in accordance with our charter and operating rules."

size, particularly in the elementary grades, helps improve a student's learning ability. It allows for more one-on-one contact between the teacher and the students, enabling teachers to match different learning styles to the needs of the individual student.

"Small class size also helps improve communication between our schools and our parents," Bragg said. "This is an important link in our partnership to work together for the betterment of education. This system-wide priority of small class size has touched each and every one of our students and teachers."

The new vice chairwoman said the Mayor's School Building Needs Task Force, established in 1996, continues to work to oversee the building of a new comprehensive Quincy High School with state-of-the-art technical programs, computer labs, and classrooms; installation of new windows and shades at Atlantic and Broad Meadows, the complete remodeling of Sterling Middle School and renovation of the existing Quincy High School to serve as the future home of Central Middle School. The Task Force's plan includes improvements to every one of our school buildings and to the Faxon Field Recreational complex.

"This will continue to be a top priority for our schools for the next 10 years," Bragg said.

She also mentioned her long-time goal of having a full-time nurse in every school building became a reality last month. "Time and again, the need for a full-time nurse in every school has appeared as a request in many school councils' improvement plans. Parents and teachers have expressed this need due to more of our students requiring special medical attention, and having more special education students mainstreamed in our classrooms across the city."

"The priority now," Bragg said, "is to keep the funding in place to continue to maintain a nurse in every school building."

Bragg said she was honored to have the support of Mayor James Sheets, who serves as School Committee chairman by virtue of his capacity as mayor, and her School Committee colleagues.

"I will do my best in this new leadership role. As we embark on a new century, we need to prepare ourselves for the challenges ahead. The voters have brought together an incredible group of caring individuals to serve our most precious resource, the young people of Quincy. Each and every person on the School Committee brings a valuable voice, committed to the needs and concerns of education," she said.

Besides Bragg, Stice and McFarland, other elected members of the Quincy School Committee are Ron Mariano who has served 10 years on the committee; Christine Cedrone (four years); and the newest member, Bill Phelan, who was elected last fall.

Bragg encouraged local officials to listen to teachers and to work together for the betterment of Quincy public schools and the city.

"We must find ways to meet the needs of all our students. Quincy is a caring community. A city that values education. A city that is the model for all others in our strong business partnerships and community service learning programs. Together we can and will make a difference."

REAL ESTATE

Maintaining Human Touch Challenge Of High-Tech World

By CAROL BULMAN and now. According to a local trade journal, radio took 30 years to penetrate 50 million U.S. households; TV took 13 to do the same. The Internet, on the other hand, has reached this number of American homes in only four years.

According to the same source, 30 percent of consumers use on-line services as a resource in buying or selling a home. It's predicted that an estimated 25 percent of all mortgages will be applied for on-line by the year 2003.

As we work on our Conway Financial Services Web site, which will link with our parent company to serve Jack Conway customers, we need to stop and ask ourselves a question. What do we want our site to do and say to our customers? The Internet is an important tool in shopping for a home and mortgage, but we cannot overlook the human element in both processes.

I believe today's consumers use the Internet primarily to gather information from a variety of sources. These people are more knowledgeable than yesterday's customer is, and they use technology to make sound choices in mortgage financing. They know how to log on to a mortgage web site, run a quick self-qualification, sample some principal and interest payment options, and review different programs.

However, when the time comes to make a final decision, they turn away from the machine and toward the human being. Here at Conway Financial, the consumer finds a local presence, a company with integrity, a warm handshake, and a source of information. In the final analysis, each consumer has unique needs, and human interaction is necessary to identify and address those concerns. Our customers do not want to get lost in a maze of e-mail and voice messages. They need the human touch and are pleased to learn that it still exists.

As we venture down the web site construction road, we need to remember that our customers want speed, efficiency and technology, but also guidance, honesty and one-on-one advice.

There is another challenge facing electronic mortgage lending. While the pre-qualification and application state may be more convenient on-line, the processing of the paper remains the same. State and federal laws continue to require forms signed, copies kept and disclosure made. The good news is that the U.S. government is taking a hard look at making disclosures electronically, provided that a hard copy is printed and returned to the lender. Legislators are also considering the possibility of accepting on-line signatures.

In this era of instant access to pre-qualification, credit reports and financial information, our leaders will be forced to keep pace with

North Boys Bow In Tourney Title

Raiders Regroup Vs. Taunton, Falmouth

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy boys' basketball team had thoughts of an early New Year's celebration last week by stealing the Stoughton Holiday Tournament.

The Red Raiders took the first step in capturing the crown last Tuesday by edging powerhouse Boston Latin, 63-59, in the first round.

But in the championship game last Wednesday, North Quincy, once again, let a second-half lead slip away as it suffered a 61-54 setback to Natick.

North Quincy (2-4, 1-0) played Taunton Tuesday at home and will travel to Falmouth tomorrow (Friday).

Natick's Matt Thiffault poured in 22 points and earned tournament MVP honors.

"Once again our woes continued down the stretch," said coach Ted Stevenson. "We couldn't maintain it. We panicked a bit. Sometimes we go a little helter-skelter."

The Red Raiders held a 10-point lead with about five minutes left in the game before they skidded out and crashed. Turnovers and failure to execute offensively plagued them.

Junior guard Adam Wool led North Quincy with 15 points and sophomore guard Phil McGillicuddy added 14. Both players were named to the all-tourney team for their efforts.

Against Boston Latin, North Quincy jumped out to a 13-point lead but barely held on for the win. It was McGillicuddy's and Wool's clutch free throws that sealed the win.

McGillicuddy had the hot hand, finishing with a season-high 24 points while junior forward Mike Keddy chipped in with 12. Keddy, along with senior center Dan O'Toole controlled the boards for the Red Raiders.

Although they picked up the win, these second-half collapses are a concern to Stevenson. Earlier in the season, his team blew a 13-point lead to Randolph, and in the losses to Silver Lake and Norwood, North Quincy was in striking distance near the end of the game but was unable to come up with the big plays.

"It's frustrating," Stevenson said. "I honestly feel we should be 4-2 instead of 2-4. All we can do is work at it and put all the pieces together. Hopefully, it will come soon."

Head coach Kevin Craig said at the beginning of the Cranberry Holiday tournament that his Quincy Mite A travel team "will face Dorchester in the finals and win."

He was right. Quincy avenged a loss to Dorchester early in the year with a 7-3 whipping at the Hoback rink in Pembroke for the championship. Quincy went 5-0 in the tournament.

Forward Chris Brown staked Quincy to a 2-0 first-period lead. In the second he notched his third straight goal for a natural hat trick.

His linemates also picked it up as Patrick Young netted a pair of goals and Brandon Gilmore, voted the tournament's MVP, scored one for a 6-2 lead.

Andrew Bythrow scored in the third and Dorchester added a goal to close out the scoring.

Goalkeeper Stephen Barresi accepted the championship trophy for the team. Each player was presented with a trophy and a Cranberry Holiday tournament T-shirt.

GOALIE STEPHEN BARRESI holds the team championship trophy and player trophy after Quincy's 7-3 win over Dorchester.

North Girls Need Shooting Touch

The North Quincy girls' basketball team relies on its shooting. Actually, it lives or dies by it.

Case in point: last week's two-day Christmas tournament at North Quincy.

The Red Raiders (3-2, 1-0) were blown out by a strong Weymouth team, 71-48, in the first round last Monday and then bounced back the next day to squeak out a 58-55 overtime win over Archbishop Williams.

North Quincy played Barnstable Tuesday for the first of three straight home games. Yesterday (Wednesday) it took on Marshfield and tomorrow (Friday) it battles Silver Lake.

But it was the Weymouth game that showed what happens if North Quincy struggles with the outside shot.

After falling behind by 12 points early in the first half, the Red Raiders warmed up as senior guard Jill Nicholson (23 points) drilled four three-pointers to pull her team within five, 31-26, at the break.

But an ice storm hit the second half as they shot only 26 percent (7 of 27) to Weymouth's 53 percent.

"It was unbelievable," said Doug MacFarlane, who is in his second year as head coach. "We couldn't buy a basket and it seemed like Weymouth couldn't miss."

"We're the type of team that if we don't shoot well, we're not going to win."

Against Archbishop Williams, North Quincy scored a couple baskets and hit all four free throws in OT to pull out the win. Nicholson, who was named to the all-tourney team, scored 17 points, sophomore forward Lauren Sleeth added 12 and junior guard Casey Ridge 11.

Archbishop Williams' Leigh Johnston tallied a game-high 20 points.

MacFarlane said his team will run and press this season as a way to create offense and so far Sleeth has been the catalyst.

"She's the key to our running game," MacFarlane said. "She's always looking to get up the floor. As she goes, we go."

The addition of Ridge, a transfer from Fontbonne, should help take some pressure of Nicholson who can concentrate on her shooting.

"If Jill is on fire we have a great chance of winning," MacFarlane said. "She can shoot the ball from anywhere on the floor. She's deadly."

Last season, North Quincy finished with a 7-11 record but seven of those losses were by 10 points or less. MacFarlane feels his team has a chance to jump to the top of the league.

"I think we can be in the top echelon of the league if we play to our potential," he said. "We're going to give everybody a good game like we did last year. We just couldn't finish the close games. But this year I think we're more mature."

North Quincy beat Randolph, 45-36, in the season opener Dec. 17. Freshman April Suprey had 10 points, five rebounds and three steals and Ridge had 11 points and four steals.

In the second game Dec. 21, it routed Silver Lake, 60-44, behind Nicholson's 20 points. Sleeth scored 14. North Quincy lost its first game of the season, 40-39, against Randolph Dec. 23.

Ally Sleiman Eyes Greco-Roman Bid Former Quincy High Wrestler Pursuing Olympic Dream

By CHRIS POISSON

Ally Sleiman has popped up on the Olympic wrestling radar screen much like the way St. Louis Rams' quarterback Kurt Warner invaded the NFL this season.

Virtually, by surprise.

In less than three years the 25-year-old Quincy native has gone from an assistant wrestling coach and grad student, thinking his career was pinned to the mats, to the No. 2 ranked grappler in the nation for his age group, with a legitimate shot at making the Greco-Roman wrestling team for the upcoming 2000 Olympic Games in Sydney, Australia.

"Since I've been out of college I've been working hard at this goal, and in the last year it has really materialized," says Sleiman, during a recent break from training. "A year ago if you had told me I'd be in the situation I'm in today I wouldn't have believed you."

Believe it.

All Sleiman has to do is win one of four Regional tournaments beginning in April to move on to the Final Olympic Team Trials starting June 21. Considering he's won the last two Northern Regional Championships without allowing a single point (54-0), his chances of advancing look good.

Although it's a surprise to Sleiman, his rapid rise to the top is not much of a shell-shock to those who know him best. After all, he captured the state championship at Quincy High School in 1992 and won over 100 matches at Wilkes University, where he was a 1997 NCAA East Regional Runner-up, two-time NCAA National Qualifier and two-time NCAA Academic All-American.

"He's an extremely hard worker, ever since his sophomore year in high school," says Lou Venturilli, his former wrestling coach at Quincy. "He works hard at being just the best wrestler he can be."

"He's internally motivated. No one needs to tell him what he has to do. I think he's out to achieve his goal. And he's definitely doing that."

After his days at Wilkes, Sleiman became an assistant coach at Southern Connecticut State University where he entertained the thoughts of a possible coaching career.

But that career path has been on hold since May of 1997 when he went to visit a friend in Kansas and decided to enter a tournament.

"I was like, 'Whatever. I'm here. I might as well,'" says Sleiman. "I didn't have any idea how I was going to do."

Didn't have any idea how he was going to do. He simply took Kansas by storm, dropping each opponent as he breezed to a first-place finish. And it has been all uphill since. He still has plans to coach. He just has to take care of some other things first.

"I want to get into coaching eventually," says Sleiman. "There's no way I can do it now, with all the training and traveling. But I volunteer as an assistant at Quincy High School. I stop in when ever I have a chance, which isn't a lot."

In 1998, Sleiman trained full time at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs, Colo. where he quickly made a name for himself in the wrestling circuit.

"He's improving every day," says Steve Fraser, who coached him at the Colorado training center and who's also a 1984 Olympic gold medalist. "He still has some things to do in certain areas. But the name of the game is improving. He's getting better on his feet and on the mat."

For someone who's on the brink of stardom and has a lot of upside, you would think he'd have fun wrestling.

ALLY SLEIMAN (top) of Quincy has been named a resident athlete at the U.S. Olympic Education/Training Center at North Michigan University in Marquette, Mich., where he will begin full-time training in January. Sleiman is making an Olympic bid in Greco-Roman wrestling for the 2000 Olympics in Sydney, Australia. He is shown here wrestling a Syracuse opponent, who he beat, 8-3, in a 1996 match while attending Wilkes University.

"Wrestling is not fun. There's nothing fun about wrestling," admits Sleiman. So what keeps him going?

"The satisfaction of winning. There's no other feeling like that."

And over the past year he has tasted his share of victories.

He was the Northern Regional champion for the second straight year. He also won the crown at the New York International Open. And he was runner-up at the University National Championships where he ran into an old nemesis — No. 1 ranked James Shillow of Quantico, Va.

"I should have won the Nationals," says Sleiman. "I've thought about the last seconds of that match probably about two thousand times over the last year. It could've went either way. It was real close."

"I'm 0-2 against this guy. Hopefully the third time is a charm for me. He knows I'll be gunning for him this time, though."

With his success at Colorado and with the Minnesota Storm wrestling club in Minneapolis, Minn., Sleiman has been named by USA Wrestling as a resident athlete at the U.S. Olympic Education/Training Center at Northern Michigan University in Marquette, Mich., where he will begin full-time training in January and finish grad school.

"It will be a challenge," says Gordy Morgan, head coach at the Northern Michigan University training center and a 1996 Olympian and a 1995 World Cup silver medalist. "It will be a worthwhile, little adventure. We're going to work him as hard as he has in his life."

Most wrestlers reach their peak around the age of 28-30 and although Sleiman is young and a relative newcomer to Greco-Roman style wrestling, he feels he has enough experience to flourish at the next level.

"If I do make the Olympic team I won't be intimidated by anyone," says Sleiman. "I've wrestled the best in the world. I've wrestled in tournaments in other countries. I've been there."

"I think he has a shot but there's some strong competition," says Fraser. "It's probably more realistic to say he has a shot at the next [Olympics], but you never know."

"He's got a good chance," says Morgan. "He's like a lot of guys his age. He has a lot of potential. He's hard working. He's dedicated."

Sleiman has one thing going for him — he has trained with the best and has been coached by the best.

Along with Morgan and Fraser, Sleiman has also been coached by Dan Chandler of the Minnesota Storm, who's also the head coach of the 2000 U.S. Greco-Roman wrestling team and a former three-time U.S. Olympian.

"If you put yourself in that atmosphere and practice with guys that are the best, you're going to be the best," says Sleiman.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Winter Can Be Especially Hard On Older People

Tips To Prevent Putting Your Health On Ice

Winter in New England can be a wonderful time. Long evenings spent before a cozy fire. Images of gently falling snow. A steaming cup of cocoa.

But winter isn't always so lovely. The season can put all people at risk for a variety of accidents and ailments. Some can be life-threatening, especially for older people.

"Older people have special challenges in the winter," said Kate Ackerman, M.D., a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Geriatric Medicine who specializes in geriatrics and is an associate clinical professor of medicine at the Boston University School of Medicine. "They experience the cold differently from younger people, and they are less able to adjust to harsh weather."

If you are growing older yourself, of it you have relatives, friends or neighbors who are getting on in years, this is a good time to review some precautions that will keep health and safety in from the cold.

Be Aware Of Carbon Monoxide Dangers

Older people need warmer surroundings than younger people. Their metabolism is different, and many prescription medicines make them "feel the cold" more readily. So the heat is on, and houses and apartments are buttoned up to prevent drafts and lost heat. That could lead in turn to an emerging threat to the elderly (along with children, pregnant women and people with lung disease) of carbon monoxide poisoning. Nearly 300 people die each year as a result of carbon monoxide exposure, according to the American Lung Association, and thousands more become ill or seek medical attention.

Any fuel-burning appliance that's not properly maintained or ventilated can be a source of carbon monoxide. This includes any kind of gas appliance, fireplaces, wood or coal stoves, space heaters, and charcoal grills, to name a few.

The American Lung Association says that heating systems, chimneys and flues should be inspected and cleaned by a qualified technician every year. Don't use ovens and gas ranges to heat a home. And install a carbon monoxide detector with an audible alarm.

Eat Well, And Drink Plenty Of Water

Good food and lots of water play an especially important role in helping to fend off wintertime diseases and to avoid the drying effects of indoor heating on aging skin.

"Water is incredibly important, especially in the winter," Dr. Ackerman said. "It vastly improves circulation, and it's especially vital for anyone with chronic illnesses, such as diabetes, and anyone on blood pressure medication, among others. Juices, herbal tea, and broth soups can provide much-needed water, nutrition, and warmth."

And that centuries-old remedy for everything that ails you—chicken soup—is steadily finding new proponents among medical professionals. Evidence continues to mount that chicken soup is full of biological compounds that do good things for the body and for the health, as well as for the soul.

So remember to eat well, and see to it that your older relatives, friends and neighbors do so as well. Check in with them regularly to make sure they are eating properly and have the food and supplies they need as well as the medications they need (especially since winter weather may make it tough to pick up refills) and they are taking their medications correctly. Be sure they have sufficient heat. Offer to pick up groceries for them during your regular trips to the market. Or better yet, help establish a "buddy system" for daily contact. Social service organizations, churches and senior centers can be helpful with that.

Reduce The Risks Of Falls

The best advice for elders, should the snow and ice really pile up, is to stay indoors but stay active until venturing out becomes safer. Good advice, but not always practical. Here are some methods to help avoid injuries from falls:

Keep stairs, driveways and walkways as clear as possible, which for elders means hiring help to shovel, plow or sand. A word about shoveling snow yourself: If you are normally inactive, or are already at risk for heart attack, don't. Everyone needs exercise, but not the kind of very intense, very heavy and prolonged lifting that too often proves fatal. In fact, it's always a good idea to seek the advice of your physician before shoveling snow.

If you are a senior, have your vision checked frequently, so you can see ice or other hazards in their path. Good lighting also helps. Handrails on stairs and along walkways provide extra and important assistance in all kinds of weather. Weather-appropriate footwear reduces the risk of a fall caused by slippery surfaces.

A key in preventing falls (and easing the effects of a fall if you do have one) is improving fitness through exercise. Most experts believe that fitness problems account for the increased rate of falls among older persons. And age-related loss of bone strength is an important factor in the higher incidence of fractures among older persons.

This doesn't mean that an older person should aspire to be an Olympic athlete. It simply means that any level of regular exercise can work wonders in improving fitness and in imparting important self-confidence.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

Why do my hearing aids whistle?

This is probably the most frequently asked question about hearing aids.

The most common reason is that the aid is a bit loose in your ear, allowing the sound to leak out of your ear and re-enter into its own microphone, hence the term "feedback".

Solution: If the aid is under warranty have it recased; if not have it coated with Ultra Violet plastics (preferred material) or something comparable in order to tighten the fit.

The other reasons for "feedback" are a malfunction in the aid itself or the ear may be impacted with wax. Remember this, your hearing aid should not whistle at your comfortable listening level unless you cover it, make exaggerated jaw motions or have a profound loss. Have a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist take care of it, because when it whistles you are losing out on what you want to hear!

Winter Can Be Especially Hard On Older People

Tips To Prevent Putting Your Health On Ice

Winter in New England can be a wonderful time. Long evenings spent before a cozy fire. Images of gently falling snow. A steaming cup of cocoa.

But winter isn't always so lovely. The season can put all people at risk for a variety of accidents and ailments. Some can be life-threatening, especially for older people.

"Older people have special challenges in the winter," said Kate Ackerman, M.D., a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Geriatric Medicine who specializes in geriatrics and is an associate clinical professor of medicine at the Boston University School of Medicine. "They experience the cold differently from younger people, and they are less able to adjust to harsh weather."

If you are growing older yourself, of it you have relatives, friends or neighbors who are getting on in years, this is a good time to review some precautions that will keep health and safety in from the cold.

Be Aware Of Carbon Monoxide Dangers

Older people need warmer surroundings than younger people. Their metabolism is different, and many prescription medicines make them "feel the cold" more readily. So the heat is on, and houses and apartments are buttoned up to prevent drafts and lost heat. That could lead in turn to an emerging threat to the elderly (along with children, pregnant women and people with lung disease) of carbon monoxide poisoning. Nearly 300 people die each year as a result of carbon monoxide exposure, according to the American Lung Association, and thousands more become ill or seek medical attention.

Any fuel-burning appliance that's not properly maintained or ventilated can be a source of carbon monoxide. This includes any kind of gas appliance, fireplaces, wood or coal stoves, space heaters, and charcoal grills, to name a few.

The American Lung Association says that heating systems, chimneys and flues should be inspected and cleaned by a qualified technician every year. Don't use ovens and gas ranges to heat a home. And install a carbon monoxide detector with an audible alarm.

Eat Well, And Drink Plenty Of Water

Good food and lots of water play an especially important role in helping to fend off wintertime diseases and to avoid the drying effects of indoor heating on aging skin.

"Water is incredibly important, especially in the winter," Dr. Ackerman said. "It vastly improves circulation, and it's especially vital for anyone with chronic illnesses, such as diabetes, and anyone on blood pressure medication, among others. Juices, herbal tea, and broth soups can provide much-needed water, nutrition, and warmth."

And that centuries-old remedy for everything that ails you--chicken soup--is steadily finding new proponents among medical professionals. Evidence continues to mount that chicken soup is full of biological compounds that do good things for the body and for the health, as well as for the soul.

So remember to eat well, and see to it that your older relatives, friends and neighbors do so as well. Check in with them regularly to make sure they are eating properly and have the food and supplies they need as well as the medications they need (especially since winter weather may make it tough to pick up refills) and they are taking their medications correctly. Be sure they have sufficient heat. Offer to pick up groceries for them during your regular trips to the market. Or better yet, help establish a "buddy system" for daily contact. Social service organizations, churches and senior centers can be helpful with that.

Reduce The Risks Of Falls

The best advice for elders, should the snow and ice really pile up, is to stay indoors but stay active until venturing out becomes safer. Good advice, but not always practical. Here are some methods to help avoid injuries from falls:

Keep stairs, driveways and walkways as clear as possible, which for elders means hiring help to shovel, plow or sand. A word about shoveling snow yourself: If you are normally inactive, or are already at risk for heart attack, don't. Everyone needs exercise, but not the kind of very intense, very heavy and prolonged lifting that too often proves fatal. In fact, it's always a good idea to seek the advice of your physician before shoveling snow.

If you are a senior, have your vision checked frequently, so you can see ice or other hazards in their path. Good lighting also helps. Handrails on stairs and along walkways provide extra and important assistance in all kinds of weather. Weather-appropriate footwear reduces the risk of a fall caused by slippery surfaces.

A key in preventing falls (and easing the effects of a fall if you do have one) is improving fitness through exercise. Most experts believe that fitness problems account for the increased rate of falls among older persons. And age-related loss of bone strength is an important factor in the higher incidence of fractures among older persons.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Have you ever noticed those persons who think twice before making a promise can usually be counted on to keep the promise? Careless promises should never be given - or counted upon. A promise that can cause discomfort, harm or injustice to yourself - or to others - should never be made, no matter how much prodding or persuasion is involved.

It is usually very easy to make a promise... Expediency or change of mind is seldom a justified excuse for breaking a promise. A promise involves honor, duty and ethics... The best promise you can make - is a promise to yourself... Promise yourself you will never make a promise to anyone, unless you are fully prepared and able to keep your promise... In addition to spiritual benefit, it is a good way to gain honor, stature, praise and prestige among men...

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Socializing gets you out of your shell, and then you become the life of the party! Partners are on the same wavelength. The weekend promises to be fun.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A private talk relates to financial interests. Your ideas elicit positive feedback. Couples are in happy agreement about mutual concerns.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) In-depth thinking leads to accomplishments. It's a great week for making travel plans and for discussions with advisers. This weekend, your confidence grows.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You're very much on the ball where career interests are concerned. Talks with those in authority bring happy results. Finances take a turn for the better.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You'll be putting the finishing touches on a creative project. You'll enjoy remarkable rapport with a friend. This weekend, you make plans to give a party.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Bring work home from the office if necessary. A private talk relates to a family concern. You'll accomplish much from behind the scenes. Mental interests are favored at night.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Although it's a good time for making new starts, you still have to exercise diplomacy in your dealings. Don't become bossy. Things should go your way.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) It should be a moneymaking week for you, with important career doors opening. Concentration powers are excellent. Guard against overspending.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It's an excellent week for reaching agreements with others. One person might need more time to make up his or her mind, however. Some will be making travel plans.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You'll be busy at work this week. Talks relating to financial interests are favored. You'll receive helpful advice.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're in a no-nonsense mood. However, later in the week, the accent is on having fun, and that's just what you'll be doing. Enjoy romance and entertainment this weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You'll have extra incentive and will accomplish more than usual. Further your career by exercising initiative. It's a week of progress!

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: Although conservative, you are quite willing to take a chance when it suits your purposes. You are not afraid of upsetting the status quo. Ambitious, you will work hard to achieve your goals.

South Shore Savings Bank Wins 9th Straight Chamber Success Award

For the ninth consecutive year, South Shore Savings Bank has received a Success Profiles Award from the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, announces Arthur R. Connelly, president and chief executive officer.

The award recognizes member companies whose activities have contributed to economic growth and employment opportunities in the region.

To qualify for the annual Chamber award, recipients must have achieved a minimum 15 percent increase in staffing or net income over the previous three years, or must have increased its real estate space occupancy by at least 15 percent during that time. South Shore Savings Bank surpassed the Award criteria in all three categories.

South Shore Savings Bank was established with the merger of South Weymouth Savings Bank and Weymouth Savings Bank in October, 1997. Since then the employee population doubled to 180 employees, and net income increased by 35 percent. In addition, the bank built a new 10,000-square foot building at 370 Quincy Ave. in Quincy, in order to provide a convenient, full-service office for businesses and individuals in the community.

"The South Shore has always been our primary marketplace," said Connelly, and despite the changes going on in the banking landscape around us, we intend to continue to grow our branch network and to retain the spirit of the community banking for the people who live and work here."

South Shore Savings Bank, which operates under an 1833 state charter, has 10 offices in the South Shore communities of East Bridgewater, Hanover, Quincy, and Weymouth including an Educational and Training Facility at Weymouth High School, Member of FDIC., Member of DIF.

Hancock Park Adult Day Health Center Offers Member Discount

Hancock Park Adult Day Health Center, 164 Parkway, announces that only 10 openings remain for new member enrollment.

"To support our goal of full enrollment, we are offering a 10 percent discount for the first two months for new members," said Claudia Rasmussen, Adult Day Health Director.

Hancock Park Adult Day Health Center is a medical adult day health center that offers a structured, supervised six-hour community program for seniors. The community-based service program includes a variety of health, social, and support services in a protective setting during daytime hours. The program is designed to meet the individual needs of functionally compromised adults. Members of the Adult Day Health Center begin their program at 9 a.m. Activities include crossword puzzles, Wheel of Fortune Games, poetry writing, acrylic painting classes, Tai Chi, exercise programs, sing-a-longs, and multi-denominational religious services.

There is a continental breakfast, a full-course lunch, and an afternoon snack. Once a month, there is a van trip and special entertainment.

A registered nurse is on staff to manage the medical needs of the members. A personal care program includes a whirlpool bath or a shower and the services of a hairdresser or a barber. Safe and dependable transportation services are provided. Hancock Park Adult Day Health has contracts with Medicaid and South Shore Elder Services. For more information, or to schedule a tour, call (617) 773-4222.

Coleen McSweeney Human Resources Coordinator For Dependable Cleaners

based dry cleaning chain.

McSweeney, a Holbrook resident, will oversee the human resources functions for the 15 Dependable Cleaners, located throughout Boston and the South Shore. She has previously served similar duties with Snyder Communications and the H.L. Yoh Company. She is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, Dartmouth, and holds a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Management.

Established in 1944, Dependable Cleaners is a third-generation family-run business. Since 1996, total staffing at the company's 15 locations has grown from 150 to 216 employees.

the changes, but perhaps not as quickly as we might like them to.

Recently, a customer named Jim White applied for a loan with Conway Financial Services. He had started his application process with an "Internet lender" and had become disenchanted and frustrated. Jim spoke with me and shared his thoughts.

His concern was not so much that the lender was an Internet company, but that he had no way of researching the reputation of the firm. In fact, it was a "faceless" operation that promised much and delivered little. After a number of pitfalls and breakdowns in communications, he found that he had no control over the process, and no representative to go to bat for him.

Jim's advice to all Internet lending institutions is to attempt to create a Web site that offers the same "warm and fuzzies" that a consumer could expect when meeting face to face with a mortgage counselor.

"Consumers should be able to research the background and reputation of an on-line lender, and find a company that is ethical, professional, and customer-oriented," said Jim. "While an Internet lender cannot literally shake your hand, it can offer you the kind of trust and service that a warm handshake represents."

I'm happy that this customer shared his thoughts on electronic lending with me. The mortgage business is not about the "haves" and "have-nots." It's about the companies who can offer all the bells and whistles of technology without compromising the bottom line -- exceptional customer service.

So, if you're in the market for mortgage financing,

I urge you to shop the Internet for information. But when you're ready to make your final decision, turn off the computer and turn to a company that offers not only a web site, but also a physical presence, and the human touch that will support and guide you every step of the way.

recommended tax incentives for new businesses. Sheets cited the $250,000 in Community Development Block Grants which go to Quincy 2000 and the capital improvements, such as the new Quincy Concourse, which support the business community.

"This administration has been very pro-business," Sheets said. "And I hope that that fact would be recognized."

Sons Of Italy Appeal Awaits ABCC Review

The Quincy Sons of Italy has appealed the actions of the License Board taken last month to suspend their alcoholic license for seven days. The days picked by the board to close the club were to be Jan. 2-8. However, Chairman Joseph Shea said the club had five days in which to appeal, and did so on Dec. 23.

Shea said no further action will be taken by the License Board until they year from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission (ABCC).

In other business, the board granted a transfer of a common victualer license held by Peter Jae of Timmy Bakery on 412 Hancock St. to Contempo Bakery, Sau W. Chan and Ma & Cong Y. Cao, new owners.

Foot Notes
by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

OH THOSE AGING FEET!

For older people, impairment of the lower extremities is a leading cause of activity limitation. Feet problems, many of which are preventable, can lead to pain in the knees, hips and lower back. Many foot ailments stem from years of neglect or abuse, but most can be successfully treated. As people age, their feet tend to spread and lose the fatty pads that cushion the soles. Extra weight can affect bone and ligament structure. Dry skin and brittle nails are also common in older people. The benefits of preventive foot health care are many. It can increase comfort; heighten the chance of earlier diagnosis of systemic conditions like arthritis, diabetes and circulatory disease; and reduce the risk of infection.

Listen to your feet. They often have lots of things to tell you, such as giving you clues about the rest of your body's well being. When your feet tell you there's trouble, as your podiatrist, we will work as a team with you, and other health care providers if appropriate, to keep you and your feet healthy and pain free. From aging feet to baby's little toes, we offer foot care for the family at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. Please call 617-472-3466 for an appointment.

P.S. Because of the body changes that accompany the aging process, older people should have their feet measured frequently.

'We're Seeing More And Sicker Patients'

Flu Season In Full Swing

DR. VICTOR PINKES checks a patient in the Quincy Medical Center Emergency Department which has seen a large increase in flu related symptoms.

By CRAIG SALTERS

The flu season, which hit earlier and harder this year, isn't over yet.

The bug has left the area reeling with hospitals, medical clinics and doctors' offices filled and with workers off the job and home in bed.

And there is more to come.

Dr. Octavio Diaz, chief of Emergency Services at Quincy Medical Center, reports a "significant increase" in both emergency department volume and overall hospital admissions, attributing the increase to flu and complications from the flu such as bronchitis or pneumonia. Dr. Diaz also said this year's flu strains were more severe than those of years past. "We're seeing more patients, but we're also seeing sicker patients," Diaz said.

Dr. Diaz said a major concern right now is the city's elderly who are most affected by one of the flu's most common side effects: dehydration. Dehydration, Dr. Diaz said, is a serious condition which can even affect cardiac medications. Dr. Diaz urged young and old alike to stay well-hydrated and added, "If you have a friend or family member or neighbor who is elderly, now is a great time to check in on them."

DR. OCTAVIO DIAZ

Ellen Hafer, executive director of the Manet Health Center, said that the center's four sites were "bombed with calls" seeking flu relief and that in the past two weeks flu calls have averaged roughly 200 per week, although some of those cases turn out to be pneumonia or sinusitis. "We're seeing the side effects of the full hospitals," Hafer said, adding that the center was handling the situation but that appointments were filling up faster and hospital referrals were harder to obtain. Manet staff, said Hafer, agreed that this was one of the busier cycles in recent

Harold Names Committees

McCauley, Hanley, Newton Get Top Council Posts

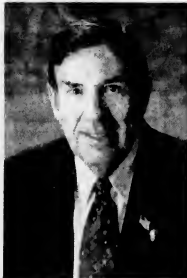

Veteran Councillor Frank McCauley and freshmen Greg Hanley and Joseph Newton will head up three of the City Council's major committees.

Council President Paul Harold Tuesday tapped McCauley as chairman of the powerful Finance Committee and Hanley and Newton as chairmen of the Ordinance and Oversight Committees respectively.

The three committees are the only full council membership.

Newton will serve as vice-chairman of the Finance Committee and Steve Durkin and Patrick McDermott as vice-chairmen of the Ordinance and Oversight Committees.

McCauley was also named chairman of the Veterans and Library Committees with Hanley and Tim Cahill vice chairmen respectively.

FRANK MCCAULEY

JOSEPH NEWTON

GREG HANLEY

Hanley was also named chairman of the Public Safety Committee with Dan Raymond as vice chairman.

Michael D'Amico will head up the Public Works Committee with Raymond as vice-chairman.

McDermott will be Parks & Recreation Committee chairman with Hanley as vice-chairman.

Cahill will be Rules

Committee chairman with McCauley as vice-chairman. Raymond will head the Senior Citizens Committee with D'Amico vice-chairman.

Durkin will be Education Committee chairman with Raymond as vice chairman.

McDermott will be Downtown Committee chairman with Cahill vice-chairman.

D'Amico will be the Disabilities Committee chairman with McCauley as vice-chairman.

Harold noted that he made no appointments to the Hospital Committee which will be abolished because the City Council will not be involved with the new Quincy Medical Center as it was with the former Quincy Hospital.

Quincy Point Liquor License Transfer Continued To Jan. 25

Atty. Louis Cassis, representing the owner of the 11th Chapter Saloon at 536 Washington St., told the License Board Tuesday, he was "adamantly opposed" to a continuance for a request of a transfer of the liquor license.

The License Board however, voted to continue the hearing until Jan. 25.

Calling the situation a "Red Herring," Cassis said he fears that Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymond has a "plan afoot" and will probably spend "two or three hours" discussing this in two weeks.

Cassis said the present owner Steven Barrett has been trying to sell the establishment for two years, with one buyer dropping out because of delays. He added that the "facts are not going to change in two weeks," and continued "there is no reason to believe that the transfer won't be allowed."

Chairman Joseph Shea said he had "no crystal ball" and was not "making any predictions."

Raymond, who was seen at the city hall chambers did not speak at Tuesday's meeting.

Cassis said he had only heard of the two week continuance Tuesday morning and said he "had no idea" why it happened.

Weymouth's recently adopted mayor-council form of government is good for Weymouth and good for Quincy, said Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets, who said he has met several times with newly-elected and first-ever Weymouth Mayor David Madden in the past few months, sees Weymouth's change of government as a chance to work more closely with the town on issues that affect the South Shore, especially the Fore River Basin which the two communities share.

Ryan: New Job Too Good To Pass Up

Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan, who resigned last week as president of Quincy College over issues of control, said that he would miss Quincy but that his new job was too good to pass up.

Ryan has accepted the presidency of Raritan Valley Community College in northern New Jersey and will begin his duties in March.

"The real motivation for me was that this was a tremendous opportunity for me and my family," Ryan said, adding that he and his wife Gail regret leaving Quincy but have family ties in the New Jersey area.

Raritan Valley is a community college sponsored by the State of New Jersey and Hunterdon and Somerset counties. The college has a 240-acre campus about 30 miles west of New York City. The area is ranked in the top ten in the nation for population and growth.

The college serves 11,000 credit students each year in 73 degree and certificate programs. It also serves over 4,000 professionals through its corporate training programs. It has an annual budget of $28 million.

Ryan will be the chief executive officer with administrative responsibility for all functions at the college. The board has granted him an initial three-year contract. The compensation package is still to be worked out but the total will be in the $140,000 to $160,000 range.

Ryan submitted his resignation at Quincy College Jan. 7 following a dispute with the board of governors over control of the school's business affairs.

In December the board of governors made the college's chief financial officer directly accountable to the board instead of the college.

Ryan objected to the move, arguing that his contract stipulated direct oversight of the school's employees and business affairs.

Although Ryan was upset about the board's decision, he said it was the great opportunity in New Jersey, and not the dispute with the board, which was the overriding factor in his decision to leave Quincy College.

"The concerns I had about the Quincy job led me to look," Ryan said, "but those concerns were really secondary to the tremendous opportunity at Raritan.

"The school is twice as big as Quincy College, has twice the student body and budget, has a 240-acre traditional campus in a suburban setting. Those are all real positives."

Ryan also said that, unlike Quincy College, Raritan offered three major provisions: a three-year contract; an annual presidential evaluation system; and power over all employees.

Ryan said he was still in discussion with the board concerning "the best transition" but that his resignation would take effect between now and March 15 at the latest.

"I just feel lucky for both me and my family," said Ryan, who has been president of Quincy College since March of 1996.

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairperson of the Quincy College Board of Governors, said Ryan's decision came at a good time for both Ryan and the college. Said Lord-Piatelli:

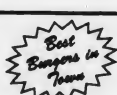

"Jerry Ryan's departure comes at a time when the college is probably best prepared to transition. The combination of a strong leadership team, built by Jerry, and the arrival of Blaine Yost as the new chief financial officer, places everyone in a position of strength... including Jerry who has accepted a wonderful opportunity at Raritan Valley.

"The board is committed to assuring stability and continuity for the entire college community. We are enthusiastic about the coming semester and have every confidence in the college officers. Quincy College's richest asset is its employees and students and we shall work with them to continue our mission and purpose."

Cedrone To Chair Budget, Finance; McFarland To Lead Building Needs Bragg Establishes Six School Sub-Committees

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
School Committee Vice Chairwoman Jo-Ann Bragg has established six sub-committees and appointed chairmen and members who will serve on the sub-committees for the coming year.

"Each and every sub-committee is important," said Bragg, who will serve as an ex-officio member of the sub-committees as the vice-chairwoman of the entire school committee. She is responsible for appointing chairmen and members to serve on the sub-committees as vice-chairwoman of the school committee.

The six subcommittees, chairmen and members are:

- Budget and Finance, Christine Cedrone chairwoman, William Phelan and Bragg members.

- Building Needs, Mike McFarland chairman, Linda Stice and Ron Mariano members.

- Health and Safety, Mariano chairman, McFarland and Bragg members.

- School Policy, Stice chairwoman, Phelan and Mariano members.

- Special Education, Phelan chairman, Cedrone and McFarland members.

- Rules/Post Audit and Oversight, Bragg chairwoman, Cedrone and Stice members.

JO-ANN BRAGG

The Budget and Finance Sub-Committee, Bragg said, works directly with the school superintendent. The superintendent formulates the budget with department heads and presents the spending plan to the school committee.

Bragg said the subcommittee has two main objectives: fill needs that exist in the school system, and arrive at the mayor's bottom line figure for the budget.

"It's probably the most important sub-committee," Bragg said. "Everything we do as a school system is tied into the budget."

The Building Needs Sub-Committee, Bragg said, will be "crucial" over the next decade as it works with the Mayor's Task Force to set priorities for physical improvements to school building. Bragg said she appointed McFarland chairman since he was a member of the mayor's original task force and has since become city auditor. "He has considerable insight as to the needs of our school buildings and the city budget," Bragg said.

Among the key projects which will be addressed are new windows at the Broad Meadows and Atlantic Middle Schools, a new Quincy

High School, and renovating Sterling Middle School and the present Quincy High School which is slated to become the new Central Middle School.

As for Health and Safety, Bragg said different issues are referred to this subcommittee, such as requiring staff to be CPR certified and positioning nurses in every school. "It oversees needs throughout the system in terms of health and safety," Bragg said.

School Policy, Bragg said, is as important a subcommittee as budget and finance. "Any policy that we set as a school committee must go through this sub-committee," she said. Recently enacted policies include a health policy and an Internet policy.

Bragg said one priority for the school policy subcommittee is to examine the interviewing and screening process for administrative and management positions such as school principals and department heads.

Special Education Sub-Committee addresses special ed needs and concerns as a school system. It is unique in that it is the only sub-committee with meets directly with an active parent group, the Special Education Political Action Committee, Bragg said.

"These parents have been active with special ed for many, many years," she said. We listen to what they have to say. There's a direct parent tie-in."

Bragg said she appointed Phelan as special ed subcommittee chairman for two reasons. First, he has been meeting with the Special Ed PAC. Second, he is an attorney and many of the special ed policies stem from state law governing special education.

Bragg combined the Rules Sub-Committee with the Post Audit and Oversight Committee. This subcommittee looks into the budget and sets rules and guidelines for other subcommittees to report back to the school committee.

"Sometimes issues sit in committee too long," said Bragg, who is the seventh year and her second term as a member of the Quincy School Committee.

PEAK PREVIEW

While torque may be defined as rotating force, horsepower is the measurement of torque through a specific amount of time. In terms that an auto enthusiast can understand, torque is the muscular accelerating force felt at low engine rpm, and horsepower is the busy high-rpm power that drivers encounter when revving the engine. There is a host of factors that help to determine whether an engine is torquey, a high-rpm revver, or something in between. By paying particular attention to the rpm that the horsepower and torque peaks obtained, auto enthusiasts can get a feel for how the engine will perform. The rule of thumb is that torque takes on increased significance at a lower rpm peak. Is your engine running rough, does it hesitate when you accelerate? Bring it to us. The Budget and Finance Sub-Committee, Bragg said, works directly with the school superintendent. The superintendent formulates the budget with department heads and presents the spending plan to the school committee.

Bragg said the subcommittee has two main objectives: fill needs that exist in the school system, and arrive at the mayor's bottom line figure for the budget.

"It's probably the most important sub-committee," Bragg said. "Everything we do as a school system is tied into the budget."

The Building Needs Sub-Committee, Bragg said, will be "crucial" over the next decade as it works with the Mayor's Task Force to set priorities for physical improvements to school building. Bragg said she appointed McFarland chairman since he was a member of the mayor's original task force and has since become city auditor. "He has considerable insight as to the needs of our school buildings and the city budget," Bragg said.

Among the key projects which will be addressed are new windows at the Broad Meadows and Atlantic Middle Schools, a new Quincy

High School, and renovating Sterling Middle School and the present Quincy High School which is slated to become the new Central Middle School.

As for Health and Safety, Bragg said different issues are referred to this sub-committee, such as requiring staff to be CPR certified and positioning nurses in every school. "It oversees needs throughout the system in terms of health and safety," Bragg said.

School Policy, Bragg said, is as important a sub-committee as budget and finance. "Any policy that we set as a school committee must go through this sub-committee," she said. Recently enacted policies include a health policy and an Internet policy.

Bragg said one priority for the school policy sub-committee is to examine the interviewing and screening process for administrative and management positions such as school principals and department heads.

Special Education Sub-Committee addresses special ed needs and concerns

as a school system. It is unique in that it is the only sub-committee with meets directly with an active parent group, the Special Education Political Action Committee, Bragg said.

"These parents have been active with special ed for many, many years," she said. We listen to what they have to say. There's a direct parent tie-in."

Bragg said she appointed Phelan as special ed sub-committee chairman for two reasons. First, he has been meeting with the Special Ed PAC. Second, he is an attorney and many of the special ed policies stem from state law governing special education.

Bragg combined the Rules Sub-Committee with the Post Audit and Oversight Committee. This sub-committee looks into the budget and sets rules and guidelines for other sub-committees to report back to the school committee.

"Sometimes issues sit in committee too long," said Bragg, who is the seventh year and her second term as a member of the Quincy School Committee.

PEAK PREVIEW

While torque may be defined as rotating force, horsepower is the measurement of torque through a specific amount of time. In terms that an auto enthusiast can understand, torque is the muscular accelerating force felt at low engine rpm, and horsepower is the busy high-rpm power that drivers encounter when revving the engine. There is a host of factors that help to determine whether an engine is torquey, a high-rpm revver, or something in between. By paying particular attention to the rpm that the horsepower and torque peaks obtained, auto enthusiasts can get a feel for how the engine will perform. The rule of thumb is that torque takes on increased significance at a lower rpm peak. Is your engine running rough, does it hesitate when you accelerate? Bring it to us. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every system in your car. Tax Filing Deadline Extended To April 18

With the tax-filing season underway, taxpayers should take note: this year the taxman is giving a three-day extension.

"Since April 15 falls on a weekend, and Monday, April 17 is a legal state holiday (Patriots' Day), we have extended the filing deadline for 1999 From 1040 returns to Tuesday, April 18," announces IRS District Director Steve Daige.

The extended deadline is not only to file Form 1040 returns, but also to comply with any act for tax purposes -- such as filing an extension, paying taxes, etc. -- which is normally due on April 15.

Tax packages were recently mailed. Daige said taxpayers with questions that the tax package does not address can call toll-free assistance 24 hours a day, seven days a week at 1-800-829-1040.

Here's what is new for tax year 1999:

- Tax credits. Taxpayers may claim a child tax credit of up to $500 for each eligible dependent under the age of 17. For 1998, the maximum credit was $400 per child. The total credit is reduced by $50 for each $1,000 -- or part thereof -- of income above $75,000 ($110,000 for joint returns, $55,000 for married persons filing separately.)

- Student Loan Interest Deduction. Taxpayers may deduct up to $1,500 in interest paid on a qualified student loan during the first 60 months of the loan's repayment schedule. The 1998 limit was $1,000. A person does not have to itemize deductions to claim this benefit, but cannot be claimed as a dependent, nor be a married person filing separately.

- Deducting IRA Contributions. Higher income limits for deducting IRA contributions apply to workers covered by an employer retirement plan: $41,000 for a single person or head of household; $61,000 for a married person filing jointly. If only one spouse is covered by a plan, the other spouse may make deductible IRA contributions if their joint income is under $160,000.

- Self-Employed Health Insurance Deduction. Self-employed persons may now deduct up to 60% of their health insurance premiums for every month they were not eligible to participate in an employer-sponsored health plan.

- Standard mileage rates. Taxpayers may deduct 32 1/2 cents for a mile for all business miles driven during the first three months of 1999, and 31 cents per mile for the remainder of the year.

- Stop Smoking Program. Deductible medical expenses now include amounts paid for smoking cessation programs and prescription drugs to treat nicotine withdrawal. Non-prescription drugs or patches are not deductible.

Looking Ahead To 2001

Seems to be a lot of talk already about the coming selection.

Not this year's Presidential. Next year's city.

Quincy's municipal political season never really ends. Like the rabbit in that TV battery commercial, it just keeps going, going and going.

So, it's not surprising, really, that even as James Sheets was being sworn into his sixth term as mayor, there was a question floating around him: will he or won't he run for a seventh term?

SHEETS

Sheets, on election night after trouncing Bob Boussy who would have needed a basketful of miracles and lightning bolts to even come close to an upset, indicated he would be running again.

"At this point in time, I look forward to running again," Sheets said.

But that isn't exactly an official announcement. And two years from now will be a different point in time.

Some observers thought Sheets might have been trying to cool speculation that his run for a sixth term was his Last Hurrah and to eliminate being tagged a lame duck mayor.

Whether Sheets will run again certainly was on the minds of three mayoral hopefuls sitting a few feet away from him at the inaugural ceremonies: Paul Harold, Tim Cahill and Dan Raymondi.

RAYMONDI

Harold, now city council president, came within inches of challenging Sheets last year. And has said he is running for mayor in 2001 regardless of what Sheets does.

Observers doubt Cahill or Raymondi will run if Sheets decides to seek a seventh term.

A Sheets-Harold race would have the local political landscape jumping.

It would be Sheets' first major challenge since winning the office in 1989, the year of the last real mayor's race. There was even a good preliminary battle that year.

There were four major contenders for the office Frank McCauley decided to leave after serving four terms.

On the preliminary election ballot were former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, Steve McGrath, Peter O'Connell and Sheets.

Sheets and O'Connell nailed down the two nominations and Sheets went on to win in November of that year.

There's hasn't been a good mayor's race since. Sheets has run unopposed three times and has had only two opponents--Roger Lyons and Boussy--neither a major threat.

Election Year 2001 looks like it will be a blockbuster regardless of whether Sheets seeks a seventh term or not.

If it isn't Sheets vs. Harold it looks like a three-way run between Harold, Cahill and Raymondi.

The day will eventually come when the big office on the third floor at City Hall will be occupied by someone other than Jim Sheets, who overall has done a good job.

For many in Quincy he is the only mayor they have known. There were youngsters going into first grade when Sheets was going into the mayor's office. And he will still be there when they graduate from high school.

Someday it will take a little while to get used to a mayor not named Sheets.

What Election Year 2001 will bring remains to be seen.

But it could be what you might call a new political era with the business community paying much closer attention to what's going on at City Hall.

Business leaders, still enraged over the 175 percent maximum tax classification hung on them by the City Council, will be more selective when it comes to financially supporting candidates. And will be more vocal on issues affecting the city and business.

Candidates may not be so quick in the future to dismiss those on the business side of an issue "because they don't vote here."

Business is determined that from now on, they will "be heard here."

Sheets To Visit USS Salem At Drydock

Mayor James Sheets will lead city officials and USS Salem board members in a drydock tour of the USS Salem at Boston Ship Repair in South Boston Friday.

The trip originated from the mayor's wish to view the ship out of the water with its hull fully exposed. "It's an opportunity to see the Salem from the bottom up and see some of the positives," Sheets said.

When word got out that the mayor was visiting the Salem at drydock, there was a groundswell of interest from others connected to the ship, including the museum's board of trustees, city department heads, and firefighters.

Representative Paul Haley, who was instrumental in obtaining the renovation funds, was also invited to attend, along with the city council and Quincy's legislative delegation.

The Salem, a Des Moines class heavy cruiser and centerpiece of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum (USNSM), left its berth at the Fore River Shipyard Dec. 7 for a $2 million overhaul at Boston Ship Repair.

Renovations include an inspection of the watertight integrity of the ship's hull with any necessary repairs, upgrades of the ship's fire alarm and electrical systems, the installation of additional, modern toilet facilities, and a complete repainting.

The Salem is slated to come back home in February.

Sheets said that, with the exception of one section of plate steel which had to be replaced, the hull is in very good shape. "It's been brought down to its bare steel and they've started painting," the mayor said.

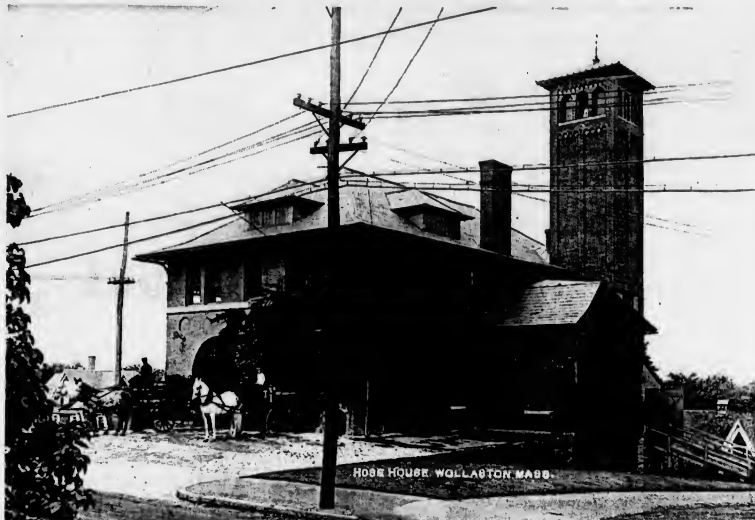

Workers are also sealing underwater entrances and considering how best to deal with the ship's enormous but now useless propellers once used to drive the ship during her glory years.

One possibility, said Sheets, is to weld the propellers to their sleeves, but another possibility is to remove the propellers and put them on deck as an added museum attraction.

Sheets emphasized how important the renovations of the ship's toilet facilities were to ensuring the Salem's financial future, given the revenue generated from group tours aboard the vessel. The goal, the mayor said, is to create facilities which can accommodate 300 scouts.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN EARLY postcard view of the Wollaston fire station or hose house on Beale St. in Wollaston. A stable for the horses was in the rear with access via the ramp shown on the right. The lookout tower is a Wollaston landmark; it is a reproduction of a 13th century Italian bell tower. Clearly obsolete the station has been designated for replacement. Hopefully any new station on this site would incorporate the tower in its design.

We Are All Paying Increased Taxes

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Here is my view of the furor over the new tax rates voted by the Quincy City Council.

First, the business charge of taxation without representation is inflammatory and erroneous. Where were the Chamber of Commerce and Business Council when two well publicized public hearings were held on the budget and tax classification? Knowing that tax increases were in the offing, you would assume that such organizations would be sure to attend such vital hearings. Did they? No. That is where they should have raised their voices, not in the middle of the council meeting. The council was not hostile to business. The members tried to consider the whole picture of taxpayers in the city when they voted the tax rates.

Quincy is made up of a large number of elderly homeowners, most long-term residents, whose assessments have been increasing especially on waterfront property. This is true too for other homeowners also. With both a valuation increase and tax rate increase, it is to the tenant that a homeowner looks for help to pay that expense by increasing rent. You can only go so far before you lose tenants and high rates further worsens Quincy's already affordable housing shortage.

The City Council recognized the problem for all homeowners when they set the tax rate increases for residential and business. A business, unlike a homeowner, has a clientele over which to spread an increase in prices to help defray increased expenses such as taxes.

It is important to point out that Quincy businesses are supported by residents. Yes, business gives back a great deal to the community. We homeowners and renters with our much smaller and individual contributions and volunteer work also give back to the community.

We are all paying increased taxes to support what we feel we need in this city. Let's hope we can get on with that effort.

Making A Difference In Many Lives

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Here at American Red Cross in Quincy, we have just tallied up the lists and posted our records and reports from the 1999 Holiday Stocking Program for needy children in the South Area that we service. Because of good people in our communities, we were able to present beautiful, "full to the brim" stockings to well over 1,000 youngsters.

We would like to express our thanks to the many residents of Quincy who have participated in this worthwhile program. Only with your help, are there smiling faces on children and gratitude in the hearts of their parents this season. The American Red Cross depends on volunteers for its programs and services, and for this project, 1,180 men, women and children totaled up to 4,766 volunteer hours assisting the two paid staff in Quincy to make this service to the less fortunate such a success.

It is utterly amazing to me, how the efforts of a single person donating four hours of time, can collectively make such an impact. Together, you have made a great difference in many lives. Please accept our sincere appreciation and Best Wishes for a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful New Year.

Quincy's Yesterdays Adams Academy Steeple Removed

By PAUL HAROLD

The steeple that topped the Adams Academy building since it was built in 1871 was removed this week as a result of wood rot. There were no plans to replace it.

The school was built on the site of John Hancock's birthplace under the terms of President John Adams' will. It operated as a preparatory school for boys from 1872-1906.

In recent years it served as the offices for the draft boards, the Boy Scouts and was the site of the Red Cross kitchen.

TAXPAYERS, MCINTOSH SPAR OVER PLAN E

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association, at its meeting at Ships Haven Restaurant, voted to censure Mayor David McIntosh for his comments on Plan E (city manager) government and proportional representation voting (where voters mark their ballot choices by numbers, rather than an "x").

Immediately after being sworn in as mayor, McIntosh said he would do everything in his power to abolish both Plan E and "p.r." voting. He said he wanted to "restore to the people of Quincy their American rights to an American way of government."

SULLIVAN NAMED TO REPLACE MacLEAN

William Sullivan, assistant Q.H.S. football coach for the last 14 years, was named by the school committee to replace Munroe MacLean as head coach.

Sullivan came highly recommended by the retiring coach, by Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, by School Principal George Wilson and by James Carter, director of Health Education.

QUINCY-ISMS

Dr. Gossard told the school committee that he was disturbed over the high costs of senior proms. He said that with costs averaging $25-40, the parties had gotten out of hand. For example, the cost breakdown for a boy to attend the North Quincy High School prom included $8 for a tux, $5-10 for the corsage and $8 for a visit to a night club. He wanted the high school prom committees to reduce costs and also to increase attendance from 30 percent participation to 98 percent. . . Police Chief Joseph Hughes issued a warning this week about the purchase of "highly flammable" rayon sweaters. The sales were being made door-to-door. . . George Daly, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, announced plans for a testimonial honoring banker and philanthropist Deleware King for 50 years of civic betterment. Toastmaster was Howard Johnson. . . Local Five President John Grogan announced that steel for shipbuilding was being given a priority by Washington. The new supply would allow Fore River to start work on its fifth contract on a fast-cargo vessel. The contract was worth $14 million. . . Boston newspaperman Hal Clancy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clancy of Hancock Court, was named one of the Ten Outstanding Youth Leaders by the Boston Jaycees. . . Sam Mele headed south to get in shape for the 1952 season with Washington. . . Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa was the main speaker at the meeting of the Young Women's Republic Club, at the Presidents Lane home of Jean and Constance Williams. . . School committee members Dominic Chiminello and Dr. Joseph McDermott were on a sub-committee studying use of the Quincy Stadium. . . A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jason Feldman of Dorchester. . . The Squantum Community Association marked its seventh anniversary at the home of Mrs. Harry Chandler on Knollwood Rd. . . Houghs Neck Congregational Church received the deed for the church property from the Mass. Congregational Missionary Society. The church had been partly supported by the society since 1948, but had recently become self-supporting under the pastorate of Rev. Peter Corea. . . Atty. George Flavin was the speaker at St. Ann's Holy Name Society. His topic: "The Aims of Communists in this Country." . . School committee members visited four proposed sites for the new school to be built in the Wollaston-Cranch schools area. Sites included the Rice estate, a section of the Furnace Brook Golf Club, the Spinelli property off Adams St. and the Faxon property off Carroll's Lane. . . City Manager William Deegan and Alexander Smith, director of finance, signed 1,950 bonds. They had to unfold, sign, and blot the documents to enable the city to raise $1.9 million, the largest borrowing in half a century.

What Election Year 2001 will bring remains to be seen.

But it could be what you might call a new political era with the business community paying much closer attention to what's going on at City Hall.

Business leaders, still enraged over the 175 percent maximum tax classification hung on them by the City Council, will be more selective when it comes to financially supporting candidates. And will be more vocal on issues affecting the city and business.

Candidates may not be so quick in the future to dismiss those on the business side of an issue "because they don't vote here."

Business is determined that from now on, they will "be heard here."

Sheets To Visit USS Salem At Drydock

Mayor James Sheets will lead city officials and USS Salem board members in a drydock tour of the USS Salem at Boston Ship Repair in South Boston Friday.

The trip originated from the mayor's wish to view the ship out of the water with its hull fully exposed. "It's an opportunity to see the Salem from the bottom up and see some of the positives," Sheets said.

When word got out that the mayor was visiting the Salem at drydock, there was a groundswell of interest from others connected to the ship, including the museum's board of trustees, city department heads, and firefighters.

Representative Paul Haley, who was instrumental in obtaining the renovation funds, was also invited to attend, along with the city council and Quincy's legislative delegation.

The Salem, a Des Moines class heavy cruiser and centerpiece of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum (USNSM), left its berth at the Fore River Shipyard Dec. 7 for a $2 million overhaul at Boston Ship Repair.

Renovations include an inspection of the watertight integrity of the ship's hull with any necessary repairs, upgrades of the ship's fire alarm and electrical systems, the installation of additional, modern toilet facilities, and a complete repainting.

The Salem is slated to come back home in February.

Sheets said that, with the exception of one section of plate steel which had to be replaced, the hull is in very good shape. "It's been brought down to its bare steel and they've started painting," the mayor said.

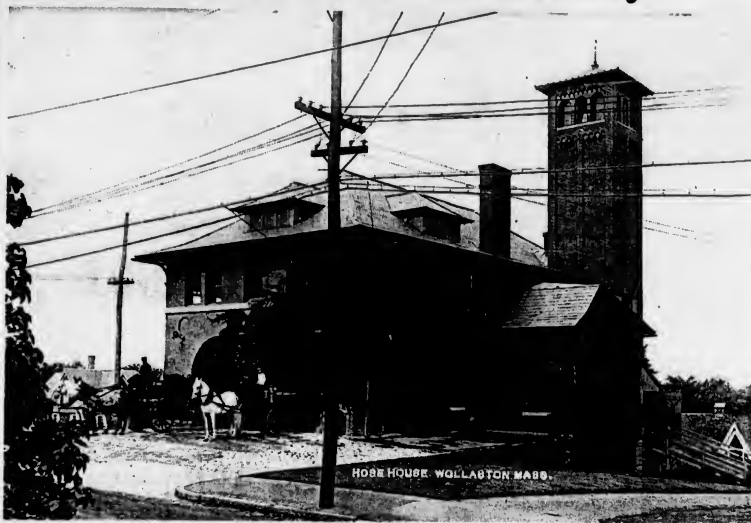

Workers are also sealing underwater entrances and considering how best to deal with the ship's enormous but now useless propellers once used to drive the ship during her glory years.

One possibility, said Sheets, is to weld the propellers to their sleeves, but another possibility is to remove the propellers and put them on deck as an added museum attraction.

Sheets emphasized how important the renovations of the ship's toilet facilities were to ensuring the Salem's financial future, given the revenue generated from group tours aboard the vessel. The goal, the mayor said, is to create facilities which can accommodate 300 scouts.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS AN EARLY postcard view of the Wollaston fire station or hose house on Beale St. in Wollaston. A stable for the horses was in the rear with access via the ramp shown on the right. The lookout tower is a Wollaston landmark; it is a reproduction of a 13th century Italian bell tower. Clearly obsolete the station has been designated for replacement. Hopefully any new station on this site would incorporate the tower in its design.

Adams Academy Steeple Removed

By PAUL HAROLD

The steeple that topped the Adams Academy building since it was built in 1871 was removed this week as a result of wood rot. There were no plans to replace it.

The school was built on the site of John Hancock's birthplace under the terms of President John Adams' will. It operated as a preparatory school for boys from 1872-1906.

TAXPAYERS, McINTOSH SPAR OVER PLAN E

The Quincy Taxpayers' Association, at its meeting at Ships Haven Restaurant, voted to censure Mayor David McIntosh for his comments on Plan E (city manager) government and proportional representation voting (where voters mark their ballot choices by numbers, rather than an "x").

Immediately after being sworn in as mayor, McIntosh said he would do everything in his power to abolish both Plan E and "p.r." voting. He said he wanted to "restore to the people of Quincy their American rights to an American way of government."

SULLIVAN NAMED TO REPLACE MacLEAN

William Sullivan, assistant Q.H.S. football coach for the last 14 years, was named by the school committee to replace Munroe MacLean as head coach.

Sullivan came highly recommended by the retiring coach, by Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard, by School Principal George Wilson and by James Carter, director of Health Education.

QUINCY-ISMS

Dr. Gossard told the school committee that he was disturbed over the high costs of senior proms. He said that with costs averaging $25-40, the parties had gotten out of hand. For example, the cost breakdown for a boy to attend the North Quincy High School prom included $8 for a tux, $5-10 for the corsage and $8 for a visit to a night club. He wanted the high school prom committees to reduce costs and also to increase attendance from 30 percent participation to 98 percent. . . Police Chief Joseph Hughes issued a warning this week about the purchase of "highly flammable" rayon sweaters. The sales were being made door-to-door. . . George Daly, president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, announced plans for a testimonial honoring banker and philanthropist Deleware King for 50 years of civic betterment. Toastmaster was Howard Johnson. . . Local Five President John Grogan announced that steel for shipbuilding was being given a priority by Washington. The new supply would allow Fore River to start work on its fifth contract on a fast-cargo vessel. The contract was worth $14 million. . . Boston newspaperman Hal Clancy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clancy of Hancock Court, was named one of the Ten Outstanding Youth Leaders by the Boston Jaycees. . . Sam Mele headed south to get in shape for the 1952 season with Washington. . . Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa was the main speaker at the meeting of the Young Women's Republic Club, at the Presidents Lane home of Jean and Constance Williams. . . School committee members Dominic Chiminello and Dr. Joseph McDermott were on a sub-committee studying use of the Quincy Stadium. . . A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Jason Feldman of Dorchester. . . The Squantum Community Association marked its seventh anniversary at the home of Mrs. Harry Chandler on Knollwood Rd. . . Houghs Neck Congregational Church received the deed for the church property from the Mass. Congregational Missionary Society. The church had been partly supported by the society since 1948, but had recently become self-supporting under the pastorate of Rev. Peter Corea. . . Atty. George Flavin was the speaker at St. Ann's Holy Name Society. His topic: "The Aims of Communists in this Country." . . School committee members visited four proposed sites for the new school to be built in the Wollaston-Cranch schools area. Sites included the Rice estate, a section of the Furnace Brook Golf Club, the Spinelli property off Adams St. and the Faxon property off Carroll's Lane. . . City Manager William Deegan and Alexander Smith, director of finance, signed 1,950 bonds. They had to unfold, sign, and blot the documents to enable the city to raise $1.9 million, the largest borrowing in half a century.

We Are All Paying Increased Taxes

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Here is my view of the furor over the new tax rates voted by the Quincy City Council.

First, the business charge of taxation without representation is inflammatory and erroneous. Where were the Chamber of Commerce and Business Council when two well publicized public hearings were held on the budget and tax classification? Knowing that tax increases were in the offing, you would assume that such organizations would be sure to attend such vital hearings. Did they? No. That is where they should have raised their voices, not in the middle of the council meeting. The council was not hostile to business. The members tried to consider the whole picture of taxpayers in the city when they voted the tax rates.

Quincy is made up of a large number of elderly homeowners, most long-term residents, whose assessments have been increasing especially on waterfront property. This is true too for other homeowners also. With both a valuation increase and tax rate increase, it is to the tenant that a homeowner looks for help to pay that expense by increasing rent. You can only go so far before you lose tenants and high rates further worsens Quincy's already affordable housing shortage.

The City Council recognized the problem for all homeowners when they set the tax rate increases for residential and business. A business, unlike a homeowner, has a clientele over which to spread an increase in prices to help defray increased expenses such as taxes.

It is important to point out that Quincy businesses are supported by residents. Yes, business gives back a great deal to the community. We homeowners and renters with our much smaller and individual contributions and volunteer work also give back to the community.

We are all paying increased taxes to support what we feel we need in this city. Let's hope we can get on with that effort.

Making A Difference In Many Lives

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Here at American Red Cross in Quincy, we have just tallied up the lists and posted our records and reports from the 1999 Holiday Stocking Program for needy children in the South Area that we service. Because of good people in our communities, we were able to present beautiful, "full to the brim" stockings to well over 1,000 youngsters.

We would like to express our thanks to the many residents of Quincy who have participated in this worthwhile program. Only with your help, are there smiling faces on children and gratitude in the hearts of their parents this season. The American Red Cross depends on volunteers for its programs and services, and for this project, 1,180 men, women and children totaled up to 4,766 volunteer hours assisting the two paid staff in Quincy to make this success a success.

It is utterly amazing to me, how the efforts of a single person donating four hours of time, can collectively make such an impact. Together, you have made a great difference in many lives. Please accept our sincere appreciation and Best Wishes for a Happy, Healthy and Peaceful New Year.

9 Quincy Students Winners In Sheriff's School Safety Essay Contest

Nine Quincy middle school students will receive savings bonds awards as winners in Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's essay contest on keeping schools safe.

Winning students from Quincy, Weymouth, Randolph, Dedham and Norwood will receive their awards at a reception for them, parents and teachers.

Bellotti will host the reception Thursday, Jan. 13 at 7 p.m. at the Appolo Function Hall, 615 Washington St., Norwood.

Theme of the contest was "Keeping My School Safe." It was open to students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

"Many law enforcement officials and administrators have ideas about improving safety at our schools," said Bellotti.

"While we should listen to those suggestions, it is also important to hear what those most affected by the situation — the students — have to say. This essay contest gives them an opportunity to share their views."

The Quincy students receiving awards are:

Broad Meadows Middle School: Alicia Dwyer, first place, $150 savings bond. Vanny Trieu, second, $100 bond. Robert Cappellano, third, $50 bond.

Sterling Middle: Jonathan Carrasquillo, first place, $150 bond. Maria Villena, second, $100 bond. Angelo Venturin, third, $50 bond.

Atlantic Middle: Holly Mirick, first place, $150 bond. Danielle Thomson, second, $100 bond. Dennis Lin, third, $50 bond.

'Spoon River Anthology' Opens Jan. 20 At ENC

The Communication Arts Department of Eastern Nazarene College will celebrate the turn of this century with the production, "Spoon River Anthology" to be performed Thursday, Jan. 20 through Saturday, Jan. 22 at 7 p.m.

"Spoon River Anthology," which served as the inspiration of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," is a lively collection of folk poems illustrated with music and dance; a nostalgic yet unflinching honest slice of Americana which teachers, amuses and inspires.

Eastern Nazarene College's theatre department is celebrating its 25th anniversary of brining quality, affordable theatre to the South Shore. The Eastern Nazarene College theatre experience has become an integral part of the Quincy community through the efforts of top-notch production team headed by veteran director and professor of theatre, Rd. Ronda Rice Winderl. They produce four to five plays a year: at least one musical, frequently featured guest artists, and premieres of plays. They also regularly sponsor educational matinees for schools from all over the South Shore and beyond.

"Spoon River Anthology" opens in the Cove Fine Arts Center on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 7 p.m. Additional performances are Jan. 21 and 22 at 7 p.m. Tickets are $7 and can be ordered by calling the box office at (617) 745-3715 or by sending a check to Eastern Nazarene College, Department of Communication Arts, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy, MA 02170.

An educational matinee for school groups only will take place on Thursday, Jan. 20 at 10 a.m. Tickets for the Educational Matinee are $5 and require advance reservations.

For more information, call the box office at 617-745-3715.

Lisa MacNeill Wins Quincy College Scholarship

Lisa Michelle MacNeill of Quincy was awarded a $2,000 scholarship to continue her studies in the field of special education at Quincy College.

MacNeill received the honor after students were asked to submit a 500 word essay describing their desire to work with special needs children.

Both the $2,000 award and a $1,000 award given last year were made possible by an anonymous donation to honor the kindness and thoughtfulness of the donor's late mother, who was a special needs student herself.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

The Emergency Department: What To Expect

(NAPS)—Medical emergencies are unpredictable—people don't expect to have one. You can ease the anxiety of a visit to an emergency department by learning some basic facts.

"First, it's important to know that emergency medicine over the past 30 years has evolved into a state-of-the-art, technologically advanced, fully recognized medical specialty," said Dr. Russell Harris of the American College of Emergency Physicians. "Today's emergency physicians are highly educated and trained to handle all kinds of emergency situations and to provide the best possible care."

Arrival

If you arrive by ambulance or are unconscious you will be assigned a patient bed immediately and be treated. If someone else drives you to the emergency department, you will first enter the waiting room, where your medical condition will be assessed.

By understanding the way an emergency department works, you may be able to make a trip there less traumatic for you and your family.

Triage

Most likely, a nurse will determine the severity of your condition, based on your symptoms, and check your vital signs, including temperature, heart rate, and blood pressure. This process is called "triage."

Additional information will also be obtained, such as your name and address and medical history, and someone will prepare a chart. Anyone who comes to an emergency department will not be turned away, regardless of their ability to pay or insurance coverage.

"There are many reasons a trip to the emergency department can take longer than a visit to the doctor's office," said Dr. Harris. Unlike a doctor's office, where appointments are spread out, many emergency patients may arrive at once. Also unlike a doctor's office, patients often must wait for the results of x-rays or tests. You can help make the time pass more quickly and speed your treatment by planning ahead. If you have children, take along a book or toys for them. If possible, bring along someone to remain at your bedside. Also, bring any up-to-date medical records, including lists of medications and allergies, and any advance directives, such as a living will.

Examination

Once you are placed in an examination area, an emergency physician will examine you, possibly ordering tests (e.g., x-ray, blood, electrocardiogram) and your vital signs will be monitored. Nurses and other assistants will also assist you during your visit.

Treatment

If you are critically ill or require constant intravenous medications or fluids, you may be admitted to the hospital. Otherwise, an emergency physician will discuss your diagnosis and treatment plan with you before you are discharged. You may also receive written instructions regarding medications, medical restrictions, or symptoms that may require a return visit.

"Every year almost 100 million people seek care in the nation's emergency departments, making the ED America's health care safety net—available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week—treating patients from all walks of life—rich and poor, young and old, insured and uninsured," added Dr. Harris.

For a free Home Medical Organizer, which provides first-aid information on what to do in an emergency, as well as medical consent and contact forms, call ACEP at 1-800-446-9776. For additional health and safety tips, visit ACEP's website at www.acep.org.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

How do I clean my aid?

First you must know that approximately 90% or more in-the-ear style aids needing repair are due to wax entering the receiver. Careful cleaning and office visits can save you $100.00-$150.00!

There is not much that we can do about the ear producing wax. The glands responsible for this in our ear canals have a mind of their own and sometimes produce much more wax than is needed for protection of the ear. Yes, protection. Ear wax is not DIRT! It's nature's way to keep out infection, insects and more. Wax should be removed by medical personnel only. Keep out the swabs, bobby pins, pens etc. Your focus should be on wiping off the aid at night and every time you remove it from your ear! A careful visual examination under a bright light and magnifier is the best way to see what you're doing. If you see wax, carefully remove it with the tools provided by your specialist, without pushing it in further. When in doubt bring it to a Hearing Instrument Specialist. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

Chiropractic Update

WHAT IS A SLIPPED DISC?

The term "slipped disc" has been used commonly by doctors and patients alike, to generally describe an injury to one of the 23 "jelly-like" shock absorbers found between each of the bones or vertebrae of the spine. These intervertebral discs are ligaments which actually consist of a "jelly-like" middle surrounded by rings of cartilage. While these discs do not actually "slip" from between the spinal bones, they can be worn, compressed, bulged, or ruptured causing pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves. It is this bulged or ruptured disc that pressures or "pinches" the nerve which actually causes the severe back and/or leg pain that may result. Often times, muscle spasms will accompany a disc injury as the body attempts to stabilize or splint the damaged lower back or neck.

While the intervertebral discs may lose some of their height and resiliency and dry out slightly over the years, the final straw of a disc injury may be a sudden twist or slip, an improper lift, or a seemingly minor accident.

Chiropractors are well qualified in the prevention and/or treatment of disc injuries and often employ the modern technology of MRI or Catscan to ensure accurate diagnosis. Chiropractors use a drugless, non-surgical approach which may include manipulation, forms of therapy, proper exercise and bed rest.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Limousine Ride Tops Off Atherton Hough Successful Fundraiser

The Atherton Hough School P.T.A. recently wrapped up a very successful fundraiser with a 50-prize raffle and a limousine ride, with free lunch, for its top student sellers.

The P.T.A. raised $4,837, all of which goes towards purchasing classroom items from simple folders to computers.

A total of 48 local businesses donated prizes for the 50-prize raffle. Wiz Kids Toys, Bernie's Store, and Olindy's donated prizes for five random drawings for all participating students.

Madison Duddy, who is in first grade, was the school's top seller with $200 in ticket sales. She received a gift certificate to Wal-Mart.

Duddy, kindergartner Anna Canavan, second grader Bill Martel, third grader Megan Riley, fourth grader Bethany Keenan, and fifth grader Joseph MacDonald were the top sellers for their grades. They received a limousine ride courtesy of Hogan's Limousine and a free lunch from McDonald's.

Fiona Canavan, P.T.A. co-president, praised Hogan Limousine and McDonald's for treating the students so well. Canavan made special note of limo driver Jim Foster. Foster, she said, arrived in a brand new limousine and gave extra special attention to the children as he drove them around the neighborhoods. "He was wonderful," Canavan said.

Raffle winners were: Kevin Roach, one year membership & travel bag, AAA, Rockland; Kim Fallon, facial, Embellish;

EASY AS BLUEBERRY PIE

Preliminary studies suggest that eating at least half a cup of blueberries daily leads to improved balance, coordination, and short-term memory. As is the case with other fruits and vegetables, blueberries contain chemicals that act as antioxidants, which protect the body against oxidative stress. This is important in the eyes of gerontologists because oxidation is one of several biological processes that cause aging. Blueberries are particularly able to subdue molecules called free radicals that are created when cells convert oxygen into energy. In excessive amounts, free radicals can harm cell membranes and DNA, which results in cell deaths. The latest research shows that the antioxidants in blueberries could actually slow age-related declines.

A Simple Dish: Pasta And Beans

At our house this week, I went back to basics now that the holidays are well behind us (whew), and all the baking and preparing various appetizers has subsided. So it was when I cooked one of my husband's favorites, pasta and beans.

Some recipes for this dish have the pasta and beans in a broth, but the traditional way our family has it is made with a tomato sauce. It is so simple and can be kept for several days to have for lunch, or frozen for a later time.

Pasta & Beans

1 can cannellini beans (or red kidney beans if desired)

1 cup elbows, ditalis or a favorite small pasta
2 cups tomato sauce or more if you like sauce like we do 2 bouillion cubes (optional) salt and pepper to taste grated cheese for topping

Cook pasta according to directions al dente. (because after you add the rest of the ingredients, the pasta won't be mushy.) Pour half the liquid out and add beans, tomato sauce and bouillion cubes if desired. Season and cook until bubbly. Serve hot with grated cheese on top.

City To Receive $13,570 In Grants For Cultural Programs

Quincy will receive $13,570 in grants which will fund four cultural programs in the city.

Announcement was made by Senator Michael Morrissey and Reps. Bruce Ayers, Ronald Mariano and Stephen Tobin.

The pool of funds are distributed by the Massachusetts Cultural Council, a state agency that supports public programs and educational activities in the arts, sciences, and humanities.

"The grant program helps enrich the lives of young and old alike and helps maintain Quincy's quality of life," said Morrissey.

The money will be used by The Beechwood Community Life Center, The Children's Theatre Workshop, Inc., First Night of Quincy, Inc., and Project Concern.

"Almost $7 million was distributed by local cultural councils in FY99 assisting 500 organizations statewide," noted Mariano.

"Approximately $2 million was distributed to support educational activities for school children," said Tobin.

Of this amount more than $630,000 was distributed in the form of the PASS Program, which provides subsidies for young people to attend cultural events.

The Quincy Cultural Council is part of a network of 335 local councils that serve every city and town in the state. The Massachusetts Cultural Council Program is the largest of its kind in the United States.

"The state legislature provides an annual appropriation to the Massachusetts Cultural Council, which then allocates funds to each local council," said Morrissey.

"The decisions about which activities to support are made at the community level, by the local cultural council volunteers," added Ayers.

The Quincy delegation praised the work of the Quincy Cultural Council members, Chairman Arthur Keough, Kelly Cobble, Janet DiTullio, Edward Fitzgerald, Eleanor Nelson, Maryellen O'Brien, Antoinette Paglierani, Yolanda Ramanelli, Kristen Williams and Carl Winderl for volunteering their time and energies towards such important projects.

"The Cultural Council should be commended for their continuing interest and involvement to support the arts and cultural activities in the city," said Mariano.

Families Sought For Exchange Students

The American Intercultural Student Exchange, a non-profit educational foundation, is seeking local host families for high school foreign exchange students for the 2000-01 school year.

AISE's students come from 25 countries throughout the world, and the program continues to expand. Every year, AISE places exchange students with more than 2,000 host families throughout the United States.

Students live with American families and attend local high schools during their 10-month cultural exchange experience. Host families provide students with a place to sleep, meals, and a family atmosphere in which to live.

Losing Weight Gained Over The Holidays

By MICHELE A. DEBIASSE, MS, RD
ASSOCIATE CHIEF CLINICAL DIETITIAN

The new millennium is here! And with the new year, so begin the questions from patients, family members, friends and acquaintances asking what they should do to lose weight they gained over the holidays. As you are well aware, Jan. 1 is the time when millions of Americans make a New Year's resolution to lose weight and become fit.

Unfortunately, soon after Jan. 1 we see most of the same individuals lose their resolve and resume life as they knew it: snacking on the familiar Devil Dog (because it really does taste better than carrots and celery) and flopping down on the comfortable couch (because we genuinely are tired after a long day at work).

What I always find so interesting when I counsel these individuals is that most of them already know what they need to do to fulfill their weight loss and fitness resolutions — eat regular balanced meals made up of reasonable portion sizes; choose a variety of foods with the emphasis on the whole grains, fruits and vegetables; and exercise regularly (which can be as non-threatening as walking) for at least 30 minutes per day, a minimum of five times per week. This is generally all that's needed for success. That's it! No mystery. No pills. No powders. No magic.

So, I am left to wonder, why is it so difficult for people to achieve their goals? Perhaps one reason is that the goals we impose upon ourselves are often only unrealistic, but also unhealthy. Do we really need to make our bodies look like Calista Flockhart's in order to feel our weight is acceptable? Do we really need to spend hours at the gym or run five miles daily in order to feel that we are physically fit? Most researchers and professionals in the field would answer these questions with a resounding "No."

So what, then, are reasonable weight and fitness goals? Many would say that a healthy weight is one at which the individual feels comfortable emotionally, and is suffering no adverse medical conditions as a result of their weight. Physical fitness is a state where one's body feels limber and is capable of carrying the individual through both work and play without stress or strain on muscles or vital organs.

With these definitions in mind, make the new millennium a time of healthy appraisal of your body size and fitness level. Where you see room for improvement, make a reasonable and genuine commitment toward change. More than likely, you will be pleasantly surprised with the results!

Walk For Prostate Cancer Research Here Jan. 23

A walk to raise money for prostate cancer research will be held Sunday, Jan. 23 beginning at 9 a.m. at Pageant Field in Quincy.

The four-mile walk will proceed from Pageant Field down Vietnam Veterans Dr. to Southern Artery and then Washington St. At this point the route will take a right (north) on Washington St. to Hancock St. and proceed north to Veterans Memorial Stadium. Walkers will then take a right onto Merry-mount Parkway to Vietnam Veterans Drive to Pageant Field.

Co-chairmen for the walk, entitled "Veterans Making Strides Against Prostate Cancer," are Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley and Tom Stansbury, the city's graves registration officer.

"Although prostate cancer is a disease that strikes men, once it occurs, it affects everyone in a family as well as friends," Bradley said. "For that reason, we are working to raise funds for prostate cancer research through The American Cancer Society."

Bradley said the Jan. 23 date is appropriate to "kick-off" a research fundraiser since this month is synonymous with football games, from college bowl games to the Super Bowl.

"In the football spirit of January, we are going to 'kick' off a research fundraiser to help eradicate this insidious disease that strikes any man regardless of race, religion or national origin. It is a disease that will 'tackle' you when you least expect, it will 'block' your path to future plans in life and it may 'throw you for a loss' in the game of life if you let it," Bradley said.

Bradley and Stansbury invite all residents to participate in the fundraiser. "Get in the game and help us score a 'touchdown' against prostate cancer," Bradley said.

Organizers are also collecting donations and suggest "kicking" in a minimum contribution of $3. Checks should be made out to "Prostate Cancer Walk" and mailed to Cancer Walk, c/o Quincy Veterans' Services, 24 High School Ave., Quincy, MA 02169-6718.

Pledge sheets are also available at Quincy Veterans Services. Pledges can be turned in on the morning of the walk, or sent to Quincy Veterans Services at the above address. Final date for all donations is Saturday, Feb. 5.

"Join in the walk for a cure, score a field goal for that winning team, the American Cancer Society, who will benefit from this effort and you will be helping the funding for prostate cancer that is on the rise in general and is even a higher risk among African American men," Bradley said.

"Call your friends, family and neighbors, your lodge, or organizational members and ask them to sponsor you in this effort to make a difference.

"We must make this a victory in order to show The American Cancer Society that there is a need to have fundraisers like this to increase the research funding for this particular men's form of cancer," Bradley added.

For more information, call Bradley or Stansbury at (617) 376-1192.

Flynn & Co. Closes $1.86 Million Deal On North Quincy Building

Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc. CEO Dan Flynn recently negotiated the $1.86 million sale of a three-story office building and a former restaurant located on Billings Rd. in North Quincy.

The properties were sold by Daniel James Realty Trust to new owner Norfolk Electric Realty Trust, an electrical contractor formerly of Boston.

The transaction was comprised of the sale of The Atlantic Building, a 17,133 square-foot office building located at One Billings Road, as well as the former Walsh's Restaurant, an 8,800 square-foot building at 7-9 Billings Rd. While The Atlantic Building will remain unchanged, the new owners plan to remodel the adjacent property for office use.

Flynn said the deal is a positive reflection of Quincy's desirability as a business community. "This is a step in the right direction for the area. It speaks volumes about this city when we continue to see Boston-based firms relocating to Quincy," Flynn said.

Daniel J. Flynn & Co. is a full-service real estate firm specializing in commercial sales and leasing, residential real estate and real estate transactions. For more information, call 617-479-9000.

No Sweat For North Boys Over Falmouth

By CHRIS POISSON

Finally, Ted Stevenson could kick his feet back and relax.

So far this season the North Quincy boys' basketball coach has sweated out second halves like he was stuck in sauna for a few hours.

Friday, the Red Raiders snapped a string of second-half skids by turning in its strongest defensive performance of the season, a 52-32 victory at Falmouth.

The win pushed their record back to .500 at 4-4 and gave them a 2-1 mark in league play.

Last Tuesday, North Quincy held on to a 45-43 win over Taunton after almost letting a 16-point lead slip away in the final 10 minutes.

North Quincy traveled to Bridgewater-Raynham

BASKETBALL

Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it hosts a tough Barnstable squad.

"After that [Taunton] game I just said that if we want to win big games, we have to make big plays down the stretch," Stevenson said. "We had two good practices before we played Falmouth which helped."

North Quincy had a 22-18 lead against Falmouth at halftime, and then the defense stiffened as it limited Falmouth to just 14 points in the second half.

"We've been playing very good defense the last few games," Stevenson said. "I'm very pleased with our defense. Now we just have to pick it up on offense."

Sophomore forward John O'Connell scored a team-high 12 points. Sophomore Phil McGillicuddy netted seven points and juniors Brandon Sleeth and Mike Keddy each added six.

Junior Adam Woo played well as he led the defensive effort in the second half.

"We did the things we haven't been doing," Stevenson said. "When we got an offensive rebound we pulled it back out and took time off the clock rather than shooting it right away."

Against Taunton, McGillicuddy scored 11 points, senior Matt McCann tallied 10, Sleeth eight and Keddy seven.

After an emotional loss to the league's top team last Tuesday, the North Quincy girls' basketball team just wasn't ready to step back on the hardwood three days later.

North Quincy (3-4, 1-2) came out flat, to say the least, against Falmouth Friday night at home as its horrid shooting lead to a 59-50 loss.

Who could blame them? It was coming off a 49-47 loss in the final seconds at Taunton.

North Quincy hosted Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it travels to Barnstable.

Against Falmouth, the Red Raiders were simply ugly. They shot 3 of 19 from the free-throw line and 5 of 31 from the floor in the first half, and were lucky to be down only 28-14 at the break.

"That was the worst first half of basketball I've ever seen, not just by us but by any team," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "We just couldn't put the ball in the basket."

Falmouth scored two quick buckets to go up 18 in the second half and MacFarlane called a time out to regroup. The team responded with a 30-16 run to tie the game at 44-44 with four minutes left in the game.

But that was as close as the Red Raiders got as they tired down the stretch.

"We fought so much to get back into it that we didn't have much left at the end," MacFarlane said. "It's a hard game to lose when you work so hard to get back into it."

North Quincy shot better in the second half, 15 for 33, but it couldn't make up for its first-half debacle. It finished 33% from the floor and 31% from the line.

"In high school ball you're not going to win shooting like that," MacFarlane said.

The Red Raiders couldn't contain junior point guard Kim Craft who scored 20 points, including three huge 3-pointers.

"She's a great player," MacFarlane said. "If you go out and cover her she goes right by you. If you step back she shoots the three."

Senior guard Jill Nicholson poured in 19 points for North Quincy and junior guard Casey Ridge added nine.

Against Taunton, all-star center Michelle Towne scored the game-winner off a rebound with six seconds left to lift her team to victory.

Nicholson had 11 points and junior forward Ashley Murphy 10.

"It was a good game," MacFarlane said. "We were down eight or 10 at one point in the second half and we clawed our way back. But Towne's last two really hurt."

Kristen Bowes Basketball Rookie Of Week

Kristen Bowes, a freshman at the University of Massachusetts at Boston, was recently named Rookie of the Week in the Little East Women's Basketball Conference.

Bowes poured in 20 points and had five steals in a game against Western Connecticut State.

UMass-Boston recently traveled to Dallas, Texas for a tournament where it lost to LeTourneau, 80-68, and beat the University of Texas, 62-55.

Bowes, a 1999 graduate of North Quincy High School, was selected as a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic in soccer and an OCL All-Star in soccer, basketball and softball, while attending North Quincy.

NQ Seeks Freshmen Baseball Coach

Pat Clifford resigned as coach of the North Quincy High School freshmen baseball team last week, according to Athletic Director Brian Buckley.

Buckley has started interviewing possible candidates this week.

"We're looking for someone obviously with experience who's willing to put in the time, and who has a good background in baseball," he said.

The position pays $1,545.

For more information, call Buckley at 984-8782.

Quincy Boys Aim To Turn It Around

By CHRIS POISSON

The return of senior guard Dan Kelly couldn't even help the struggling Quincy boys' basketball team break out of its offensive funk.

Kelly, who missed the first six games of the season with a knee injury sustained during the football season, scored 13 points in his return but it wasn't enough as Quincy fell to Waring, 61-46, Saturday.

Quincy will play Plymouth South at home Friday.

Kelly had only been running four days prior to the game and coach John Franceschini said he won't be "full tilt" for a couple of weeks.

The Presidents (1-6, 1-2) held high expectations this year to move towards the top in the Old Colony League and even though they have only one win thus far, Franceschini believes the team can turn things around.

"I told the kids that it's a long season and we still have quite a few losses before we're eliminated," he said. "Hopefully we can get back on track. We just hope it doesn't take too long."

Quincy played a pair of games last week against the top two teams in the league, Barnstable and Silver Lake, and were soundly beaten.

Friday, it suffered a 71-53 loss to Silver Lake and last Tuesday it fell to Barnstable, 68-47, in which it had a six-minute scoreless stretch. Those aren't the two teams you want to face when things aren't going well.

"The nice thing is that you get those games over with but when you're struggling you'd like the teams where you can get a win," Franceschini said.

Defensively, Franceschini said the team has been working hard and that it's the offense that needs to start clicking.

"We're struggling on the offensive end," he said. "We're shooting 31% from the floor and our free throws are about 51%. It's been frustrating, disappointing. The kids and the coaches were high coming into the season. We're working hard on defense but our offense has been a dry well."

The offense was even lethargic in its 51-46 win over Taunton. It was more of the defense disrupting Taunton's game plan that led to the victory.

"Chase Clarke and Sean Fitzpatrick have been tremendous defensively," Franceschini said. "The Antonellis twins, Keith and Larry, have also played well."

"We've accomplished our goals defensively. We just can't let teams break away from us early because it's difficult for us to come back."

Quincy Girls Look To Second Half

The Quincy girls' basketball team played three home games last week, two hard-to-swallow losses sandwiching a blowout.

Quincy (0-9, 0-3) suffered a 66-65 overtime loss to Silver Lake Friday night. Last Tuesday it fell to Barnstable, 46-43, and the next day it was whipped by Marshfield, 62-27.

Quincy played at Falmouth Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it will travel to Plymouth South.

Despite its record, coach Bob Noble feels that the strong non-league schedule in the first half of the season should bode well for his team in the second half.

"In the long run those non-league games will help us the rest of the season," he said. "I'm looking forward to the second half. Barring injuries, we'll be fine."

Against Silver Lake, the Presidents held a 59-56 lead with 34 seconds remaining. With eight seconds left, Laker Audra Lissel (23 points) drilled a game-tying three-pointer, her fourth of the game, to send it in to overtime where her team prevailed.

"The girls just made a great shot," Noble said. "We defended it. We had two people in her face. She just made a heck of a shot. It was discouraging. Things just haven't gone our way the first half of the season."

Colleen Nichol finished with a career-high 31 points and also grabbed 13 rebounds.

"She played an outstanding game as anyone has around here in a long time," Noble said. "We just need more consistency from our bench."

Quincy played, perhaps, its best all-around game of the season, and particularly excelled at the charity stripe (25 of 35) which had cost them games this season.

Against Barnstable, Quincy shot 9 of 21 from the line.

"There's your game," Noble said. "In my opinion we outplayed them. Hopefully, the last game is an indication of us in terms of the free-throw line the rest of the year."

Nichol finished with 15 points, 13 rebounds and five steals, while her sister, Caitlin, recorded a triple-double with 10 points, 10 rebounds and 10 steals.

After the tough loss, Noble said his team just wasn't ready to play Marshfield the next day, which routed Quincy for the second time this season.

"Quite frankly, we weren't mentally or physically ready to play, and it showed," he said. "With few exceptions we've played hard in all of our games. For some reason we don't match up well against Marshfield."

Local 'Hoop Shoot' Champs Advance To District Tourney

Six Quincy boys and girls have been crowned city champions and have taken the first step in the Elks National "Hoop Shoot" Free Throw contest, which is sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks and is supervised by the Quincy Recreation Department.

The champions are Dan Richards and Kerry Coughlin in the 8-9 age group, Pat Austin and Aileen Croke in the 10-11 age group, and John Murray and Keri Rogers in the 12-13 age group.

They will advance to the Circle District tournament Saturday, Jan. 15 in Marshfield. Winners move on towards the national championship.

There are over three million boys and girls involved in the first level of shoot-offs. The Quincy Recreation Department has been conducting the event for the Quincy Lodge for over 20 years.

Recreation Director Barry Welch said that he "continues to be grateful for the continued support of the Quincy Lodge of Elks. This program is a wonderful experience for youngsters ages 8-13. The Elks always have the interest of our youth as a primary goal of its organization. I particularly want to thank Exalted Ruler Edwin Naser and Hoop Shoot Chairman Ed Miller for their work on the Hoop Shoot."

The Elks presented trophies to Quincy's first three places in each age group. Over 300 youngsters took part in the contest starting in local neighborhood gyms. Each gym winner received a certificate and was eligible for the city championship. Miller, who was recently appointed athletic director of Quincy High School, made the trophy presentation to each youngster at the city championship.

The runner-ups in each age group were Joseph Edgerly and Mary Stille for ages 8-9, Dan Myers and Jessica Page for ages 10-11, and Kyle Costa and Julianna Eagles for ages 12-13.

The third place trophies went to Joey Schilling and Catherine O'Connell for ages 8-9, Paris Amado and Lane Zambruno for ages 10-11, and John Dahlquist and Elyse O'Connell for ages 12-13.

Other center champions in the Elks National Free Throw contest were:

Dog Training Classes At Quincy Armory

The New England Humane Association is offering dog training classes at the Quincy Armory, 1000 Hancock St. beginning Jan. 26.

"Good Manners for Beginners" teaches all beginners level commands including sit, stay, come down, drop it, don't touch, watch me and heel. It also addresses basic behavior problems like jumping, mouthing, chewing and barking.

"Obedience with Distractions" assumes your dog understands basic commands but does not necessarily do them well. It focuses on getting your dog to listen to you in spite of sound, object, motion and doggie distractions with less and less leash control.

Agility classes are also being offered.

Obedience classes cost $80 for a five-week class ($100 agility). The sessions are held in the evening.

For more information, call the New England Humane Association at (617) 782-7877.

SQUIRTS

Mike Maxey Shut-Out For Burgin-Platner

Goalie Mike Maxey stared between the pipes as he led Burgin Platner to a 4-0 shut out over Pat Foley Painting in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League play.

Patrick Morrissey, Mike Moran, Zachary Sloane and John Kurpeski scored for Burgin. Dave Bowe and Dave Regan each had two assists and Justin Auriemm had one.

Josh McKeon, Matt Martin, Joe Morris and Jim Fitzpatrick each scored a pair of goals as Smith & Brink, PC beat Keohane's, 10-3. Lambros Papalambros and Chris Burke added goals. Burke and Tom Keefe each picked up four assists. Papalambros, Ryan Murphy, Daniel Murphy, McKeon, Anthony Gilbody, Glen Misho and Rob DeAngelis each had an assist.

David Guerriero netted two goals and Ken Patey one for Keohane's. Dave Arrufat tallied three assists and Guerriero, Ken Patey and Eric Moreschi each had one. Greg Cahalan had three points (2 goals, 1 assist) as Quincy Car Wash battled to a 5-5 stalemate with Cotter Club. Michael Marshall, Paul Blaser and Brian Sullivan added goals. Eric Beagle, Blaser and Erik Johnson each had an assist.

Bryan Gilligan and Justin Laura each had three points (2 goals, 1 assist) for Cotter Club. Rick Penzo, Matt Grady and Matt Flaherty added goals. Mike Cronin, Penzo, Flaherty and Grady had assists.

Casey Conley tallied a hat trick and an assist as Westminster Dodge drove past Quincy Sun, 6-2. Steve McDonagh had three points and Matt Clifford had a goal and an assist. Steve Graham and Jeff Bailey each notched two assists and Ted Finnegan and John Foulsham each had one.

Thomas Henry and Joe Garland scored for the Sun. Brendan Foley, Joe Canavan and John Storella-Mullen picked up assists.

Mite B's Down Milton

The Quincy Mite B hockey team recently won its first game of the Kiwanis tournament with a 3-2 overtime win over Milton as Wayne Milford netted the game-winner with Kevin Shea assisting.

Milford got Quincy on the board first with an assist from Bobby Fontana. Joe Vialpando scored the second goal with Kevin Magoon assisting.

In earlier action, Quincy dropped a 1-0 decision to Norwood when goalie Jeff Giordani, who played a solid game, allowed a goal with three minutes left in the game.

After falling behind 2-0 to Wellesley after the first period, Quincy caught fire for a come-from-behind 5-3 win.

Seamus McKenna scored Quincy's first goal in the second with an assist from Matt Rodriguez. The speedy Milford tied the game with an unassisted goal to start the third.

Tenacious defense by Shea, Fontana, Mary Gillespie and Victoria Virtue, along with the cat-like reflexes of Giordani, allowed just one more Wellesley goal the rest of the game.

Vialpando rifled a pair of goals, with Magoon assisting on the first and Patrick White getting the helper on the second, to hand Quincy a 4-2 lead. Magoon scored Quincy's fifth goal.

Mite A Travel Team Sizzling

The Quincy Mite A travel team continues to sizzle as it recorded a two-game sweep over the weekend.

Coming off its recent Cranberry Holiday championship, Quincy routed Hyde Park, 8-1, Sunday and escaped with a 4-3 win over South Boston Saturday.

Andrew Bythrow, Chris Brown and Brandon Gilmore staked Quincy to a 3-0 lead against Hyde Park after the first period.

In the second, Bythrow and Gilmore each tallied their second goal of the game and Matt Bridgeman also found the back of the net for a 6-0 lead.

Hyde Park finally got on the board in the third, but Gilmore netted another goal for the hat trick and Scott Richardson added one to close out the scoring.

Richardson's goal was a great individual effort as he intercepted a pass near the blue line, skated to the top of the left faceoff circle and whistled a wrist shot top shelf past the goalie.

Against South Boston, Quincy led 2-1 after the first period with goals from Brown and Patrick Young. Brown scored in the second but South Boston tallied a pair to knot the game at 3-3.

In the third, Brown blasted the game-winner, his third of the game for his second straight game with hat trick.

Quincy thwarted South Boston's offensive pressure over the final two minutes with numerous saves by goalie Stephen Barresi.

Quincy Wrestlers Record Even

The 1999-2000 Quincy wrestling team is led this season by a talented group of sophomores and juniors, who built a 42-0 lead, seven straight pins, in the season-opener against Milton en route to a 66-18 victory.

Quincy (4-8, 0-1) followed that effort with tough losses to Nashoba Regional (48-42), Brockton (54-24) and Waltham (47-24), but won an exciting victory at Framingham (43-35).

Wins over Nauset (50-24) and King Philip (28-27) were sandwiched between a close loss to host Norwood (40-32) which evened Quincy's record at 4-4.

But Quincy is now riding a four-game losing streak, falling to Billerica (37-33), Tewksbury (41-36), Burlington (39-28) and Silver Lake (54-19).

Quincy wrestled at Bridgewater-Raynham last night (Wednesday) and will travel to Stoughton for a quad Saturday morning.

Freshman Jason Chase has emerged as the starter at 103 pounds, followed by sophomore Mike Murphy at 112 pounds. Murphy has opened with a 9-3 dual meet record and recently placed sixth at the always tough Sanford, Maine tournament.

Sophomore Bill Reid is 5-5 in dual meets at 119 pounds with four pins. Junior co-captain Dan Dorsey has been hampered by injury thus far, but coach Lou Venturilli (13th year) expects a big second half out of his 125-pounder.

Freshman Dennis Hill has cracked the line-up at 125 and 130 pounds and is gaining valuable experience.

Junior George Bush (135 pounds) provides valuable strength in the middle of the line-up with his 6-4 mark.

Senior Tony Davy at 140 pounds provides the Presidents with experience and talent. At 5-0 in dual meets, Davy was the Wayland Holiday Tournament champion and finished fourth at Sanford.

"He has the talent, no question," Venturilli said of his senior starter.

The biggest surprise has been the emergence of sophomore Joe Hern at 145 pounds. At 11-1 in dual meets, assistant coach Mike Gendron (second year) notes his off-season dedication.

"Joe is showing everyone how beneficial wrestling is, how beneficial it really is," he said.

Hern placed third at Wayland and reached the quarterfinals at Lowell.

Senior co-captain Ismail Aydogan has wrestled at 145, 152 and 160 pounds and has provided much needed leadership to the team. He is 5-2 in dual meets.

Sophomore Scott Kelley (152 pounds) was off to a strong start but has since suffered a season-ending shoulder injury. Sophomore Alberto Santiago (160 pounds) has picked up in his absence.

The 171-pound class has been held all year by junior John Alves, a three-year starter and solid contributor this season. The recent addition of freshman Andrew Cantelli fills a hole at 189 pounds.

Another pleasant surprise has been junior Rory Lydon at 215 pounds. In his first year, Lydon is 9-2 in dual meets and he finished sixth at Sanford. Freshman Dan Coleman recently inherited the heavyweight spot.

PEE WEES

Mike Gates Scores 4 In Barry's Deli Win

Mike McKeon erupted for a hat trick as Wood Comm'l Painting blanked Bernie's General Store, 7-0, in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League play.

Steve Keith, Kevin Shinnick, Catherine Keith and Jim Callahan each scored a goal. Shinnick, Kristina Manganaro and James Sheehan each picked up two assists. Steve Keith, Matt Tobin, Andrew Cardarelli and Callahan each had one. James Spellman earned the shutout.

Local #103 IBEW edged Coffee Break Cafe, 6-5, behind Chris Tufo's two goals. Mike McNulty, Terrence O'Connell, Brendan Linnane and John O'Donnell added goals. Steve Bythrow, Pat Mullen and Linnane each had an

Cory Bythrow had four points (3 goals, 1 assist) as Colonial Federal Savings knocked off Mike Morrissey, 12-2. Mike Gibbons, Mike Giordani, Kevin Richardson, Marissa Powers, Eric Kenney, Dennis Magaldi, Bob Newcomb, Kevin Barry and Matt Giordani all scored goals.

Powers, Matt Giordani and Don Gardiner each notched three helpers. Mike Giordani had two, and Richardson, Gibbons, Newcomb, Kenney and Joe Fontana each had one.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that curiosity is one of the permanent and certain characteristics of a vigorous mind. . . It has also been said that one of the secrets of life is to keep our intellectual curiosity acute.

The key to knowledge is curiosity. The curious child learns. The curious adult, likewise, improves his mind and expands his knowledge.

Without curiosity -- the urge to know why -- there's little incentive to investigate, study and solve the mysteries of life.

The famous discoverers have often been stimulated by simple occurrences. . . the way a plant grows, the odd color of a flower, etc.

Though some dismiss the curious as eccentrics or "nuts", the intelligent are curious about all the mysteries which surround him. To a considerable degree, then, curiosity is the basis and motivation of much of the world's knowledge. . .

We welcome your comments about the thoughts you read here. They are most appreciated.

Your Social Security

Amount Of Benefit Depends On Earnings

By LAURIE ZASTROW

You will receive your annual IRS Form W-2 in the mail sometime in January telling you how much you earned during the past year. It's a good time to discuss the relationship between your earnings, Social Security taxes and the benefits they generate.

In fact, some of the answers may already be at your fingertips. Since Oct. 1, 1999, Social Security has been sending out statements to people 25 and over telling them how much they have paid in taxes and how much they and their families can expect in benefits when they retire, die or if they become disabled. And if your birthday is not close enough, you can call Social Security and have a statement sent to you.

Many people believe that how much they get in Social Security benefits will depend on how much they pay in Social Security taxes. That's not quite true. Actually, your Social Security benefit amount depends on how much you earn. It's based on your average annual earnings over your working career and generally the higher the average, the higher your benefit amount.

When you worked last year you paid Social Security taxes at a rate of 6.20 percent of your earnings up to $72,600. (This maximum amount of taxable earnings increases each year with increases in wage levels; in 2000, it will increase to $76,200.) All your earnings are taxed at a rate of 1.45 percent for Medicare hospital insurance coverage.

The Social Security tax is a flat tax — everybody pays on his or her earnings at the same rate. However, the benefit formula is progressive. It is weighted to pay a higher rate of return to low earners. In general, low earners may expect to receive monthly benefits equal to about 53 percent of their priority monthly earnings. Average earners get about 40 percent and maximum earners about 24 percent.

The highest benefit payable to a person who retires in January 2000 at age 65 after paying taxes on maximum taxable earnings over the years is $1,433. For the 65-year-old worker retiring in January 2000 with average earnings, the benefit is $987. The low earner receives $597.

To find out how all this adds up to Social Security protection for you and your family, you should review your Social Security Statement. You also can get your Statement from Social Security by calling toll-free 1-800-772-1213.

(Laurie Zastrow is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) The week is liable to surpass your expectations. You'll receive such positive feedback from others that you'll be aglow! It is definitely a time to mix and mingle.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your social graces are a valuable business asset. Higher-ups are amenable to requests. Sociable, as always, you'll share delightful times with friends this weekend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The warm greetings you'll receive from a person afar will make you feel special. There's a decidedly happy accent on both romance and friendship.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Although you feel otherwise inclined, business interests must take precedence this week. A higher-up is important to your success. Listen to this person's advice.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Surprise news comes from a friend you haven't heard from in a while. This week finds you especially magnetic and in good cheer. Social life is quite wonderful.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You'll opt for a quiet week with family and friends. The private time couples share with one another will be especially meaningful. Intuition is on target.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The accent this week is on business. Your new venture is bound to be a success. Just be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You will be especially charming. You'll have the right words to say to one and all. You'll also be receiving a pleasant surprise. Romance is a plus.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) It is a wonderful week for family life. Some of you will have company over. You'll also receive a sudden inspiration about a job-related concern.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You'll be busy on the phone this week, which doesn't please you. One of the week's highlights, though, will be the warm togetherness shared by you and a partner.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You're not an overly sentimental person, but you'll be filled with nostalgia. A special closeness marks family gatherings. This warms your heart.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You might need to do some shopping to replenish your cupboards. Socially, you'll be meeting someone later in the week who'll be helpful in business.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You are a good money-maker, but are happiest in fields that reflect your ideals. You have initiative, and you often stand out because you do your own thing. At the same time, you have a strong awareness of community.

50 Students Enrolled In Community Emergency Response Team Course

The second annual Community Emergency Response Team (CERT) class will begin Friday, Jan. 14.

Students will attend class every other Friday from 3 to 6 p.m. at the Naval Reserve Center, 85 Sea St., Quincy. The course will conclude in April or May.

The class has 50 new applicants ranging from middle, special needs and high school students, from local schools throughout Quincy. There is also a number of adults taking the course from Quincy and surrounding communities.

Course topics include disaster fire suppression, disaster medical operations, light search and rescue operations, disaster psychology and team organization, and firearm safety and identification.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has an intent to establish a (CERT) Team in all middle and high schools across the nation, said Say Isenberger, coordinator for the Community Emergency Response Team at the Emergency Management Institute in Emmitsburg, Maryland.

Anthony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy's Emergency Management Agency, and local CERT team coordinator, said CERT is the best program in his 30 years in educating and training people to prepare for and to respond to hazards. "It empowers people to take better care of themselves, their families, neighbors, friends and their community," Siciliano said. He also encourages Emergency Managers across the state to contact the State Training Office of Emergency Management in Framingham.

The CERT program started in the Los Angeles Fire Department in 1985. The concept of CERT teams is to train citizens in each community for all disasters. Eight states across the nation, including Massachusetts, and 20,000 in the state of Oregon have been trained in the CERT program.

Quincy's CERT program graduated 40 students from its first class last May.

The second class is funded through a grant from the Massachusetts Service Alliance.

Quincy 2000 Hosts Business Plan Workshop

Quincy 2000 will host a workshop for business owners entitled "How To Write A Business Plan" Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 24 and 25, from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. each evening at Quincy 2000, 1250 Hancock St., 8th Floor.

Don Reilly, senior management consultant at Boston College's Small Business Development Center, will be guest speaker.

The workshop focuses on the first steps of starting a business and will include: defining one's business; creating a market profile; expenses and pricing; tax and insurance issues; and obtaining financing.

The cost is $35 for Quincy 2000 members and $45 for non-members. The fee includes written materials and snacks.

Pre-registration is required. Call Quincy 2000 at (617) 847-1454 to pre-register. Registration will be confirmed upon receipt of payment.

Putnam Donates $5,000 To Quincy College For Labor Relations Scholarships

The Putnam Investment Management Company has contributed $5,000 to a Quincy College scholarship campaign for students of labor management.

Putnam donated the money to the college's Sullivan Center for Employee Relations which was established in 1991 "to forge a better working relationship between labor and management."

The Sullivan center is named for its founder, the late Edward T. Sullivan Sr., a noted labor leader who was president of Local 254 of the Service Employees International Union.

The Sullivan Center for Employee Relations is located in Saville Hall, Room 207. For more information call (617) 984-1747.

Allerton House To Host Session On Elder Law, Estate Planning

Allerton House at Hancock Park, 164 Parkway, Quincy, will hold an informational session on Elder Law and Estate Planning Monday, Jan. 24 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Allerton House Library.

The seminar is the first of a five-part Senior Education Series held at the assisted living community.

Paul Tierney, an Elder Law attorney, will be guest speaker. The seminar will also include a "question and answer" discussion period. The seminar is free and open to the public.

Refreshments will also be served. To reserve a seat, contact Peter Neville at Allerton House at 617-471-2600.

'Volunteer Tea' At Beechwood Friday

A "Volunteer Tea" is planned for prospective volunteers at Beechwood On The Bay Friday, Jan. 14 at 2 p.m.

Kathleen Prince, Beechwood's Elder Services Director said, "As our services have grown we have many new opportunities for volunteers at the Center."

The tea will be hosted by senior volunteers.

"We rely heavily on volunteer talent—in everything we do at the Center" said Sharron Beals, Executive Director. "Because our programming has expanded so, there are many new opportunities for those wishing to donate time, talents and special interests."

Persons interested are invited to attend Jan. 14 to meet seniors who currently volunteer at the center and learn about new and varied volunteer choices. Seniors are invited to RSVP 471-5712.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a one day license to The Quincy Interfaith Social Services, Inc. for the annual indoor yard sale Saturday, Jan. 22 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave. Mrs. Dorothy Sparks said the storm date is Jan. 29.

The board also granted the organization a one day license to hold the 26th annual walk Sunday, May 21.

•Granted a permit to Michael Quinn Productions in conjunction with the Quincy Police Patrolmen Association to conduct telephone solicitation during February and March as a fundraiser for the annual softball game against the New England Patriots.

•Granted a walk-a-thon for Prostate Cancer Awareness Jan. 23 at 9 a.m. starting and ending at Pageant Field. Henry Bradley, co-chairman of the walk-a-thon said the walk will benefit prostate cancer research.

Sean Barry Seen Interim Quincy College President

Sean Barry is expected to become the interim president of Quincy College after the college's board of governors meets the first week of February.

That meeting will also address the need for a search committee to find a permanent successor to Dr. G. Jeremiah Ryan, who resigned as the college's president Jan. 7.

Theresa Lord-Piatelli, chairperson of the Quincy College Board of Governors, said she expects the school's leadership team to recommend Barry to the board and that many of her fellow board members have expressed support for Barry, the former School Committee member and current vice-president for Institutional Advancement at Quincy College.

"Historically, on an interim basis, Quincy College has hired from within," Lord-Piatelli explained. "Sean Barry has a long history with the college and has done an outstanding job with enrollment services, recruitment, and international students."

The leadership team, Lord-Piatelli said, is composed of Barry himself, Vice-President of Academic Affairs Patricia Gales, Chief Financial Officer Blain Yost, and outgoing President Ryan

City Census Forms On Their Way To Homes

City Census packages were mailed early this week and should arrive in most homes by Wednesday or Thursday, reports Joseph Shea, city clerk.

And this year's annual census is of special importance, said Shea, because it coincides with the federal census which takes place only once a decade.

"The amount of federal reimbursement is based on population," Shea said, noting that national census numbers could make a huge difference in something as important as a federal housing grant. "We really emphasize this year because this year is Census 2000 and, if we do a good job in January, it will help us in April. We work hand in hand with the federal government."

The city census is also important, Shea said, because it determines Quincy's jury duty list and aids with its Enhanced 911 system. "We really need to know who's in every household," said Shea.

Shea said that 44,782 census packages were mailed across the city. The packages are sent to all residences, large or small, and the mailing list is based on information from the assessor's office. Residents are encouraged to respond within 10 days to the general information questions and return them to the city clerk's office. As an added incentive to filling out the forms, Shea said, the city will continue its recent policy of paying the return postage.

After a month, the clerk's office will target areas where response was unsatisfactory and send election workers to knock on the doors of those who haven't responded.

As of last year's census, Quincy's official population was 88,700.

Doran Resigns; Mary Sweeney Interim Chief Executive Officer Search On For New Medical Center CEO

By CRAIG SALTERS

Quincy Medical Center Chief Executive Officer Jeffrey Doran, instrumental in saving Quincy Hospital last fall, resigned Tuesday setting off a search for a new leader of the private, not-for-profit health care facility.

Doran's resignation is effective March 1. He announced his decision to step down at Tuesday's Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees meeting.

Bob Curry, chairman of the Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees, has formed a search committee to find Doran's successor.

Mary Sweeney, vice president of Strategic Services, will serve as interim CEO of Quincy Medical Center during the transition. Her appointment as interim CEO was effective Tuesday.

Doran told The Sun Tuesday that he is resigning to allow new leadership to guide Quincy Medical Center which became a private institution last fall after the municipal Quincy Hospital merged with Boston Medical Center.

"It's important to appreciate the timeline," said Doran, who was named Quincy Hospital CEO in October, 1997 after serving as CEO at Hale Hospital in Haverhill.

"I arrived to spearhead a process for then Quincy Hospital to reposition itself so that it could remain in the community. We were very fortunate to secure a relationship with Boston Medical Center. It was a wonderful challenge, professionally, and we were successful," Doran said.

Hospital and city leaders said Doran was instrumental in the transition of Quincy Hospital to Quincy Medical Center. The facility's merger with Boston Medical Center saved the former hospital from closing its doors.

"I don't think I could have succeeded as I did in the salvation of Quincy Hospital without Jeff Doran," Mayor James

Students Back To School After Tuesday Cancellations

School is back in session for the city's Pre-School through Grade 5 classes and North Quincy High School after cold weather incidents shut them down Tuesday.

Both problems have been solved, said Superintendent Eugene Creedon, and students were scheduled to return to classes Wednesday morning.

Pre-School through Grade 5 classes in the city were cancelled when freezing temperatures disabled 18 of 23 buses used for the students. Luckily, said Creedon, school officials noticed the problem early and reported the cancellation Monday to radio station WJDA and the local television media.

The problem, Creedon said, was the cold affecting the diesel fuel in the tanks of the buses. Ironically, the 18 disabled buses were all topped off in the hopes of preventing any problems.

All buses are now up and running, said Creedon.

The second incident occurred early Tuesday morning when the freezing cold caused a heating coil to break in one of the school's mechanical rooms located on the roof of the building. The result was flooding and water damage in roughly 20 of NQHS classrooms and an unexpected holiday for NQHS students.

"It was a mess everywhere," said Creedon, who praised the personnel who had worked since 6 a.m. Tuesday morning removing water and replacing tiles.

Now, however, the damage has been repaired. "It's business as usual," said Creedon.

Lord-Piatelli said she met last week with Dr. Ryan and that he was enthusiastic about Barry becoming interim president. "President Ryan is very comfortable with the choice of Sean Barry," Lord-Piatelli said. "He feels that Sean Barry is one of the best student advocates that he has ever come across."

Barry, 35, is the vice-president for Institutional

Advancement and chief advancement officer for Quincy College. He has been a full-time employee of the college for seven years and started as a member of the adjunct faculty before that. Throughout his career at Quincy College Barry has taught courses in government. Barry had been a member of the Quincy School Committee since 1992 but chose not to seek re-election last November.

Barry attended St. Ann's School in Quincy and Don Bosco High School in Boston. He received his bachelor's degree from Ohio Wesleyan University and a master's in journalism and public affairs from American University in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Ryan, the outgoing president, has since accepted the presidency of Raritan Valley Community College in northern New Jersey and will begin his duties in March.

City Tax Deadline Extended To Feb. 7

The Quincy Board of Assessors advises Quincy taxpayers that upon the direction of the Department of Revenue, the third payment of the Fiscal Year 2000 real estate and personal property tax bills are due on or before Feb. 7, instead of Feb. 1.

Applications for abatement of real estate and personal property tax bills are also due by Feb. 7.

Applications for personal exemptions, such as elderly persons, surviving spouses, disabled veterans, blind persons, etc., will be due on or before April 7.

"The reason for this ruling is that though the Assessors had received a verbal approval of the tax rate prior to the mailing of the tax bills, written approval was not done until Jan. 5, thereby making Jan. 6 the approved day of the mailing. Chapter 158 of the Acts of 1999 provides for the approval of this date," said Marion Fantucchio, chairperson of the Quincy Board of Assessors.

Quincy Business Council Plans Tax Abatement Seminars Jan. 24-25

The Quincy Business Council will hold two seminars to help businesses file for real estate tax abatements.

Marion Fantucchio, chairman of the Quincy Board of Assessors will be at both sessions to assist in the filing process.

The seminars will be held Monday, Jan. 24 from 8 to 9 a.m. and Tuesday, Jan. 25, 5 to 6 p.m. at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 36 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

The seminars are free but seating is limited. Those planning to attend are asked to call the Chamber at 617-479-1111 or fax to 617-479-9274 to reserve a place.

Anthony Agnitti, chairman of the Quincy Business Council, reminds business owners that the deadline for filing for an abatement is Monday, Feb. 7.

The City Council recently imposed a maximum 175 percent tax classification on commercial property prompting the Quincy Business Council to urge business owners to file for abatements.

The new commercial property tax rate is now $35.25 per $1,000 valuation, up $2.97 from last year's.

The new residential rate is $15.71, per $1,000, up 47 cents.

NORTH QUINCY High School students Ryan Minezzi and Ha Le help to collect clothing for The Career Closet, a project of Altrusa International and Interfaith Social Services. Donations assist local women in transition from welfare to the work force.

Sheets, Harold Still At Odds On Shipyard

A recent court decision against Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), owners of the Fore River Shipyard, has sparked debate about the viability of the project once again.

On one side, Mayor James Sheets remains confident that MHI will work out its lengthy legal battles and begin the task of building ships, citing the shipyard's 3/4 complete status, its pending contract for six ships, and the enormous political backing behind its renovation.

On the other side, Council President Paul Harold views the shipyard delays of over a year, and the project in general, as a "lost opportunity" for the site and warns that steps must be taken to protect the city against a possible MHI default.

The fate of the Fore River Shipyard, and a good part of the city's economic future, will be determined

COOL RUNNING

One primary function of a vehicle's antifreeze is to circulate through the engine and absorb heat created by the combustion process. Modern cooling systems are designed to maintain overall engine temperatures between about 195 and 260 degrees F. Water boils at 212 degrees F, while antifreeze does not boil until about 330 degrees F. By combining water and antifreeze in a 50/50 mixture, the lifeblood of the cooling system is created. If a 50/50 mixture is good, would 100% antifreeze be better? Decidedly not. At the 200-degree-minimum point, pure antifreeze can only absorb about 65% of the heat that water can, rendering it inadequate for engine operation. Instead of adding liquids to a vehicle's cooling system haphazardly, have it checked out.

Germantown Land Donation Adds To Open Space

Mayor James A. Sheets and Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley announce that the land donation to the city of 1,278,000 square feet of land in Germantown by Edward J. Powers, Jr., has been completed.

Furthermore, an order was before the council Tuesday to rezone all of the property as open space. The measure was expected to pass easily.

At the request of Mr. Power, and as approved by a previous council order, the land area along Palmer St. has been designated as the "Edward J. Power Conservancy" in honor of Powers' late father. A plaque will be placed at an appropriate section of the sea wall to honor the Powers family for their donation.

"It's not often that you can rezone and add 1,278,000 square feet to the open space already in the city," Sheets said, who named open space preservation one of his top priorities in his recent inaugural address.

Hanley said that most of the land is marsh land and seashore and will become an important part of the city's conservation efforts.

FDR And Tom Burgin

The Ch. 2 documentary on Franklin Delano Roosevelt the other day reminded me of a humorous anecdote involving him on a visit to Quincy.

The late Thomas Burgin was mayor in 1936 when Roosevelt came to Quincy campaigning for a second term against Alfred Landon.

Burgin recalled the visit in this column in April, 1984:

Burgin's daughter, Claire, who was then six, had a big bouquet of roses to present to Eleanor Roosevelt who was accompanying her husband.

Shortly before the arrival of the President and First Lady, Burgin was startled by Claire: she had a Landon For President campaign button pinned to her dress.

"You can't wear that, dear," Burgin told her.

ROOSEVELT

"Why can't I wear it," she wanted to know. "I'm for Landon."

"So am I," said Burgin, a staunch Republican. "But he is running against the President of the United States, the man you are going to greet and it wouldn't be nice for you to wear that button."

Claire reluctantly gave in and the Roosevelt motorcade arrived in front of historic First Parish Church where Presidents John and John Quincy Adams and their wives are entombed.

A Secret Serviceman swung Claire up into the open car where the President and First Lady were sitting in the back seat and deposited here in Roosevelt's lap.

"Aren't those lovely roses," the President said to her.

At that, Claire, apparently unhappy about not being allowed to wear her Landon button because of Roosevelt, clutched the roses close to her, glared at the President and said: "These aren't for you. They're for Mrs. Roosevelt!"

Roosevelt tilted his head back and roared with laughter.

Mrs. Roosevelt leaned across to her husband and mused: "Well, that should take care of you."

Burgin was elected mayor in 1935 at age 33 and re-elected to three more terms, his fourth without opposition. He was Quincy's first mayor to win re-election unopposed. He left that fourth term to serve in the Navy.

Burgin also recalled another President's visit to Quincy: Calvin Coolidge.

This was before Burgin became mayor but he was a member of the reception committee.

After touring First Parish Church, Coolidge was asked what he thought of it. Always a man of a few words, Coolidge replied: "It's lovely." (Period.)

BURGIN

Burgin, who died in 1986 at age 83, also reminisced about what it was like being mayor during the Great Depression, the Hurricane of 1938 and the days just after the attack on Pearl Harbor.

THE DEPRESSION: Some 10,000 people in Quincy were on relief rolls and another 1,800 on federal WPA and PWA projects. "It was pathetic and I will never forget it."

HURRICANE OF 1938: "There were 3,900 trees down and all the fire alarm boxes and police (call) boxes were out of commission. There was no electricity."

PEARL HARBOR ATTACK: Burgin rushed back from Cape Cod and went 72 hours without sleep readying the city for the war's demands. A day later, 1,700 troops arrived in Quincy and had to billet them by that night. "We had to commandeered Masonic halls, Knights of Columbus halls, church halls . . . but we did it."

HIS FAVORITE MAYORS: He was reluctant to name them but after some thought and prodding he said: "Of the recent ones, Jim McIntyre. I was close to him. I thought the world of him."

"In the early days, I looked up to Perley Barbour and Joseph Whiten and had the highest regard for Charles Francis Adams."

McINTYRE

BIGGEST CHANGE IN CITY: "The advent of the MBTA. It completely changed Quincy Sq., and Wollaston, Norfolk Downs, Atlantic and Quincy Adams."

FAVORITE ACHIEVEMENT: Surprisingly, it was not political but the YMCA building. He was president of the Y when over $1 million was raised, the biggest fundraiser at that time in the city's history. "I think that would stand as the greatest memorial anyone would want to leave -- it's dedicated to youth."

RENAMING OF UPLAND RD. to Honorable Thomas S. Burgin Parkway in his honor: "I was humbled. It was awfully nice of them to do it. How nice it is to give someone a pat on the back while he is here rather than send the flowers later."

QUINCY OF THE FUTURE: "Quincy will go through a great change. It has been a residential city of houses but the apartments are coming. There will be a great growth in the business community -- a substantial change in residential. But our zoning will help. There will be no skyscrapers."

No Quincy mayor served during more interesting and challenging times than Burgin.

Former Mayor Frank McCauley, who is writing A Political History of Quincy, has indicated it will include a Mayoral Hall of Fame.

Tom Burgin certainly belongs in it.

Labor And Management Make Good Business Partnership

Editor, The Quincy Sun: As a member of AFSCME Council 93 and Local 470 for more than half my life, I can appreciate the comments from a recent North Quincy letter writer concerning the pickets outside Victory Supermarket on Hancock St.

Yes, we need "to continue on in our lives and deal with important issues" but I also understand, appreciate and remember what unions struggled to establish. Decent wages, the 40-hour week, vacation time, weekends off, safe working environments, etc.

However, since the PATCO strike back in 1980 when President Reagan fired striking air traffic controllers, public unions were hurt and as a result unions in the private sector also were impacted. Today, many Americans have seemingly forgotten the importance of unions in their lives. Yes, it's nice to have a nice boss but who wants to be at the mercy of a nice boss because someday, the bosses may not be so nice.

As a North Quincy resident, I have seen those union members from Local 791 carrying signs. I shop at the nearby union supermarket a few minutes further away. Why can't Victory Market sit down with the United Food and Commercial Workers Local 791? The supermarket took out ads criticizing union pickets out front. They said the union wants shoppers to shop their competitors. They seemingly use that tired old strategy of blaming outside agitators.

I personally believe labor and management make a good business partnership. It works for both sides. I'm sure those union pickets would also like to stop picketing. It gets awful cold in January but fighting for the right to organize is too important to give up and take their signs home.

Unions are as American as mom, apple pie and ice cream. It is time for Victory Market to let their workers vote on joining a union.

What's wrong with that? Everyone has a right to their opinions but as a union activist and a former officer of my local, I support the fight being put up by Local 791. Their cause is a good one. I salute their tenacity and their willingness to continue on in their struggle for working men and women.

Lung Association Thanks Presidents Golf Course

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County wishes to thank the management and staff at the Presidents Golf Course for participating in the 2000 Golf Privilege Card Program.

The Golf Privilege Card offers cardholders free or reduced green fees for a one-time play at over 80 Massachusetts golf courses. The Card, which began in 1986, raises more than $30,000 annually to benefit the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County.

We are very thankful to all the courses on our card, said Martha Waldron, Executive Director of American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County. With their support, we can continue to conduct educational support groups for people with lung disease, and fund both local and national research.

The American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County is a non-profit volunteer-driven health agency whose mission is to fight lung disease, including asthma, emphysema, tuberculosis, and lung cancer. Lung disease is the third leading cause of death in America, claiming more than 300,000 lives annually.

The 2000 Golf Privilege Card is available for $39.95 by calling the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County at (508) 668-6729.

Aviation Celebration At Beechwood On The Bay

The Quincy Aviation Information Center at Beechwood on the Bay invites area residents to celebrate aviation history during three upcoming events.

On Jan. 25 at 6:30 p.m. the center will sponsor a remembrance of the Squantum Airbase with guest speaker Robert Deutsch, current executive director of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum aboard the USS Salem and former commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Base. Deutsch will speak on the history of naval aviation in Massachusetts, particularly in South Weymouth and Squantum.

On Feb. 3 at 1 p.m.: the center will host "The Amelia We Knew" featuring women who knew and worked with Amelia Earhart during her Densmore Airport days (1927-1928).

Finally, the organization will conduct an "Aviation History Trail" March 14 at 6:30 p.m.

Beechwood on the Bay is located at 440 East Squantum St.

Cape Cod Cranberrying Topic At Historical Society

Author Edward Lodi will speak at the Quincy Historical Society meeting at the Adams Academy on Thursday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 p.m. on old-time Cape Cod cranberrying and the complex past of this local industry.

Lodi will look at the cranberry industry when the bogs were remote, all labor was done by hand, and the workers formed a distinctive sub-culture. His talk will draw on his own experience of working in the bogs as a boy in the 1950s. He will discuss the techniques used and display some of the tools. He will also focus on the lives and often colorful personalities of the workers and on impressions of the landscape and nature that surrounded the bogs.

Following the talk, copies of Lodi's book, Deep Meadow Bog: Memoirs of a Cape Cod Childhood, will be available for purchase and autographing. Refreshments will be served. There is no charge for admission. The public is welcome.

HELPING THE HOMELESS -- Valerie Palmer, R.N. recently retired after a 45 year nursing career at Quincy Hospital-Quincy Medical Center and was honored at a retirement party. William McCarthy after whom the shelter is named.

Quincy Visiting Nurse Association Receives Appreciation Award

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association (QVNA), a department of Quincy Medical Center, recently received an award from Visiting Nurse Association of New England (VNAE).

The award, "Appreciation for Promoting Excellence in Home Healthcare," was given to the QVNA for providing outstanding support to the VNAE Outcome-Based Quality Improvement Project. The project, spearheaded by QVNA staff Lisse McLellan, Clinical Resource Manager, and Becky Manning, Rehabilitation Manager, involved all of the QVNA clinical staff.

"We are very proud of the staff of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association for their commitment to excellence which resulted in this award," said Jeffrey Doran, Quincy Medical Center CEO. "We couldn't be happier that their dedication to providing high quality health care to patients in the home has been recognized by the Visiting Nurse Association of New England."

Ward 6 Democrats To Elect Delegates Feb. 12

Ward 6 registered will hold a caucus at Amelia's Restaurant Saturday, Feb. 12 at 10 a.m. to elect 10 delegates and four alternates to the 2000 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be divided between men and women.

The convention will be held Saturday, June 3 at the Tsongas Arena in Lowell. Candidates for delegate and alternate must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates may make a two minute statement and may distribute materials on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

Those registered democrats unable to attend may be considered for delegate and alternate by two thirds of those present and voting. Those not elected as delegates and alternate may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority and disabled.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity or economic status in the conduct on the caucus is strictly prohibited. Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 129 Portland St., Boston, MA. 02114 no later than ten days after the caucus date.

For more information, contact the Democratic State Committee at 617-742-6770.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Snow Brings Beauty, Potential Health Danger

The first snow of winter can be beautiful and fun for many area residents. For others, who must clear snow from sidewalks and driveways, winter can be a lot of work and potentially dangerous to their health.

The American Heart Association says shoveling snow is safe for most healthy people, but for people who are middle-aged or older, have not been physically active, or are otherwise at risk of a heart attack caution is advised.

"We have anecdotal evidence that links snow shoveling to fatal heart attacks," said Vanessa Britto, M.D., member of the American Heart Association's New England Affiliate Board of Directors and chairwoman of the AHA Minority Task Force. "However, studies indicate that almost everyone can perform this winter chore if they use caution."

For people not used to strenuous physical exertion, the American Heart Association recommends against lifting a shovel piled high with snow. The combination of sudden physical effort and the cold increases the workload for the heart.

Arteries are known to narrow in cold weather. The cold becomes even more dangerous if they are already narrowed due to fatty deposits. As a result, too much strain on the heart during these conditions can cause a heart attack.

The AHA also advises people with heart disease to know their safe exercise limits and stay within them. Britto says people usually sense how hard they are working and pace themselves in relation to their physical capacity.

For more information on physical activity, contact your nearest American Heart Association or call 1-800-AHA-USA1 (1-800-242-8721).

Alzheimer's Orientation Topic At Quincy Medical Center

The Clinic of Cognitive Disorders sponsors a free educational talk, "Family Orientation to Alzheimer's" every second Monday of the morning from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Conference Room A at Quincy Medical Center, 114 Whitwell St.

Beverly Moore, sole proprietor of Alzheimer Caregiver Services, presents the discussion.

Research shows that caregiver support, behavior management education and periods of respite are instrumental in delaying placement outside the home for up to a year. Programs like adult day health, social day programs, and home care providers ease caregiving. The family, however, ultimately takes on the 24-hour day management of care as well as the impact on their family.

Moore said she started Alzheimer Caregiver Services to address the needs of family and facility caregivers through education and support. Her service offers behavior management training for family caregivers in the home as well as caregivers in facilities like home care agencies and assisted living residents.

The home based service includes a full assessment of caregiving needs in the home, a behavioral care plan, with instruction and ongoing support to make caregiving easier and more enjoyable using habilitation therapy.

"I want to give to my community using the skills I've learned about caregiving," Moore said. "I was born here, educated here, and brought up my family here on the South Shore. I've benefited much; I can now give back."

Moore is a nurse clinician in adult mental health, a family counselor and an educator. She has helped many families understand and cope with behaviors that frustrate the caregiver or put the person being cared for at risk. The home care aides she's trained have been instrumental in delivering needed care to elders at risk.

For more information, call Moore at Alzheimer Caregiver Services at 617-233-1145.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"

"How I clean my ears?"

You normally "clean" things that are dirty.

Believe it or not wax is not dirt. It is a protective secretion from mother nature. It helps to keep out infection and insects.

It is produced in the outer portion of the ear canal, about 3/8" into your ear. When I see wax next to someone's eardrum it usually spells "Q-tip" or some other brand swab. Wax must be put there by some means, swabs, bobby pins, keys, you name it. When the ear itches people will stick just about anything in their ear to stop it, sometimes damaging the eardrum or canal wall. If your ear itches try to scratch it by rubbing behind your ear. Earwax normally migrates outward, so don't push it back in, let nature take its course. Unfortunately in rare cases the ear produces too much wax, too little or too dry wax. Ask your doctor, (preferably an ear doctor) about your specific problem. If you need the name of one in your area feel free to call me. Remember ear canals are not dirty they are probably the cleanest most germ-free part of your body!

Now you go and spread the news! Steve Stephen Tobias Hearing Center 488 Quincy Ave, Quincy, MA 02169 (next to shipyard) Have any topics for upcoming "Tips"? Write or call 617 770-3395

Beechwood on the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy, is offering an array of fitness activities.

Strength training for beginners, taught by Kathleen Hefner, will begin Wednesday, Jan. 26. The course meets for six weeks on Wednesdays from 10 to 11 a.m.

Cost is $25 for Beechwood members, $35 for non-members.

Using weights and stretch bands, the class improves muscle strength, balance and body tone.

A second session will start March 8.

A six-week yoga for beginners class starts Friday, Jan. 21 and continues Fridays for six weeks from 10 to 11 a.m. Taught by Leslie VanDyk and Gail Mattulina, yoga exercises consist of gentle stretches and simple movements which release tension from the neck, shoulders, back and other areas of the body.

Most yoga exercises can be done in a chair or in a comfortable position. Wear loose, comfortable clothing. Cost for the yoga class is $60 for members, $65 for non-members.

A second session of yoga classes will begin March 3. Pre-registration is required.

Other exercise activities scheduled at Beechwood this winter include:

- Senior Olympics "Reunion" Sports Day, Wednesday, March 29 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Light lunch will be served for $3. RSVP by March 24.

- Easy Does It Stretchy Exercises, music and movement, Thursdays at 11:15 a.m. Gentle stretch before lunch, cost $1. Ginny Waterman instructor.

- Co-Ed volleyball,

Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday and Friday at 11 a.m. Drop in -- no reservations necessary. Cost $2.50 for members, $3 for non-members.

- Center walks -- for fun and fitness -- Beechwood walks. Wednesday and Friday at 9 a.m., 3 mile walk; Tuesday at 10 a.m., "easy walk."

In addition, Beechwood offers a blood pressure clinic every Thursday from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Cross country and snow shoe groups are also forming.

by who is right.

Last week a Norfolk Superior Court ordered MHI to pay Rhode Island based O. Ahlberg & Sons, the lead contractor for the shipyard, $2.2 million in late payments. Ahlberg walked off the job last summer in a contract dispute and filed suit in September. MHI is contesting the decision.

MHI is now in default of a $55 million loan from Fleet National Bank which is backed by the federal government, a $10 million loan from the Massachusetts Development Finance Agency (MDFA), and a $7.8 million dollar loan from the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) obtained through the city of Quincy.

The next due date for the loans is March 1.

Recently MHI proposed a plan to issue $146 million in bonds through the MDFA to privately finance the shipyard. The MDFA, which as a public entity would be able to provide tax incentives to investors, gave preliminary approval but there has been no word from MHI or MDFA since.

Mayor James Sheets said that he was unfamiliar with the details of the Ahlberg lawsuit but was "absolutely" convinced the matter would be resolved. "This is really a legal issue," the mayor said. "And it has to go through legal channels and that takes time."

"The truth of the matter is that nobody gets paid unless the Maritime Administration approves it. They will ultimately decide what should legitimately be paid and what shouldn't be."

Asked for reasons to remain confident on the shipyard project, Sheets emphasized the 78 percent completion of the fabrication center, MHI's contract to build six tankers, and the 135 acres of shipyard property restored, including the removal of lead, asbestos, and 20 old buildings.

Also, Sheets pointed out that it was the work of former Congressman Gerry Studds who made President Clinton's executive order authorizing the shipyard's renovation possible. The project, said Sheets, has the support of Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry, Congressman William Delahunt, and Governor Paul Cellucci. "There's still a very good level of confidence," said Sheets. "Without the issue of the contractor, we'd be building ships right now."

As for Sotirios Emmanouil, the owner of MHI, Sheets said, "He's a very bright man and he knows what he's doing."

All of this leaves Harold skeptical, to say the least.

"They've repeated everything except the law of gravity to help this operation and it still isn't working," Harold said. As evidence, Harold cited government changes in deadlines, qualifications, and even a stipulation that the Maritime Administration was prohibited from looking into the economic viability of the shipyard project, as is its policy.

The proposed contract with Intermare Navigation, Harold said, presents another problem. According to Harold, the Intermare contract has been pending before the Maritime Administration for almost three years and, under MARAD policy, applications over three months old are considered "stale" and in need of updating.

Harold said he has been in contact with MARAD officials who've said even the current application lacks essential data such as ship specifications. "So they have nothing to act upon," Harold said.

Harold said that the real tragedy was the "lost opportunity" for the Fore River site given the hot real estate market of the last few years. The site, Harold said, could have been used by other shipbuilders or turned into a mixed-use business development.

The best plan now, Harold argued, is for the city to put a money value on the shipyard and begin the de-certification process to put the city in a preferable position in the event of a default. "The federal government is taking steps to protect federal taxpayers," Harold said. "But the remedy I offered was voted down."

Broken Water Pipes At State Street, Presidents Place

Cold weather is being blamed for broken water pipes across the city, including damage at State Street South and Presidents' Place.

QFD Lt. Edward Columbus reported that a sprinkler pipe broke Tuesday at Presidents' Place, 1250 Hancock St. Although damage had yet to be assessed and the sprinkler system was out of service, Columbus said there was no threat of fire in the building.

The main building of State Street South on Heritage Drive also reported a broken pipe, Columbus said, and a firewatch was in effect for that site.

Quincy Girls Snap Skid, Down Plymouth S.

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy girls' basketball team headed into last week's games with no wins, Shaq-like free-throw shooting and, not to help matters, it was about to begin a seven-game journey on the road.

Although its woes from the foul line continued, Quincy (1-10, 1-4) snapped a 10-game losing skid with a 51-37 triumph over Plymouth South Friday night.

The Presidents fell to Falmouth, 53-47, last Tuesday. Quincy played Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it squares off against cross-town rival North Quincy.

"It was one of those games as a coach where you win and everyone plays and contributes," said coach Bob Noble. "It's the best of all worlds. 'We've lost some tough games this year but we haven't given up. We'll be fine the rest of the season. We'll be in every game.'"

Quincy received some

much needed outside shooting in its first win of the season. Senior captain Kelly Raymer scored 13 points, 11 of those from outside. The point guard's touch complimented the inside power game of senior Colleen Nichol, who finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds.

"We haven't been able to hit the outside shot on a consistent basis and [Friday] night they just dropped," Noble said. "Colleen Nichol continued to play her strong game. She's been outstanding all year and hopefully it will continue. I don't see why it wouldn't. She's a major force as an inside post player."

The Presidents shot 8-for-16 from the foul line but, luckily, it wasn't a factor as Plymouth South wasn't able to make a run to get back into the game.

Against Falmouth, however, it decided the game. The charity stripe was not so charitable as they were 11-of-32, including 6-of-20 in the first half.

"We've been schizophrenic about it," said Noble, in reference to the Silver Lake game in which they turned in a 25-of-35 effort.

Quincy had a 16-10 halftime lead and was able to hold on to it for most of the second half until it lost it with four minutes left in the game.

"We outplayed them," Noble said. "Once again, it was a game that got away from us that we should have won. At one point they were just fouling us and we didn't make the free throws."

"We closed in a little at the end but, with our inability to make free throws down the stretch, we couldn't make up the gap."

Todd Mathews On College Football Little American Team

Arkansas Tech University senior Todd Mathews, son of Walter and Bette Mathews of Sprindale, Ark., formerly of Quincy, and grandson of Walter and Ruth Mathews of Quincy, was recently named Associated Press Little All-American.

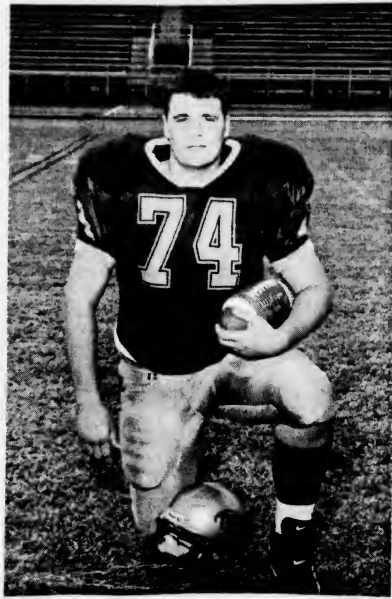

The 6-foot-5, 355-pound left guard was honored for his efforts in helping the 1999 Wonder Boys to a 9-3 overall record, and its first Gulf South Conference football title and first NCAA national football playoff appearance.

Mathews had 28 knock-downs and allowed just one quarterback sack on a team that attempted 369 passes. Mathews started the final 34 games of his career.

Mathews was also named to the All-Gulf South Conference team, the Daktronics All-South Region team and the Daktronics All-American team.

He was also selected to play in the Snow Bowl, an all-star game for NCAA Division II players held at Fargo, N.D.

The AP Little All-America team is chosen

TODD MATHEWS

from all players at the NCAA Division II, NCAA Division III and NAIA levels. Mathews was the only player from the Gulf South Conference named to the team.

Quincy Boys Rebound, Kelly Back In Line-Up

The start of the season couldn't have been any worse for the Quincy boys' basketball team.

In preseason it learned that it would be without all-star guard Dan Kelly for five games. And the Presidents felt the aftershocks, winning just one game as they struggled to put together anything offensively.

But things don't look so bad now. Friday, they kicked off a home stretch, six of seven at Coddington St., with a 65-54 win over Plymouth South. And, oh yeah, Kelly is back and playing well.

Quincy (2-6, 2-2) played Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow

(Friday) it travels to Hancock St. in a showdown with North Quincy. Then, its next three games are at home, two against league powerhouses Barnstable and Silver Lake.

"This is a chance to right yourself," said coach John Franceschini. "If we can play well the next three games, winning at least a couple, we can be near .500 and correct our terrible start. We can set up the second half of the season."

And the Presidents hope they shoot the ball in the second half the way they did against Plymouth South. Quincy was relentless on the offensive end, shooting 47% from the floor and 79% from the line.

The difference in the game was our offense," Franceschini said. "We shot the ball well. That's an enormous difference. There were no breaks, no lull in reference to points on the board."

Defensive has not been the problem for the undersized Presidents, which turned in another strong effort.

"Our defense remains strong," said Franceschini, whose team held Plymouth South to two offensive rebounds. "We did a great job on the defensive glass. We've been working hard."

The backcourt, seniors Chase Clarke (16 points) and Kelly (14), led the attack. Juniors Mark Robertson and David Centrella provided the spark, each chipping in with eight points.

Centrella scored three straight baskets during a decisive 12-2 spurt to close the game.

North Quincy Edges Milton

By CHRIS POISSON

For about 42 minutes Monday afternoon, the North Quincy and Milton hockey teams matched check for check, save for save, and goal for goal.

As the minutes ticked away, you knew the game was coming down to that one critical mistake in which the other team would capitalize on.

Fortunately, for North Quincy, it was that "other team" when sophomore center Scott MacDonald picked off a telegraphed Matt Burke pass, broke the other way and barely beat Milton goalie Alex Saviola as the puck trickled in at 11:53 to snap a 1-1 tie.

The Red Raiders (3-6, 1-3) held on for the 2-1 win at Quincy Youth Arena, and it was much needed after last week's losses to Falmouth and Bridgewater-Raynham. Milton fell to 3-5-1.

North Quincy played Barnstable yesterday (Wednesday) and it will host Plymouth South Saturday at 7 p.m.

After a scoreless first period where North Quincy failed to cash in on a 2-on-1 breakaway, Milton stormed onto the ice to start the second. Just 38 seconds into the period, Milton center Chris Foster took a feed from Steve Lancione in the slot and beat junior goalie Matt Gregory for a 1-0 lead.

The way North Quincy's offense has been clicking this season, Milton's one-goal cushion might have been enough. But the Red Raiders answered as fast as St. Louis Rams score touchdowns.

At 1:50, junior forward Pat Lahar scored the equalizer when he skated in from the left circle and slipped the puck past Saviola as he fell to the ice.

Milton was on the attack for the rest of the period thanks to three power play opportunities. North

Quincy, though, killed all three as Gregory came up with some dazzling saves. Milton finished 0-5 on the man-advantage.

In the third period, both teams had plenty of chances to grab the lead. MacDonald and sophomore forward Joe Fitzpatrick muffed a 2-on-1 break at the 12:00 mark when Fitzpatrick didn't get enough wood on his attempt.

Less than three minutes later, Milton whiffed on its 2-on-1 as Gregory came up with the save. Quincy gathered the rebound and turned in to a semi-break the other way. MacDonald almost got the go-head goal as he blasted a shot from the point off the post.

Quincy and MacDonald would not be denied, though. After killing Milton's fifth power play, MacDonald stole a pass and pushed across the game-winner.

North Girls Win Pair

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy girls' basketball team used some second-half wizardry to pick up a pair of wins last week.

The Red Raiders (5-4, 3-0) cast a spell on their Old Colony League foes, beating Barnstable, 57-43, Friday night and edging Bridgewater-Raynham last Tuesday to jump to third place, ahead of both, in the standings.

They hosted Plymouth South Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) they play rival Quincy at home at 6 p.m.

"That [Quincy] game will be a battle," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "They're playing tough basketball this season. They just haven't had any luck."

Against Barnstable, they overcame a turnover-recorded first half with some record-setting performances and against B-R, they overcame a 14-point second-half deficit with some scrappy defense.

"I'd rather see us play well the whole game," said MacFarlane, who watched his team come up short in two games the week before.

"We're getting into the habit where we think we can comeback every time in the second half. I've been around long enough to know it doesn't always happen."

North Quincy held a one-point lead, 25-24, against Barnstable at the half before it rolled away in the second half, despite committing 28 turnovers.

It used a 1-3-1 zone to slow down 6-foot-1 Liz Curley (19 points) who scored 10 first-half points.

"It worked somewhat," MacFarlane said. "She was tough to stop when she got a rebound because she held the ball up high. But she got most of her points when we were up 15 or 16 in the second half."

Senior guard Jill Nicholson drilled a school record

five three-pointers and finished with a team-high 22 points. Junior guard Casey Ridge tied the school record with 9 assists, 7 in the second-half surge. Sophomore forward Lauren Sleeth also had a tremendous all-around game with 12 points, 7 rebounds, 6 assists and 2 steals.

North Quincy trailed 35-23 to B-R at the half and then, MacFarlane said, "it mounted a severe comeback with scrappy man-to-man defense." It ended the game with 14 steals.

Sleeth scored 16 points to go along with 6 steals. Nicholson poured in 19 points, 14 coming in the second-half comeback. And freshman April Suprey contributed down the stretch with 8 of her 12 points.

Quincy Icemen Goal: Gain Tourney Berth

By CHRIS POISSON

After a 3-1 start to the season, the Quincy hockey team looked like it was going to fulfill its preseason goals.

Quincy had its sights on a league title and a tournament berth for a chance to compete for the coveted state championship.

But quickly those goals were flushed away when three players were suspended for two games for fighting at the end of a 5-2 loss to Barnstable on Jan. 8.

"Those goals are gone now," said coach Bob Sylvia. "That's what that incident cost us. We're just trying to somehow get into the tournament now."

Playing without its three best players — Scott Mattson, Bill McKeon, Paul Campbell — the Presidents lacked some serious offensive punch as they were blanked by Falmouth, 3-0, Saturday and Silver Lake, 5-0, last Wednesday, both games at home.

In Quincy's 8-1 whipping of Taunton Jan. 5, it was Mattson (hat trick), McKeon (3 assists) and Campbell (goal) who paced the attack.

"They're our best players," Sylvia said. "They're the heart and soul of the team. With them out the team takes a different look. We just couldn't get anything going offensively. But the good part about this is it gives the younger kids some experience."

Quincy has now lost three straight games to fall to 3-4 overall and 1-3 in the Old Colony League. The players' incident came at an inopportune time as the team was taking on the top two squads in the league.

Silver Lake and Falmouth are both undefeated

in the league at 4-0.

All three players returned to the ice yesterday (Wednesday) when Quincy played at Plymouth South. Saturday night it travels to Bridgewater-Raynham.

"You know you are going up against some tough kids that know how to win," said Sylvia in regards to B-R. "They're not doing so good in hockey, but they win in every other sport. They know how to win. We don't. We have to fight and claw our way."

"I look at our situation just like the Bruins — we have to play desperation hockey."

North Quincy Boys In The Middle Of Things

At the halfway point of the season, the North Quincy boys' basketball team finds itself stuck in the middle — and that's what it expected.

North Quincy (4-6, 2-3) rests in fourth place in the Old Colony League standings after falling to Bridgewater-Raynham (6-3, 4-1), 68-59, last Tuesday, and Barnstable (9-1, 5-0), 77-50, Friday.

So we know the Red Raiders can beat the Falmouths and Tauntons, but they aren't quite ready for the top 3 powers of the league, at least for the first go-around.

"Right now we're in fourth place and that's where I thought we would be, right in the middle of things," said coach Ted Stevenson.

North Quincy played at Plymouth South (0-5, 0-5) Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it hosts city-rival Quincy (2-6, 2-3) at 7:30 p.m.

"It's an important week for us," Stevenson said. "We can even our record at 6-6. That's what we want to do."

"They just concentrated on him in the second half," Stevenson said. "That's what teams are going to start to do. They know he's our guy on offense and they'll try to take him out of the game."

Senior forward Matt McCann scored a team-high 15 points and dished out eight assists, and junior forward Mike Keddy scored

Quincy Girls Snap Skid, Down Plymouth S.

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy girls' basketball team headed into last week's games with no wins, Shaq-like free-throw shooting and, not to help matters, it was about to begin a seven-game journey on the road.

Although its woes from the foul line continued, Quincy (1-10, 1-4) snapped a 10-game losing skid with a 51-37 triumph over Plymouth South Friday night.

The Presidents fell to Falmouth, 53-47, last Tuesday. Quincy played Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it squares off against cross-town rival North Quincy.

"It was one of those games as a coach where you win and everyone plays and contributes," said coach Bob Noble. "It's the best of all worlds. 'We've lost some tough games this year but we haven't given up. We'll be fine the rest of the season. We'll be in every game.'"

Quincy received some

much needed outside shooting in its first win of the season. Senior captain Kelly Raymer scored 13 points, 11 of those from outside. The point guard's touch complimented the inside power game of senior Colleen Nichol, who finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds.

"We haven't been able to hit the outside shot on a consistent basis and [Friday] night they just dropped," Noble said. "Colleen Nichol continued to play her strong game. She's been outstanding all year and hopefully it will continue. I don't see why it wouldn't. She's a major force as an inside post player."

The Presidents shot 8-for-16 from the foul line but, luckily, it wasn't a factor as Plymouth South wasn't able to make a run to get back into the game.

Against Falmouth, however, it decided the game. The charity stripe was not so charitable as they were 11-of-32, including 6-of-20 in the first half.

"We've been schizophrenic about it," said Noble, in reference to the Silver Lake game in which they turned in a 25-of-35 effort.

Quincy had a 16-10 halftime lead and was able to hold on to it for most of the second half until it lost it with four minutes left in the game.

"We outplayed them," Noble said. "Once again, it was a game that got away from us that we should have won. At one point they were just fouling us and we didn't make the free throws."

"We closed in a little at the end but, with our inability to make free throws down the stretch, we couldn't make up the gap."

Quincy Boys Rebound, Kelly Back In Line-Up

The start of the season couldn't have been any worse for the Quincy boys' basketball team.

In preseason it learned that it would be without all-star guard Dan Kelly for five games. And the Presidents felt the aftershocks, winning just one game as they struggled to put together anything offensively.

But things don't look so bad now. Friday, they kicked off a home stretch, six of seven at Coddington St., with a 65-54 win over Plymouth South. And, oh yeah, Kelly is back and playing well.

Quincy (2-6, 2-2) played Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday and tomorrow

(Friday) it travels to Hancock St. in a showdown with North Quincy. Then, its next three games are at home, two against league powerhouses Barnstable and Silver Lake.

"This is a chance to right yourself," said coach John Franceschini. "If we can play well the next three games, winning at least a couple, we can be near .500 and correct our terrible start. We can set up the second half of the season."

And the Presidents hope they shoot the ball in the second half the way they did against Plymouth South. Quincy was relentless on the offensive end, shooting 47% from the floor and 79%

from the line.

The difference in the game was our offense," Franceschini said. "We shot the ball well. That's an enormous difference. There were no breaks, no lull in reference to points on the board."

Defensive has not been the problem for the undersized Presidents, which turned in another strong effort.

"Our defense remains strong," said Franceschini, whose team held Plymouth South to two offensive rebounds. "We did a great job on the defensive glass. We've been working hard."

The backcourt, seniors Chase Clarke (16 points) and Kelly (14), led the attack. Juniors Mark Robertson and David Centrella provided the spark, each chipping in with eight points.

Centrella scored three straight baskets during a decisive 12-2 spurt to close the game.

Arkansas Tech University senior Todd Mathews, son of Walter and Bette Mathews of Sprindale, Ark., formerly of Quincy, and grandson of Walter and Ruth Mathews of Quincy, was recently named Associated Press Little All-American.

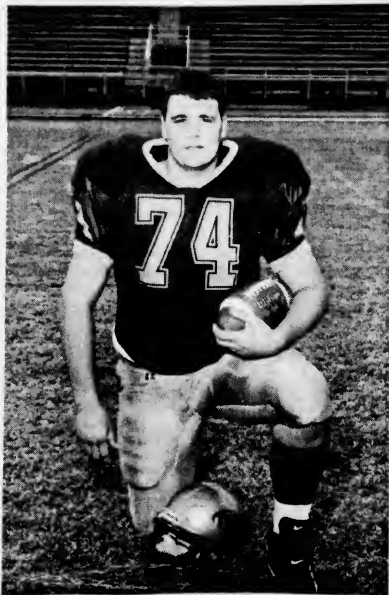

The 6-foot-5, 355-pound left guard was honored for his efforts in helping the 1999 Wonder Boys to a 9-3 overall record, and its first Gulf South Conference football title and first NCAA national football playoff appearance.

Mathews had 28 knockdowns and allowed just one quarterback sack on a team that attempted 369 passes. Mathews started the final 34 games of his career.

Mathews was also named to the All-Gulf South Conference team, the Daktronics All-South Region team and the Daktronics All-American team.

He was also selected to play in the Snow Bowl, an all-star game for NCAA Division II players held at Fargo, N.D.

The AP Little All-America team is chosen

North Quincy Edges Milton

By CHRIS POISSON

For about 42 minutes Monday afternoon, the North Quincy and Milton hockey teams matched check for check, save for save, and goal for goal.

As the minutes ticked away, you knew the game was coming down to that one critical mistake in which the other team would capitalize on.

Fortunately, for North Quincy, it was that "other team" when sophomore center Scott MacDonald picked off a telegraphed Matt Burke pass, broke the other way and barely beat Milton goalie Alex Saviola as the puck trickled in at 11:53 to snap a 1-1 tie.

The Red Raiders (3-6, 1-3) held on for the 2-1 win at Quincy Youth Arena, and it was much needed after last week's losses to Falmouth and Bridgewater-Raynham. Milton fell to 3-5-1.

North Quincy played Barnstable yesterday (Wednesday) and it will host Plymouth South Saturday at 7 p.m.

After a scoreless first period where North Quincy failed to cash in on a 2-on-1 breakaway, Milton stormed onto the ice to start the second. Just 38 seconds into the period, Milton center Chris Foster took a feed from Steve Lancione in the slot and beat junior goalie Matt Gregory for a 1-0 lead.

The way North Quincy's offense has been clicking this season, Milton's one-goal cushion might have been enough. But the Red Raiders answered as fast as St. Louis Rams score touchdowns.

At 1:50, junior forward Pat Lahar scored the equalizer when he skated in from the left circle and slipped the puck past Saviola as he fell to the ice.

Milton was on the attack for the rest of the period thanks to three power play opportunities. North

Quincy, though, killed all three as Gregory came up with some dazzling saves. Milton finished 0-5 on the man-advantage.

In the third period, both teams had plenty of chances to grab the lead. MacDonald and sophomore forward Joe Fitzpatrick muffed a 2-on-1 break at the 12:00 mark when Fitzpatrick didn't get enough wood on his attempt.

Less than three minutes later, Milton whiffed on its 2-on-1 as Gregory came up with the save. Quincy gathered the rebound and turned in to a semi-break the other way. MacDonald almost got the go-head goal as he blasted a shot from the point off the post.

from 6-7 p.m., and Saturdays from 9:30-10:30 a.m.

The coed volleyball program begins Feb. 1 and is designed for beginner and intermediate players. Beginners will meet Tuesdays and Intermediate players Wednesdays, both from 8-10 p.m.

North Girls Win Pair

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy girls' basketball team used some second-half wizardry to cook up a pair of wins last week.

The Red Raiders (5-4, 3-2) cast a spell on their Old Colony League foes, beating Barnstable, 57-43, Friday night and edging Bridgewater-Raynham last Tuesday to jump to third place, ahead of both, in the standings.

They hosted Plymouth South Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) they play rival Quincy at home at 6 p.m.

"That [Quincy] game will be a battle," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "They're playing tough basketball this season. They just haven't had any luck."

Against Barnstable, they overcame a turnover-plagued first half with some record-setting performances and against B-R, they overcame a 14-point second-half deficit with some scrappy defense.

"I'd rather see us play well the whole game," said MacFarlane, who watched his team come up short in two games the week before.

"We're getting into the habit where we think we can comeback every time in the second half. I've been around long enough to know it doesn't always happen."

North Quincy held a one-point lead, 25-24, against Barnstable at the half before it rolled away in the second half, despite committing 28 turnovers.

It used a 1-3-1 zone to slow down 6-foot-1 Liz Curley (19 points) who scored 10 first-half points.

"It worked somewhat," MacFarlane said. "She was tough to stop when she got a rebound because she held the ball up high. But she got most of her points when we were up 15 or 16 in the second half."

Senior guard Jill Nicholson drilled a school record

five three-pointers and finished with a team-high 22 points. Junior guard Casey Ridge tied the school record with 9 assists, 7 in the second-half surge. Sophomore forward Lauren Sleeth also had a tremendous all-around game with 12 points, 7 rebounds, 6 assists and 2 steals.

North Quincy trailed 35-23 to B-R at the half and then, MacFarlane said, "it mounted a severe comeback with scrappy man-to-man defense." It ended the game with 14 steals.

Sleeth scored 16 points to go along with 6 steals. Nicholson poured in 19 points, 14 coming in the second-half comeback. And freshman April Suprey contributed down the stretch with 8 of her 12 points.

Quincy Icemen Goal: Gain Tourney Berth

By CHRIS POISSON

After a 3-1 start to the season, the Quincy hockey team looked like it was going to fulfill its preseason goals.

Quincy had its sights on a league title and a tournament berth for a chance to compete for the coveted state championship.

But quickly those goals were flushed away when three players were suspended for two games for fighting at the end of a 5-2 loss to Barnstable on Jan. 8.

"Those goals are gone now," said coach Bob Sylvia. "That's what that incident cost us. We're just trying to somehow get into the tournament now."

Playing without its three best players — Scott Mattson, Bill McKeon, Paul Campbell — the Presidents lacked some serious offensive punch as they were blanked by Falmouth, 3-0, Saturday and Silver Lake, 5-0, last Wednesday, both games at home.

In Quincy's 8-1 whipping of Taunton Jan. 5, it was Mattson (hat trick), McKeon (3 assists) and Campbell (goal) who paced the attack.

"They're our best players," Sylvia said. "They're the heart and soul of the team. With them out the team takes a different look. We just couldn't get anything going offensively. But the good part about this is it gives the younger kids some experience."

Quincy has now lost three straight games to fall to 3-4 overall and 1-3 in the Old Colony League. The players' incident came at an inopportune time as the team was taking on the top two squads in the league.

Silver Lake and Falmouth are both undefeated

in the league at 4-0.

All three players returned to the ice yesterday (Wednesday) when Quincy played at Plymouth South. Saturday night it travels to Bridgewater-Raynham.

"You know you are going up against some tough kids that know how to win," said Sylvia in regards to B-R. "They're not doing so good in hockey, but they win in every other sport. They know how to win. We don't. We have to fight and claw our way."

"I look at our situation just like the Bruins — we have to play desperation hockey."

North Quincy Boys In The Middle Of Things

At the halfway point of the season, the North Quincy boys' basketball team finds itself stuck in the middle — and that's what it expected.

North Quincy (4-6, 2-3) rests in fourth place in the Old Colony League standings after falling to Bridgewater-Raynham (6-3, 4-1), 68-59, last Tuesday, and Barnstable (9-1, 5-0), 77-50, Friday.

So we know the Red Raiders can beat the Falmouths and Tauntons, but they aren't quite ready for the top 3 powers of the league, at least for the first go-around.

"Right now we're in fourth place and that's where I thought we would be, right in the middle of things," said coach Ted Stevenson.

North Quincy played at Plymouth South (0-5, 0-5) Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it hosts city-rival Quincy (2-6, 2-3) at 7:30 p.m.

"It's an important week for us," Stevenson said. "We can even our record at 6-6. That's what we want to do."

Mite B's Bow, 3-2

The Quincy Mite B team fell, 3-2, to a potent Tri-County club Saturday at the Neponset Arena in Dorchester.

Tri-County got off to an early lead and put Quincy in a hole from the beginning. However, Quincy battled back with the charge led by Wayne Milford, who scored Quincy's first goal with Joey Vialpando and Kevin Magoon assisting.

Pete Eley and Jeremy Mock provided superior defense, while Matt Rodriguez, Ryan Shea and Andrew McCarty applied the pressure on the Tri-County goalie.

Holding the Quincy team together, once again, was goalie Jeff Giordani who came up with several astonishing saves.

Magoon pulled Quincy within 3-2 with a third-period goal. Vialpando notched the assist.

Derek Murphy and Zach Helfrich tried hard to tie the game but the Tri-County team held off the late assault.

Animal Shelter Seeks Volunteers

The Ce-Ce and Friends Humane Society, a local animal shelter for cats, is working to ease the stray and feral cat population in the city of Quincy.

The society was founded in May of 1999 by Quincy resident Peggy Wright along with Karen Barrett and Maryanne Anderson.

One way the society helps is by trapping stray and feral cats and then taking them to a veterinarian or low cost clinic for spaying or neutering. The cats are then released.

Wright said she has been doing work of this sort on Center, Cross, and Miller Sts. for the past eight years. She also said that Quincy resident Karen Savallo has also been trapping and spaying in Quincy and that Quincy resident Michelle Fish has been working with the stray cat population in the Marina Bay area.

Christian Unity Service At Good Shepherd Church

All Christians are invited to participate in a service of prayer for Christian Unity sponsored by the Inter-church Council of Wollaston and North Quincy Sunday, Jan. 23 at 2 p.m. at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 15 Harvard St., North Quincy.

The worldwide Christian

Unity observance began in 1908 and is celebrated annually the third week of January.

For more information, contact Rev. Carol Snow-Asher at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston, 617-472-0824 or Rev. Bill Hamilton at First Church of Squantum, 617-328-6649.

Open Forum On Health Care Crisis Sunday At United Methodist

The Administrative Council of Quincy Community United Methodist Church will present a panel discussion and open forum on the current health care crisis Sunday, Jan. 23 in the church's social hall following the regular 10 a.m. worship service.

Members of the congregation will offer a pot-luck luncheon, during with time presentations will be made from the point of view of a patient, a community-based physician and a hospital-based nurse.

Moved by the social statements of the United Methodist Church which call for "health for all by the year 2000" and by sharp concern for the well-being of people during the current melt-down of the health care system, the Quincy church will provide an opportunity to discuss the issues and to explore possible solutions.

The program is free and open to the public.

The church, located at 40 Beale St., Wollaston, is handicapped accessible and a five minute walk from the Wollaston MBTA station on the Red Line.

Bethany Congregational

Rev. William Harding, pastor, will conduct the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center.

He will have a special moment with the children of the Church School before they go to their classes. His sermon title is "Fisher of Men."

Scripture reader will be Cheryl Totten. The Chancel Choir will sing under the direction of Thomas Boyer, organist. Irene King and Doris Allen will be greeters.

Childcare is available for infants and toddlers. Fellowship hour following the service will be hosted by Mildred Rickson and Sylvia Sanchez.

Social Security, Long-Term Care Insurance Seminar Jan. 31

Allerton House at Hancock Park, 164 Parkway, Quincy, will hold an informational session on Social Security and Long-Term Care Insurance Monday, Jan. 31 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in Allerton House Library.

Margo Jones, a representative from the Social Security Administration, will discuss new policies regarding Social Security. NoREEN Carey-Neville, CLU, ChFC, will speak on long-term care insurance and consumer financial options when additional personal care services are necessary at home, in an assisted living community, or in a skilled nursing facility.

The seminar is the second of a five-part Senior Education Series held at the assisted living community. The seminar, which is free and open to the public, will include a "question and answer" period. To reserve a seat, contact Peter Neville at Allerton House at 617-471-2600.

Red Cross Seeking Blood Drive Volunteers

Wollaston Congregational

Rev. Elden D.J. Zuern will deliver the message "Going Fishing" at the 10 a.m. Sunday worship service at Wollaston Congregational Church, 48 Winthrop Ave.

Rev. Zuern will have a message for the Church School children before they go to their classes. Coffee and fellowship will follow the service. Childcare is provided.

The Chancel Choir will be directed by the Minister of Music, Edwin Leach. Phyllis Dixon will be soloist.

Alice King and Beverly Goding are the greeters. Deacon on Duty will be Eleanor Cleveland. Acolyte will be David William Abbott. Scripture reader is Ottilie Scales.

United Methodist

Rev. Carol Stine will preach the sermon, "Angling Without an Angle" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Quincy Community United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., Wollaston.

Nick Atkinson will be lector.

Joan Honig will be the greeter and Virginia Hawes and Margaret Buckley the ushers.

Following the service, the administrative council will hold a pot luck luncheon. The council's topic is "should you have a right to health care?" Leading the discussion will be Sandy Eaton, R.N., Dr. Christine Farrell-Riley, M.D., and Dr. Alice Trost, Ph.D., economics.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

LET'S DEVELOPEMPATHY.

"Empathy" is the ability to put ourselves in the other person's place and have some understanding of their situation.

A little girl was late returning from school. Her mother asked the reason for her delay. The little girl explained that a playmate had broken her doll and she had stopped to help her. The mother, wondering how her daughter could fix the little friend's doll, asked how she helped and her daughter replied, "I sat down and helped her cry."

As we go through life many of us have been placed in situations where we could find no words to express comfort and encouragement. All we could do is to help them cry.

In this needy world, wouldn't today be a good day to show empathy toward those who are less fortunate?

It is a mistaken idea that everyone has an equal chance in this life and if they do not make it, it is their own fault. . . The person who will reach out to someone else will discover a satisfaction that only empathy can bring. . .

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

Your Social Security

Amount Of Benefit Depends On Earnings

By LAURIE ZASTROW

You will receive your annual IRS Form W-2 in the mail sometime in January telling you how much you earned during the past year. It's a good time to discuss the relationship between your earnings, Social Security taxes and the benefits they generate.

In fact, some of the answers may already be at your fingertips. Since Oct. 1, 1999, Social Security has been sending out statements to people 25 and over telling them how much they have paid in taxes and how much they and their families can expect in benefits when they retire, die or if they become disabled. And if your birthday is not close enough, you can call Social Security and have a statement sent to you.

Many people believe that how much they get in Social Security benefits will depend on how much they pay in Social Security taxes. That's not quite true. Actually, your Social Security benefit amount depends on how much you earn. It's based on your average annual earnings over your working career and generally the higher the average, the higher your benefit amount.

When you worked last year you paid Social Security taxes at a rate of 6.20 percent of your earnings up to $72,600. (This maximum amount of taxable earnings* increases each year with increases in wage levels; in 2000, it will increase to $76,200.) All your earnings are taxed at a rate of 1.45 percent for Medicare hospital insurance coverage.

The Social Security tax is a flat tax -- everybody pays on his or her earnings at the same rate. However, the benefit formula is progressive. It is weighted to pay a higher rate of return to low earners. In general, low earners may expect to receive monthly benefits equal to about 53 percent of their priority monthly earnings. Average earners get about 40 percent and maximum earners about 24 percent.

The highest benefit payable to a person who retires in January 2000 at age 65 after paying taxes on maximum taxable earnings over the years is $1,433. For the 65-year-old worker retiring in January 2000 with average earnings, the benefit is $987. The low earner receives $597.

To find out how all this adds up to Social Security protection for you and your family, you should review your Social Security Statement. You also can get your Statement from Social Security by calling toll-free 1-800-772-1213.

Your Horoscope by Natasha

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your tendency to be headstrong when faced with a confusing situation needs to be curbed. Instead of demanding answers, do some investigating on your own.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The divine Bovine would do well to be less accepting and a little more demanding in a romantic situation. What you hear may not be the full story. Get the facts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Gemini needs to come down to earth this week. Floating above your problems in the hope they'll go away just won't do it. You may be surprised at how easily things work out once you decide to tackle them.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) That funny feeling you have about a "too-good-to-be-true" offer is a clue to how you should deal with it. It may have hidden problems. Follow your instincts.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) That person who makes you feel uneasy about yourself shouldn't be allowed to get away with it. Don't be such a pussycat. A little Leonine roaring on your behalf will make that person look at you in a new light.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You like things in black and white. But too many evasions will turn a particular situation into a shade of gray. You're going to have to work harder to get the cooperation you're looking for.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters take an unexpectedly confusing turn this week. The problem won't last, but until it's worked out, be careful about what you plan to spend.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) There will be attempts to flatter you into agreeing with someone's viewpoint. Ask yourself why this person is trying so hard to get you to go along.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A career challenge forces you into a decision-making mode. Know all the facts before deciding. You have a friend who can offer advice, but it's you who must make the final choice.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You have many more admirers than you realize. People are pulling for you to succeed. Keep that in mind as you face that decision you'll soon have to make.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Your well-known tendency to put yourself out for others is repaid, and then some. An ally appears from an unexpected source.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A friend will need your compassionate concern. Give it wholeheartedly. In your career, prepare for a change. That job you want will soon become available.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: The watchword is challenge! You will be asked to assume certain responsibilities for which you think you're not ready. But once you discard the fear and face the facts, you may well change your mind.

Montclair Students Take Part In National Recycle Day

The Montclair School participated in "Montclair School Recycles Day" in recognition of National Recycle Day.

Each Montclair student brought to school one recyclable item (paper, plastic, or metal) which they delivered to blue bin stations which were set up on the school playground. Over 450 recyclable items were collected in the bins. Grade four and five students then emptied the bins into a BFI recycle truck which was manned by BFI representatives Elaine Dooley and Mark Neville.

Prior to the BFI visit, students learned in science classes about the importance of recycling, which items are recyclable, and what happens to items after the recycle truck picks them up.

In addition, grade four and five students were visited by Georgann Funke from Earthworm, a Mass-

Recycle organization dedicated to providing Recycling Education Assistance for Public Schools (REAPS).

During the visit, grade four students learned about source reduction and reuse, landfills, and they made recycled paper. Grade five students learned how to test types of soil for resistance to groundwater pollution in the area's neighboring landfills.

Graham To Speak On Sales, Marketing Trends

John Graham, president of Graham Communications, 40 Oval Rd., Quincy, will be the featured speaker in an audio conference to members of the Society of Financial Service Professionals on Tuesday, Jan. 25.

Graham will speak about the changing world of sales and marketing that exist today, identifying 12 trends that are shaping the way business is conducted. He will also address how the Internet has changed the buying behavior of consumers and how professionals, like financial and insurance planners, can meet these new challenges.

The audio conference will also be available to speak by telephone, while a presentation prepared in advance will be available to his "audience" on the Society's web page. Those with questions will be able to speak with Graham directly, via telephone, following his presentation.

Graham is the author of three books on marketing and selling, including the recently-updated The New Magnet Market, as well as hundreds of magazine and trade journal articles.

PRAYER TO ST. JUDE

O GLORIOUS APOSTLE St. Jude, faithful servant and friend of Jesus, the name of the traitor who delivered thy beloved Master into the hands of His enemies has caused thee to be forgotten by many, but the Church honors and invokes thee universally as the Patron of Hopeless cases, of things almost despaired of. Pray for me who am so helpless and alone. Make use, I implore thee, of that particular privilege granted to thee to bring visible and speedy help where help was almost despaired of. Come to me assistance in this great need, that I may receive the consolation of succor of Heaven in all my necessities, tribulations and sufferings, and in particular, that, (here make your intention) and that I may praise God with thee and with all the Saints forever, I promise thee, O Blessed St. Jude, to be ever mindful of this great favor and never cease to honor thee as my special and powerful patron, and to do all in my power gratefully to encourage devotion to thee. Search On For New Medical Center CEO

Sheets said. "He held things together at the hospital in probably the most difficult time in the hospital's 109-year history."

"He was never rattled. He was always a calming influence. He helped position Quincy Hospital for its new birth in the private world."

"Jeff's personal commitment to Quincy Medical Center was unequalled during the long transition process and without it, the transition would not have been successful. Jeff Doran will be missed," Sheets added.

Curry praised Doran for his guidance the last two years under challenging circumstances.

"The Board is grateful to Jeff for his guidance to the Medical Center over the past two years. His leadership helped pave the way for the transition to Quincy Hospital to Quincy Medical Center."

Curry announced he will be the chairman of a search committee to identify a new chief executive officer for the Medical Center. Sweeney will not be a candidate to succeed Doran as the next CEO.

Two other Quincy Medical Center employees, Janet Madigan and Renee Buisson, are leaving Feb. 18 to pursue other opportunities. "Both have contributed much to this institution and we wish them well," Curry said.

Madigan has served as vice president for Patient Services and chief nursing officer since 1997. Carol Gagnon has been named interim vice president for Patient Care Services. Madigan was associate vice president of Patient Services from 1996 to 1997.

Buisson has been employed at the hospital and medical center for nine years. She has served as associate vice president of Public Relations since 1996. Previously, she was director of Public Relations from 1990 to 1996.

Until Buisson's successor is hired, public relations consultant Karen Schwartzman will handle inquiries regarding the medical center's leadership transition.

Doran said the time is right to move on since the transition period from Quincy Hospital to Quincy Medical Center has "stabilized."

"Now that things are relatively stable and secure organizationally, it's really a good time as any to step back, from a leadership standpoint, and allow new leadership, reflective of the changed character and profile of the board, to move forward," Doran said. "I came here to help save the hospital and the hospital was saved. My work is complete. There's no question about it."

Doran said he is most proud of preserving Quincy Hospital which he called a "critical community asset" as well as saving the jobs and continued health care for the greater Quincy area.

"But it was a team effort. I was only a small piece, but I do feel a personal sense of satisfaction."

Doran said he also feels a sense of accomplishment by being able to "harness the character and energy and drive of this workforce. As a workforce, we all had a near-death experience, but we've proven to ourselves that, whatever it takes, we can do it. This workforce can overcome any challenges."

Sheets said Quincy

Medical Center is undergoing "tremendous changes."

"Clinical changes will demand administrative changes. Jeff Doran helped position the hospital to be private and independent and now the hospital has to be private and independent."

Doran said he will stay on until March 1 to provide stability through the leadership transition.

"I'll work as hard as I can to accomplish that. I will work hand in hand with Mary Sweeney and other administrative and medical personnel to ensure a smooth transition," Doran said.

Sweeney has been employed at the health care facility for 17 years, including the last four as vice president of Strategic Services. In that position, she has managed numerous departments, including planning, marketing, public relations, Asian services, volunteer services, managed care, occupational health, pastoral care, quality resources, rehabilitation services and corporate compliance.

Sweeney participated in the development of the legislative strategy resulting in successful passage of a home-rule petition and funding legislation creating Quincy Medical Center. She also provided support to the Board and the Mayor's Strategic Partnering Task Force leading to the decision to form a comprehensive clinical affiliation with Boston Medical Center.

From 1983 to 1996, Sweeney was director of Planning and Marketing.

She received a master of science degree in health administration from the University of Massachusetts in Amherst in 1983 and a bachelor of science degree in biology from Simmons College in 1974.

Search Committee Formed To Find Doran's Successor chaired by Bob Curry, chairman of the Quincy Medical Center Board of Trustees.

Other trustees serving on the committee are:

Dr. Guy Spinelli, Dr. Tim Babineau, Paul Drew, who is vice president for Network Developments at Boston Medical Center, and Bob Griffin of Quincy, a lawyer with the Boston firm Krokidas and Bluestein.

The Board named Mary Sweeney, vice president of Strategic Services, interim CEO during the transition. Doran's resignation is effective March 1.

Sweeney will not be considered for the permanent CEO position, said Karen Schwartzman, a public relations consultant hired to handle media inquiries during the transition period.

"The search for a new Quincy Medical Center chief executive officer has begun. The committee wants to move as quickly as possible, but it will be a thorough and exhaustive search," Schwartzman said.

The Board of Trustees also appointed Dr. Stephen Tarpey as a new Board member.

Focus On New Apparatus And Stations Council Looking Into Major Needs For Fire Dept.

By CRAIG SALTERS

The City Council Public Safety Committee will look into cited major needs of the Fire Department including new firefighting apparatus and other equipment and modernizing fire stations.

Chief Thomas Gorman pointed to cracking cement floors and small door openings where engines have to be "shoehorned" to squeeze them into the stations, some of which were built in the "horse and buggy days."

Gorman said that most of the 1970's apparatus has been phased out but equipment purchased in the 1980's is in need of replacement.

The matter was sent to the Public Safety Committee on a resolve Jan. 18 by Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi who is committee vice-chairman.

Raymondi wants the committee to conduct hearings on both the capital and personnel needs of the fire department.

"It's time that the Fire Department take center stage, at least from a Public Safety Committee standpoint," Raymondi said Monday.

"A lot of our firehouses are in disrepair and the committee needs to work with the chief and the firefighters to find out where improvements are needed and to advocate for those improvements."

"It will take a lot of work, but let's have a solid discussion and debate over the next few months and come up with a strategic plan for the Fire Department."

Raymondi said he knows, for example, that the Quincy Point fire station is in need of capital improvements and noted that Councillor Michael D'Amico is trying to get a new ladder truck for West Quincy.

Gorman told The Quincy Sun Tuesday his two highest department priorities are modernized fire stations and new equipment in that order.

"We've maintained our stations well," he said. "There's been the new exhaust ventilators and the replacement of windows, but there hasn't been a real modernization in the last 30 years."

Most of the stations, he said, cannot fit engines with rear-mounted aerials. As an example, he noted, the Central fire station and a rear-mounted aerial both had to be redesigned recently so that the aerial would fit in.

Gorman estimated a new fire station would cost roughly $1 million. The price tag on a new engine is about $350,000 and a new ladder truck approximately $600,000, he said.

As for personnel, Gorman said:

"I would like to see numbers back to the Proposition 2 1/2 levels but, (Cont'd on page 25)

Cautious Optimism For Manor Residents

City councillors wanted Wollaston Manor residents to leave Monday night's Senior Citizen Committee meeting knowing two things.

First, that all current Wollaston Manor tenants would be protected from rent increases.

And second, that the city's support of Silver Street Development's proposed purchase of the 91 Clay St. building was quite conditional and would be pulled if SSD did not live up to its promises.

SSD promises include portable section 8 vouchers for current residents and that Wollaston Manor will be 100 percent affordable housing and will remain so "in perpetuity."

Councillor Daniel Raymondi chaired the Senior Citizens' Committee fact-finding meeting and was joined by fellow councillors and committee members Michael D'Amico, Joseph Newton, Patrick McDermott, and Stephen Durkin.

Council President Paul Harold participated in the meeting, as did former councillor and current State Rep. Bruce Ayers. State Senator Michael Morrissey spoke at the outset of the meeting.

David Keene, manager of the Preservation and Technical Services Department at the Massachusetts Housing and Finance Agency, and Jack Mather, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, spoke at length, explaining the details of the complex issue.

Edward Doherty of SSD was unable to attend the meeting due to a family emergency, confirmed John Keenan, executive secretary to Mayor Sheets.

Many Wollaston Manor residents were also in attendance.

SSD wants to purchase Wollaston Manor from Apartment Investment and Management Co. (AIMCO) but will do so only if it receives 9 percent tax credits (Cont'd on page 25)

Bay Pointe Inn Finally Gets Those 84 More Seats

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

After nearly a year of waiting for approval to add 84 more seats to their eatery, the owners of the Inn at Bay Pointe at 54 Washington Court, were given a unanimous vote at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The affirmative vote, however came with a couple of amendments, one that they would never have another request for expansion. And that if problems did arise from the added traffic, that the License Board would reserve the right to re-visit the issue.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing owner Damien Pettiness, Edwin Cabot Limited Partnership, said the expansion of the seating area from 160 to 244 seats does not change the "footprint of the building" and the open deck presently used in the summer would now be enclosed.

He promised the board that the owners would not ask for any more expansions.

He said that several meetings he attended with residents held at the Fore River Clubhouse, produced more supporters than abutters.

Vin Brian, of the Rizzo Associates did a traffic study in which he said cars would be increased by about 40 percent. He added that in some instances, it is difficult to know if the cars were going to the restaurant or to a boat in the marina.

Ward 6 Councillor Dan Raymond, who has opposed the expansion, insisted that Quincy's engineer Jack Gillan address the traffic issue as he did last spring when the request for expansion first surfaced.

Gillan said when there is more traffic in residential neighborhoods, there is always an "impact".

Although Raymond wanted to board to wait until Feb. 8 to give Gillan a chance to investigate further, board members all expressed a desire to vote on the expansion at Tuesday's meeting.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, who spearheaded the vote to expand, said he attends the restaurant at times, and hadn't noticed any traffic problems because of the proximity to the restaurant being in the back of Washington St.

Building Inspector Walter White agreed with Gorman and said he didn't think the addition of 84 seats would generate any more traffic.

When Raymond asked the board to wait until Feb. 8, Fleming said there was "no need to study this to death", and that it was "time to put it to rest."

He reminded the board that the restaurant is located in an "industrial site", and that it "unfair to the owners" not to address the issue at Tuesday's meeting.

Finally, after the amendments to the motion, the board's vote was unanimous. The owners and the attorney seemed elated.

Bank of Canton To Host Homebuyer's Seminar Feb. 9

AN AUTOMATIC RESPONSE

Vehicle owners may not give much thought to servicing automatic transmissions, but they should consider periodic replacement of their hydraulic fluid and internal filter. This is particularly important when the vehicle is involved in "severe use" conditions, including stop-and-go city traffic, periods of prolonged idling and extremes in temperature. Filter/fluid replacement (typically, every 30,000 miles) is important for automatic transmissions because a part called the valve body (which controls upshifts and downshifts) contains dozens of small orifices and passages where dirt, debris and metal shavings collect. Unless removed, these contaminants can lead to poor shift quality and overheating or even eventual transmission failure. The cost of regular transmission service is a small price to pay to preserve an expensive transmission.

Our ASE Certified service technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will do their part in making sure your car is properly maintained for maximum performance and efficiency, whether it is something as simple as changing the transmission fluid, to more complex engine work. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550), we look forward to meeting you and to give your car the same level of personal attention we give our own. Hours: Mon-Fri 8am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We're "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

HINT: The high-heat conditions associated with automatic transmissions can cause transmission fluid to oxidize over time, thereby compromising its ability to lubricate and transfer power through the transmission to the drive wheels.

License Board Denies Point Liquor License Transfer

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board Tuesday, voted to deny the transfer of the 11th Chapter Saloon to the Usual place, Inc.

Aiden Hughes, who was about to purchase the former Quincy Point Pub, located on 536 Washington St., from owner Steven Barrett, also owns other businesses, one in particular in South Boston.

Addressing the board about Hughes was Police Chief Thomas Frane, who said although the establishment in South Boston was owned by Hughes's wife, it was difficult to find someone when a problem arose. He said Hughes was the landlord of the building.

And even though Hughes finally sold the establishment in South Boston, Frane said he was felt that Hughes was not an "acceptable" person to transfer the license to.

He said the inability to identify ownership when problems arise might happen in "here in Quincy."

On that premise, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he was ready to vote in favor of the transfer until this information came to light.

Comments by Atty. Matthew J. McDonnell, representing the Usual Place and Atty. Louis Cassis, representing Barrett about the improvement to the area because of Barrett fell to deaf ears.

Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi, who was always opposed to the transfer, read a letter written last spring by the Alcohol Beverage Control Commission to deny the transfer. However, Atty. Louis Cassis, representing Barrett said Raymondi didn't finish the letter that it did in fact, support the transfer.

Rev. Dan Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Church reiterated earlier comments made last spring when the request first came before the board, about the parking and the proximity to the church. Others speaking against the transfer included the principal of St. Joseph's School.

During the lengthy discussion at city hall, at one point, Chairman Joseph Shea said he thought the location of the establishment had "outgrown itself", and said the board couldn't keep "denying the transfer." as commented Atty. Louis Cassis. He added he would "do anything to get rid of this case".

However, opinions changed after Frane's revelation and thus the motion to deny.

Both McDonnell and Cassis showed disappointment as they walked out of he city hall chambers with McDonnell indicating an appeal.

ED CARROLL, WBZ-TV meteorologist and Parker School alumnus, answers questions from Parker School 3rd, 4th, and 5th graders on "weather events" such as hurricanes, snowstorms, and tornadoes. Carroll, whose mother still lives in the neighborhood, said he felt "at home" at the school and that it was good to be back. Carroll is a former Quincy Sun news carrier.

Public Safety Committee To Study City-Run Ambulance Service

Councillor Dan Raymondi wants the city to consider the viability of taking over ambulance services.

As part of resolution concerning capital improvements to the Quincy Fire Department, which was sent to the Public Safety Committee Jan. 18, Raymondi included instructions for the committee to gather information on the "present and future Ambulance Services for the residents of Quincy to include analysis of City of Quincy takeover of ambulance services."

Raymondi said the measure was prompted by the near-loss of Quincy Hospital and the ambulance services connected to the hospital. Right now, Raymondi said, the Quincy taxpayer does not pay for emergency ambulance service but that is not true in all communities.

Raymondi, who noted that city control of ambulance service was the case in Quincy roughly two decades ago, said the committee's job would be to explore the options, resources, and costs involved and assess whether city control would be a wise or unwise decision.

"The Public Safety Committee needs to do its job in asking the right questions and, hopefully, getting some answers," Raymondi said.

D'Amico Has Eye On Dedham

Mike D'Amico has his political sights trained toward Dedham.

The young Ward 4 city councillor is warming up to a run for Norfolk County Clerk of Courts this fall.

"I'm giving it some serious thought," he acknowledges. "I've been talking it over with my campaign committee and should have a final decision in early February."

D'Amico's interest in running has been kindled by speculation that Nick Barbadoro, veteran and popular incumbent, might not seek re-election.

Barbadoro, a long-time Quincy resident and attorney now living in Braintree, has been in the clerk of courts office 34 years -- the last 19 as top man.

Anything to the speculation that he might step down instead of running for another six-year term?

"I've heard the speculation," he says. "But it's a little too early to say what I will do. I'll probably decide around the first of March."

D'Amico indicates he is considering running whether Barbadoro seeks re-election or not.

But says, "I would be more encouraged to run if he did not."

But if Barbadoro decides to retire, D'Amico still wouldn't have clear sailing.

Walter Timilty of Milton, an experienced assistant clerk under Barbadoro, reportedly will run if the boss doesn't.

Like Barbadoro, D'Amico and Timilty are Democrats.

Democrats -- especially Quincy Democrats -- do well running for office in Norfolk County, a once-upon-a-time Republican stronghold.

Quincy Democrats holding current offices are Sheriff Michael Bellotti, Treasurer (also councillor) Tim Cahill, Commissioner John Gillis and Register of Probate Thomas Hughes.

And Barbadoro was living in Quincy when first elected Clerk of Courts in 1981. He was appointed to the clerk's office staff by John Concannon in 1965 and run for clerk when Concannon was named a district court judge.

One of Barbadoro's opponents for the job in 1981 was former Mayor Joseph LaRaia.

The Norfolk County Clerk of Courts office has the reputation of being one of the best operated county offices in the state.

D'Amico, who is only 24 (25 in April) hasn't been one to shy away from challenges in his brief political career.

Now starting his third term in the City Council, he was only 18 when he made his political debut running against Ward 4 incumbent Tom Fabrizio in 1993. Fabrizio won that election by 277 votes.

It was close enough for D'Amico to try again in 1995 and this time, he squeezed out an 84-vote margin victory at age 20, the youngest city councillor elected in the city's history. He was easily re-elected to a second term in 1997 and last year won a third term unopposed.

D'Amico is now in his first year at Suffolk Law School as a day-time student.

If he decides to run for clerk of courts, will he be able to juggle his time going to school, campaigning and serving as Ward 4 councillor?

He says he has school options like night classes to allow him to campaign and sees no problem campaigning and carrying out his council duties.

He sounds like he is running.

PAUL HAROLD, as the new City Council president, got to be acting mayor for the first time over the weekend while Mayor James Sheets was out of town.

Among his official mayoral duties:

Checking on a heating problem at the Drohan Apartments in West Quincy, bringing the greetings of the city to the Asian New Year celebration at North Quincy High School and cutting the ribbon at the opening of the Wah Cheung Hing Chinese market at the site of the old Naborhood Pharmacy in North Quincy.

Harold, of course, has mayoral ambitions. So, how did it feel getting that close as acting mayor?

"It didn't feel much different from being city council president," he says. "The recognition you get as acting mayor is nice but ..."

But, not like the real thing, Paul?

ED CARROLL, WBZ-TV meteorologist, visited the Parker School, his elementary alma mater the other day and talked with students about hurricanes, snowstorms, tornadoes, etc.

It was like coming home for Carroll who grew up on Hollis Ave. where his mother, Helen, still lives.

He is a 1982 graduate of North Quincy High School. Wonder how many remember him as a young Quincy Sun carrier delivering the paper to homes in the Billings Rd. - Hollis Ave. area?

"I was probably in sixth or seventh grade, somewhere around there," he recalled in The Sun's 30th anniversary issue in 1998.

"At the time the paper was only about 10 years old. I'm almost positive it was my first job ever.

"At Christmas, I'd come home with $15 in my pocket, which was huge. It was a lot of fun."

Goes without saying that we at The Sun are proud to have him as a member of our alumni.

READERS FORUM

Shares Harold, McCauley Skepticism On Shipyard

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Although our former shipyard has yet to start building ships, it is constantly in the news. And none is good.

Two Quincy leaders, Paul Harold and Frank McCauley, have been skeptical since the start of the promises made by the shipyard promoters.

Other Quincy 'leaders' in sharp contrast, have exhibited true faith in the face of any logical doubts and believe every word of the promoters.

As far as I can determine the success of the shipyard is contingent on two factors: No. 1: American taxpayers keep sending an unending supply of our money to finance the shipyard. No. 2: American taxpayers furnish millions to some foreign firm so that the foreign firm can buy the ships produced by No. 1.

I have not found any mention about who will pocket the profits in the unlikely scenario that lightning will strike, a miracle will take place and the shipyard does become profitable. Nor, who got the funds when at the onset the movable assets of the former owners were auctioned off.

His Old Plymouth Isn't Doing Well

Editor, The Quincy Sun: My old Plymouth sedan has obviously contracted the Y2K bug. Right now things look fatal. It sits waiting for a part to be found in a junkyard somewhere. Of course, it is nearly 13 years old and is no longer as reliant as its name would lead you to believe.

Since New Year's Day my old Plymouth has spent more time in the shop than not, or at least that's how it feels. One thing after another goes bad. The other day, it happened again on Beale St. by Wollaston School just before school ended. It died right in traffic on me. Remember that old TV sitcom, My Mother the Car? Well, this is My Toilet the Car. You know the car in a goner when you start referring to it as that toilet of yours.

I just wanted to thank everyone at the Wollaston School from the principal to the office secretary to the janitor to the teachers who all came to my rescue by letting me stay inside the school building until the tow truck arrived. Outside with the wind chill factor, it felt very, very cold.

There must be an unwritten rule for cars that they only die on you in December or January when it's freezing. As I watched the mechanics working on my car, it looked like an episode of Chicago Hope or ER. Maybe, it ain't dead yet but the end certainly appears quite close.

I don't know what I would have done if the Wollaston School wasn't right there. Thankfully for me this school has such caring folks working there.

I could have been driving on the Expressway when my engine conked out. That's a little scary just thinking about it. I could have been totaled along with my car and my letter writing career over before its time.

Meanwhile, I sit and wait taking the dreaded MBTA to work like in the old days before my first car. Maybe Lt. Governor Jane Swift could pick me up for work in her chopper.

Thanks again to everyone at the Wollaston School.

A Thank You From The Teddy Bear Foundation

Editor, The Quincy Sun: The third annual Teddy Bear Drive was a huge success. The Teddy Bear Drive Foundation collected and distributed more than 2,323 new teddy bears to 24 local shelters and social service organizations in and around Boston. Twenty-five fire departments and storefronts, including the Quincy Fire Department served as drop-off sites.

The Teddy Bear Drive Foundation would not have been so successful without the tremendous support of The Quincy Sun for helping to promote the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation. We could not have exceeded our goal without the help of Ellen March for organizing a Drive at St. Mary's School that collected 200 new teddy bears. We would also like to thank Diane Wilke, a volunteer who tended to the Quincy Fire Department.

Thank you to Ron Nadeau, Salem U-Haul and Alberto Santiago, Saugus U-Haul for donating the boxes that were used at each drop-off site.

A huge thank you goes to Don Knuutila and the staff at the Boston Tea Party Ship & Museum for sponsoring the Teddy Bear Tea. Many generous people came to the event with a new teddy bear to donate to the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation. Also, thank you to Pearson's Hardware, Byfield, for donating two Christmas trees for the event.

We would also like to thank Teak Media Communications, South Boston, for handling the public relations and McGowan Associates, Boston, for donating accounting services.

Thank you to everyone who made monetary contributions. Donations will be used to handle expenses associated with running the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation and to purchase additional teddy bears to be distributed among less fortunate children.

Our children are our future. If we work together to make a difference in their lives today we can help them to shine tomorrow. Together we can help another child find comfort and security during the holidays and throughout the year.

The kindness people expressed toward the Teddy Bear Drive Foundation is greatly appreciated. Thank you for your support.

Five Foot Snow Drifts Cripple City

By PAUL HAROLD

A northeast blizzard hit the region with winds of more than 40 miles per hour, creating five-foot snow drifts.

Both Squantum and Hough Neck were cut off as high tides swept over the causeway and Sea St. at the Willows. Civil Defense set up an evacuation center at the Atherton Hough School in case high tides required the relocation of families living in low-lying areas.

Schools, courts and stores were all closed. Post Office Supt. Frank Anselmo called off all mail deliveries, except for Quincy Center.

MERGER CREATES NEW ELECTRIC CO./

Seven regional electric companies, including the Quincy Electric Company, formally merged this week, creating the Massachusetts Electric Company.

Richard Parsons, vice president of the Quincy office, said that the final approval was given by the Department of Public Utilities and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

JUDGE TOURS SOUTHERN ARTERY SITE

Judge Edmund Dewing toured the Southern Artery site of a proposed $1 million bowling alley, that was recently approved by the Board of Appeals.

Rep. Joseph Brett brought suit against the Board of Appeals, claiming they exceeded their authority. He said that the city council zoned the land to protect the residential area and the use as a bowling alley would be detrimental.

On site for the tour were the judge, Brett, City Solicitor Douglas Randall and attorneys for the owners of the land, the Faxon Trust.

QUINCY-ISMS

The city council's finance committee gave quick approval to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa's four part, $2.9 million capital outlay package. Included in the package was money for an incinerator, and x-ray building at the hospital, a new gym at NOHS and $150,000 for a branch library. . . Eelers from all over the state flocked to Black's Creek in Merrymount, one of the best eeling grounds in Massachusetts. The eelers came equipped with axes to cut through the ice and spears to snare the eels who were in the creek in semi-hibernation. A good eeler could fill his burlap bag with 50 pounds of eels. . . Blood donors included, from the Quincy Fire Department: Matthew Mullen, Carl Valenti, Anthony Malvesti and Charles Arienti; from the Koch Club: Marjorie Page, Chanel Levasseur and Frank Caporale. . . Rev. Thomas Daily spoke to the North Quincy K of C on his work in Peru. He was the former curate at St. Ann's who worked with the Society of St. James the Apostle in Peru. . . Herb Fontaine of WJDA was the disc jockey for the record hop, sponsored by the NOHS junior class. . . By a vote of 153-2, Bethany Church members adopted the constitution of the United Church of Christ. Rev. John Banks reported that of the 584 Congregational churches in the state, Bethany ranked number five in terms of giving. . . The S.S. Mt. Vernon Victory left the shipyard for two days of sea trials, traveling to Bethlehem Steel's Hoboken, N.J. yard. It was the eighth 46,000 deadweight ton tanker built at Fore River. . . James Kelley moderated the Montclair Men's Club's forum of South Shore transportation that featured representatives Joseph Brett and James McIntyre. . . The newly formed Quincy Point Youth Commission met at the Ruggles St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Boston. . . Mayor Della Chiesa requested D.P.W. Commissioner Charles Herbert to draw up plans to replace the pedestrian bridge over the New Haven Railroad tracks at Warren Ave. . . Holly Grazioso and Alice Helfrich were presented the Marion Award in ceremonies at St. John's for members of Girl Scout troops 36 and 37. . . Purchasing agent Thomas Morrissey was asked to price a new fire engine for Squantum. . . Roger Forbush was elected treasurer at the annual meeting of the Adams Shore Community Church E.U.B. . . Weather prevented Rev. Thomas Tierney from attending President Kennedy's inaugural parade. He helped organize President Eisenhower's inaugural parade. He did attend the annual banquet of the Quincy Firefighters' Association at the Morrisette Post. Tierney was the department's Catholic chaplain with Rev. Chester Porteus of Christ Church the Protestant chaplain. New association officers were Albert Godfrey, president; Patrick McAuley, vice president; Peter Cooke, treasurer; and Robert Granahan, secretary.

Cancer Society Seeks Daffodil Days Volunteers

The American Cancer Society (ACS) needs volunteers to help make this year's celebration of Daffodil Days a success.

Volunteers work with ACS staff and are needed to help coordinate the distribution of daffodils purchased in their communities as well as raise local awareness.

"Every spring, American Cancer Society volunteers welcome a deluge of daffodils to sell throughout their communities during the last days of winter," said Hank Bradley, Daffodil Chairman in the South Shore Unit. "Already recognized as the harbinger of spring and a vibrant symbol of hope, the daffodil and the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days program have become a successful way to raise money for the cause of cancer control in our communities."

To launch the program, the American Cancer Society buys acres of flowers from growers in the state of Washington. The flowers are then purchased by hotels, schools, restaurants, businesses, clubs, banks, churches, government offices, shopping malls and hundreds of individuals in return for donations to the

HENRY BRADLEY

Society's research, reduction and patient service programs.

Daffodil Days will be celebrated March 27-30. To volunteer to bring this beautiful symbol of hope into businesses, homes and schools throughout the community, call Donna Abruzzese of Kathy Melito at (508) 584-9600.

Bouquets of 10 daffodils are $5. Funds raised will support the Society's local services and programs for cancer patients and their families.

Advance orders may be placed with the American Cancer Society before March 10 by calling (508) 584-9600.

Rita's Veggie Dip

A birthday party in Scituate and another recipe, this time for a sumptuous appetizer that is truly out of this world.

I'm not a fan of most dips, but this one made by our daughter Rita was the best I've ever had. The only problem was it didn't last long because even the little darlings loved it!

Rita's Spinach-Artichoke Dip

1 -10 ounce frozen spinach (thawed and drained)

1 can whole plain artichoke hearts (chopped coarsely)

3/4 cup mayonnaise

3/4 cup parmesan (save three tablespoons to sprinkle on top)

Place all ingredients in a corning ware or tempered glass covered bowl mixing well.

Bake for 30 minutes in a 350 degree oven. (or microwave for five minutes or until heated through).

Sprinkle with parmesan cheese and place under broiler to lightly brown top (optional).

Serve with crusty French bread or crackers.

Bottle, Can Drive To Benefit Robotics Team

The Quincy Public Schools Robotics team will sponsor a bottle and can drive Saturday, Feb. 5 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Returnables should be brought to the Center for Technical Education, 107 Woodward Ave.

Proceeds will benefit students attending the National Robotics Championship in Disney World, Orlando, Fla., April 6 to 8.

Ward 5 Democrats To Elect Delegates Feb. 8

Registered Democrats in Quincy Ward 5 will hold a caucus at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, 225 Fenno St., Tuesday, Feb. 6 at 7 p.m. to elect 10 delegates and four alternates to the 2000 Massachusetts Democratic Convention.

Delegates will be divided equally between men and women.

The convention will be held Saturday, June 3 at Tsongas Arena in Lowell. The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Quincy. Candidates for delegate and alternates must consent to nomination in writing. All candidates may make a two minute statement and may distribute materials on their behalf. All ballots will be written and secret.

Those registered Democrats unable to attend may be considered for delegate and alternate by two thirds of those present and voting. Those not elected as delegate and alternate may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority and disable.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited. Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 129 Portland St., Boston 02114, no later than 10 days after the caucus.

For more information, contact the Democratic State Committee at 617-742-6770.

BEECHWOOD COMMUNITY Life Center recently presented an award of Appreciation to Fallon Ambulance. Dinner Dance Raises $12,500 For Bob Bell Memorial Scholarship

A recent dinner-dance held at St. Mary's Parish Hall in memory of former Quincy resident Bob Bell netted more than $12,500 in proceeds to benefit a scholarship fund named in his memory.

Members of the planning committee for the event thank the 330 people who purchased tickets for the evening and the host of local businesses which donated raffle items. Proceeds of the scholarship fund will be invested, and added to annually in support of a North Quincy High School scholarship named in memory of Bob Bell. Parameters for the scholarship selection have not yet been announced by the family, but the first scholarship will be awarded this school year.

In addition to proceeds raised directly from the evening's festivities, special cash donations were added to the scholarship fund by Bell family members and the many individuals, businesses and firms who came to know and appreciate Bob's contribution to the Quincy community through his personal and real estate relationships.

Special thanks to the following local businesses and individuals who contributed to the success of the event:

Abigail's Crossing, Barry's Deli, Best Western/Adams Inn, Frank Brillo Catering, Bob Caldera, Common Market Restaurant, Canam Consultants, Caryn's Corner, Joanne Condon, Condon and Walsh Realty, Rick Coughlin, Coughlin & Co.; John

Houghton, Jack Conway and Company, Inc.; Jimbo's South, Michael King, Bank of America Mortgage, Bob and Jean Mackey, Kelliher & Mackey Insurance Agency; Market Brokers', Peggy Marsney, Matthew Messing Memorial Golf Tournament.

Michael's Wine and Spirits, Vincent Moscardelli, ERA Central Real Estate; Jim Murphy, Northeast Mortgage Associates, N.Q.H.S. Football Boosters, N.Q.H.S. Parent Council, Atty. George Padula, Parkway Texaco, Quincy Public School Athletic Department, Steve Richmond, Century 21 Richmond Associates, St. Mary's Parish.

Atty. David Spillane, Spillane & Epstein, P.C.; Brian F. Spillane, Consumer Home Mortgage Corp of America, P.V. Sullivan Plumbing Supply of Quincy, Tapestry Flower Co., Steve Tobin, Bob Torroco, Atty. Thomas Williams, and Dr. Allan Yacubian.

Additional donations in support of the Fund can still be made to: Bob Bell Scholarship Fund, 38 Jenness St., Quincy, MA 02169.

For further information concerning the fund, contact Peter Sorensen at (617) 471-2437. Organizers hope to continue to hold an annual event to assist in the growth of the fund.

Quincy 2000 Program Offers Businesses 100% Financing

Quincy 2000 Corporation now offers Quincy busi- nesses 100 percent financ- ing at below-prime interest rates through a unique pub- lic/private loan program.

Quincy 2000 works closely with local banks and financing lending institu- tions to provide businesses with a unique financial in- centive package that fits their individual needs.

Financing Facts:

- Interest rate is ap- proximately 90% of prime rate.
- Rates are fixed for a term up to five (5) years.
- Quincy 2000 portion of the loan is a maximum of 35 percent of total cost project.
- Quincy 2000 portion of the loan is maximum of $50,000.

Fees
 • Application fee of $100 (applied to the closing cost, non-refundable).

• Closing fee of 1/2 per- cent on the entire loan amount is collected at the closing.

 • In most cases "standard" lending institu- tion documents will be used, therefore will not be a preparation fee. When addi- tional documentation is nec- essary, attorney fees will be the responsibility of the bor- rower.

Eligibility Criteria

- Quincy businesses (existing or relocating)
- Creation of one new full-time job (or part-time equivalent) for each $15,000 of assistance provided by Quincy 2000 portion of loan.
- Secured private fin- ancing of a minimum of 65% of total project cost.

• Funds can be used for purchase of equipment, real estate, and to support in- ventory and accounts re- ceivable.

Example

• A Quincy business seeks to expand its produc- tion capacity through the purchase of new manufac- turing equipment totaling $200,000. The company receives approval by a fi- nancial lending institution participating in this program for a minimum of $150,000. Quincy 2000 provides gap financing of $50,000 in a deposit account that serves as equity for the loan and reduces the loan's interest rate. The business agrees to create four new jobs over a three-year period.

Other Notes

- Major projects creating significant numbers of new jobs are eligible for higher cap.
- Interest rate will vary depending on prime rate at time of closing.
- Funds used for projects that include construction are subject to the Davis-Baron Act prevailing wage rates.
- Quincy 2000 loan funds are provided by the City of Quincy through the federal Community Block Grant Program.
- For more information about this program, contact Quincy 2000 at (617) 847-1454.

Open Space Plan Surveys Available

The City of Quincy's Open Space Committee an- nounces open space sur- veys are available which will help compile the city's up- dated Open Space Plan.

Quincy residents can attain surveys by requesting them from the Quincy Park Department at (617) 376-1254.

The Open Space Plan survey was developed to gauge citizens' view of the needs of open space pres- ervation and the priority it holds against other munici- pal interests. The informa- tion will be analyzed and utilized to help develop the City of Quincy's 2000 Open Space Plan.

Surveys will also be placed throughout the city's community centers and will be available at selected municipal buildings. Deadline to return the surveys is Tuesday, Feb. 29. They can be returned to the Quincy Park Department or local community center.

The Open Space Plan is a master plan for open space and parks that must be up- dated every five years. The Commonwealth of Massa- chusetts requires an active Open Space Plan in order to be eligible for many state grant programs.

This past year, the City received $250,000 through the state's Self-Help grant program to help purchase the Dickinson property at Marina Bay. The matching funds will help preserve this five-acre parcel of consider- able environmental signifi- cance.

The Open Space Com- mittee was formed by Mayor James Sheets in 1999. His appointments to the committee include: Paul Kennedy, Conservation Commission; Peter Kenney, Park and Recreation Board; Thomas Koch, executive director of the Park, For- estry and Cemetery De- partments; Rosemary Nolan, Department of Public Works; Dave Murphy, Park Department; and Howard Mackay, citizen representa- tive. Past City Council President Peter Kolson ap- pointed Councillor Paul Harold, Ward 5 Councillor Steve Durkin, and State Rep. Bruce Ayers.

REAL ESTATE

Facts You'll Need To Know Before You Do

So You Want To Sell Your Home?

By MARY DAWSON

At some time in your life you will be faced with selling your home.

This could be a condo, a single-family or even a multi-family property. The prospect can be daunting at first light but with the right information it can be a pleasant event.

First, the inevitable dilemma what is my home worth? The next how long will it take to sell and what do I need to do to effect a smooth transition?

Now the facts. My questions and your answers will make the whole process simple and my job easier. I need to know about upgrades and replacements and repairs that you have done and dates as close as possible. Many people today are tracking their expenses on computers and can print out reports quickly. In lieu of that any receipts or permits issued or canceled checks will jog your memory.

The next part is what features appealed to you when you purchased your home. These should still be important to the next buyer. It is important to be candid with yourselves as sellers, if something was not updated buyers will usually double the cost of replacement. If the kitchen predates the 70's the buyers will be looking at $15,000 to $20,000 to remodel. Should you be able to freshen the look with new paint or paper, now would be the time.

As the broker I have to look at the property with a realistic, objective eye. Just as an appraiser, I have to evaluate the condition, the location, the convenience of schools, churches and shopping as well as public transportation. It is also the time as sellers to disassociate yourself emotionally from your home.

Many buyers act with emotion but most are more concerned with their monthly payment and the location of their home. Today's buyers are watching interest rates and closing costs more closely than ever before. Homes that need work will only appeal to buyers if they are priced correctly. They will appeal only to buyers who can do the work themselves or those that can take the time out to have contractors in and out. With work schedules today not many have the luxury of being home to meet electricians, plumbers and the like.

The market now has more buyers than sellers but they are very careful and are looking at many properties before acting. When a home comes on the market, properly priced and showing well, there will be offers quickly made by today's buyers.

Another fact to keep in mind is the availability in showing. The easier it is to see, the more buyers will be viewing in a shorter period of time. Nights and weekends are the most popular times yet with flexible schedules buyers are available seven days a week.

The next fact is showing comfort. Remove any bulky furniture that might stand in the way of a convenient traffic pattern. Pack away clutter or get rid of it since you will be moving soon.

Closets should be cleaned out of clothing that is not being worn. This make storage look more ample and this is always a buyer pleaser.

Curb appeal is the last act to recognize. If the exterior of your home and grounds is pleasing to eye, it will gather more showings. Trim trees and shrubs, rake leaves, cut grass, paint trim and to keep window shades up as blank windows detract from a warm welcome.

My agents are trained to work with sellers in creating a more market ready listing. Even if you are not ready to sell, give us a call and we will give you a complimentary analysis that will include these points and more. It will be my pleasure to hear from you.

New Lending Program Helps Sellers, Buyers Clear Financing Hurdles

By CAROL BULMAN

Jack Conway and Company is the only real estate company in the state that offers its sellers short-term financing options.

Through our newly established Conway Capital Lenders, a subsidiary of Jack Conway and Company, sellers have the ability to apply for short-term financing to cover the following:

- Repairs of septic systems to meet Title 5 codes.

- Removal of lead paint.
- Renovations and upgrades to prepare your home for sale.

• Costs of satisfying concerns identified during a home inspection.

This entity was established as a result of the growing need for funds to solve many hurdles faced by today's home sellers.

Regulations imposed by the state and the federal governments, specifically the Title 5 septic code and lead paint-removal law, often place a financial burden on home owners when they decide to sell their properties.

In recognition of these challenges, we created this separate company to offer sellers who list their homes with Conway a convenient way to finance these upgrades.

Home inspections often present another financial burden for the home seller, as buyers often will request that repairs be done as a result of the inspection. Conway Capital Lenders is a source for short-term funds for these repairs to upgrade a property in preparation for sale.

Recently, a senior couple who were selling their family home of 35 years to enter a local assisted-living facility were helped by this program. The property's septic system failed the Title 5 test and needed a $12,000 upgrade.

Although this couple had fixed income and equity in their home, they were unable to pay to upgrade their septic system before the closing. Enter Conway Capital Lenders. The Conway real estate agent brought together the seller and a mortgage specialist from Conway Financial Services.

As a result, the seller borrowed the funds to upgrade the septic system. Conway was able to market the property with a new Title 5-approved system, and the seller received the price they wanted for their home.

At paper passing, the seller paid off the short-term loan to Conway Capital Lenders, and all parties involved were happy.

Our pledge to Jack Conway Company customers is to make the purchase and sale process as seamless as possible. Conway Capital Lenders is just one more way we accomplish this.

Conway Capital Lenders also helps buyers. CCL offers short-term financing solutions such as bridge loans or second mortgages. This program is also available to investors for short-term construction and renovation loans.

Another customer of the

CAROL BULMAN

Jack Conway Company planned to tap $50,000 in equity from the sale of their current home to use as a down payment for the purchase of a new home. They found a new home sooner than expected, and faced two challenges: First, how to purchase the second home before getting the money from the first sale; and second, if they did find a down payment source, how to pay for two houses until the first one sold.

This is a great example of how Conway Capital's programs assisted a Conway buyer. Because of this buyer's good credit standing, the equity available between the two properties, and the fact that the first home was under agreement, Conway Capital loaned this customer down-payment money to buy the new house.

As an added benefit, Conway Capital deferred payments during the 30 days the loan was outstanding. Once the first property was sold, the debt was paid off to Conway Capital.

Therefore, Conway Capital Lenders makes the same pledge of exceptional service to buyers that we make to sellers.

Please call Conway Financial Services or a Jack Conway and Company agent for more information about how to make your dream home a reality.

Carol Bulman is president of Conway Financial Services, a mortgage brokerage firm owned by Jack Conway and Company, that maintains correspondent lending relationships with some of the top mortgage lenders in the east and originates a full line of mortgage products. Jack Conway and Company is the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Tips For Parents Of Newborns

Babies need to be fed; that's why they wake up so often. They have tiny stomachs that won't hold enough to get them through the night. Parents should not try to get them to sleep through the night in the early weeks and months of their lives.

"Parents with newborns are pretty much in survival mode," says Lynne Bail, a parent educator who visits new parents at their homes and conducts New Mothers Groups through Jewish Family & Children's Services in Newton.

But rest assured. The morning will come when you awake refreshed by a good — or at least reasonable — night's sleep.

Some newborns get day and night mixed up, sleeping during daylight hours and waking through the night. Bail says parents can help these babies adjust by providing a calming, quiet nighttime environment with no light. In the daytime, make sure there is more noise and light.

Another problem is that parents have not yet learned to read the infant's behavior.

"Look at what the baby is telling you," says Bail. "Is the skin getting blotchy? Is she crying, averting her gaze or staring? Those are techniques infants use for getting themselves together again."

Often a baby's crying and fussing is due to exhaustion. If a parent misinterprets the behavior and tries to engage the baby, it can overstimulate her. "Hold her as much as possible, but remember there is a point where holding, rocking and singing become overstimulating for some babies," says Bail. This is when it's time to swaddle them and put them down.

Bail emphasizes that all babies are different, and what soothes one may not work for another. She reminds parents of newborns that they can't spoil a baby or ruin his sleep patterns by holding him — unless he's being overstimulated.

What Concerns Parents: Safety

Unintentional injuries are the No. 1 cause of death among children less than 5 years old. Being aware of your child, objects in her world and events that can trigger accidents make a real difference when it comes to safety, according to Laurie Grandmott, program coordinator for the Kennedy-Donovan Center in New Bedford.

Some areas in which to practice vigilance for infants:

- Always keep a hand on baby on the changing table.
- Nothing should be placed around a baby's neck for fear of strangulation. This includes necklaces, pacifiers or any corus.
- Check baby's toes. A hair or thread pulled tightly around a tiny toe can cut off circulation so that the toe would be lost.
- When bathing your infant, check the water temperature, put a washcloth under baby to keep him from slipping and always hold him under the arm.

- Keep talcum powder off limits. It can block a baby's lungs when inhaled.

- Always use a car seat, even in a cab or when riding with a friend. Make sure the car seat is installed properly in the middle of the back seat, facing to the back until the baby can sit independently. Some hospitals offer classes on proper installation of a car seat. With air bags, the front seat of a car should be off limits until a child reaches adolescence.
- Babies should not be left on any surface higher than the floor. Even strapped into a seat, infants' reflexes allow them to rock their seats so they could fall off a table, chair or bed.
- Keep babies off waterbeds or any other surfaces where he can't lift his head clear when lying on his stomach.
- Avoid warming baby's bottle in the microwave. It heats unevenly, resulting in dangerously hot spots. If you must use the microwave, shake the bottle and test the temperature before feeding. Or run the bottle under hot tap water.

"There's nothing wrong with room temperature," says Grandmott.

- Don't prop the bottle. If the baby's head is in position where he can't get away from the nipple if he's starting to choke, there can be serious harm.
- Pets should not be allowed in the crib with a baby. Keep an eye on pets that were part of the household before the baby was born. There can be jealousy,

A Mother's Tip

One young mother helped her son make the transition from cuddling to crib by holding a receiving blanket close to his cheek while he fed, so that part of it was between her and the baby. He then found the receiving blanket a comforting reminder of Mom when he had it in the crib at sleep time.

Milestones

By the end of the third month your baby may:

- Raise head and chest while lying on stomach.
- Watch faces intently.
- Turn head toward direction of sound.
- Enjoy playing with other people.
- Smile at the sound of your voice.

Playing with Baby

The sort of play that elicits the most uproarious giggles from little Georgia Petrik are singing and clapping games.

"I sing and clap her hands at the same time," says Ann Marie Petrik. "I don't know if she's laughing at me, at my voice, or because she enjoys the singing."

Time for Yourself

Family is the key to Shannon Lavelle's finding opportunities to get out on her own. "I'm very lucky that my parents live in the next town over and are very open to baby-sitting," she said.

Her husband will take over responsibility for their son, Dan, on weekends, but Shannon finds she can't relax at home if the baby is there — she's always answering a question or running downstairs to help. So every now and then she goes out for a relaxing manicure.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
"Do I need two hearing aids?"

"Need" is the tricky word here. We can all manage with some degree of difficulty with one ear, one eye, etc.

We should be asking "what is my potential and how can I achieve it." Your choice has a tremendous impact on your quality of life. Recent studies have been published by several researchers examining the phenomenon of "auditory deprivation" and "acclimatization". The first, deprivation is the brain's inability to process sounds and speech, because of a lack of input over several years time. For instance the person that waits 10 years to get a hearing aid, expects instant correction and puts it in the drawer after two days of trying it. The brain needs time to recover this function!

"Acclimatization" refers to the brain's ability to recover or improve the ability to process sounds, once proper amplification has been introduced. It takes time and practice to reap the benefits of hearing aids. Yes, both ears should be fitted if possible and if medically approved.

Quincy Girls Have Own Reason To Celebrate

By CHRIS POISSON

At halftime of Friday night's game, the North Quincy girls' basketball team threw a surprise 50th Birthday party for coach Doug MacFarlane.

But the celebration was short-lived as Quincy crashed the party in the second half to run away with a 54-36 victory.

"It's a nice experience. I like beating North Quincy," said coach Bob Noble, who coached the football team to last year's Thanksgiving Day victory. "To beat a great team, and it being your rival, it doesn't get any better than this."

Quincy (2-11, 2-5) followed that performance with a trip to undefeated Taunton Monday. The Presidents played them tough, overcoming a 12-point deficit with 2:30 left in the game, but came out on the short end, losing 64-63.

Tomorrow (Friday), they'll try to pick up their third win in four games when they go on the road to face Barnstable.

Trailing 23-19 at the break, the Presidents outscored the Red Raiders 35-17 over the final 16 minutes to upset their cross-town rivals on their own court. The Nichol sisters, Colleen and Caitlin, led the surge with their scrappy-style of play.

"It was a tremendous team effort," Noble said. "We didn't give up. We came out in the second half and executed extremely well."

Quincy matched basket for basket early on before North Quincy (6-5, 4-3) went with the press with about eight minutes left in half, and the game tied at 8-8.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL:
Quincy: 54 North Quincy: 36

The Presidents panicked and the result was an 11-0 run by the Red Raiders. Add in the 1-for-7 shooting at the line and you understand their first-half struggle. Free-throw shooting has frustrated Quincy all season long, costing them several games earlier in the season.

"The free throw jinx haunted us in the first half and the press bothered us a little," Noble said. "Their team speed is better than ours and we knew that coming in. We have the tendency to panic a little when other teams press. We just have to relax."

The one thing Quincy had going for itself was it never let sharpshooter Jill Nicholson get into a groove.

Caitlin Nichol held the senior guard to 8 points, 3 in the first half.

"We took the ball out of Nicholson's hands and the strategy worked for us," Noble said. "Caitlin Nichol did a tremendous job. She held Nicholson to eight points, about 10 off her average. And she contributed offensively in the second half."

Indeed, she did. Caitlin poured in 12 points, hitting jumpers, runners, leapers and layups. She couldn't miss. Colleen, meanwhile, displayed the total package with defense, rebounds, assists, points and leadership. She finished with a monster double-double (17 points, 17 rebounds).

"Our go-to player was big in the second half," Noble said. "She's the best player in the Old Colony League. She was impressive."

Quincy outscored North Quincy, 16-5, to begin the second frame. When Caitlin hit a runner in the lane to make it 35-28, North Quincy called a timeout with 8:50 left to try to regroup. It didn't work.

The Presidents reeled off a 10-2 run, led by Caitlin's six points, and the game was out of reach.

Senior forward Katelyn Sullivan, who hasn't seen much time this season, nailed a shot at the buzzer to get on the board as her teammates cheered her on.

"I'm happy for her," Noble said. "She's a great individual who plays the best she can every day. For me, personally, I'm very excited to see her do that."

"I can't say enough about all the kids. It's just a great win. Hopefully we can build on this for the second half of the season."

Senior point guard Kelly Raymer finished with nine points and senior forward Kaitlin McLaughlin scored 11 points, 7 in the second half.

Sophomore guard Lauren Sleeth paced North Quincy with 11 points and junior guard Casey Ridge chipped in 10.

Presidents Pull Out Win

By CHRIS POISSON

Quincy's Sean Fitzpatrick stood outside the visiting locker room emotionally drained after Friday night's clash with city rival North Quincy.

The senior played 32 minutes of smashmouth football, only the left tackle wasn't on the gridiron, he was on the hardwood centering the undersized Presidents against the Red Raiders' frontline giants — 6-7 Dan O'Toole and 6-9 Justin Drysdale.

And when he calmly sank a short jumper from the right baseline with 29 seconds left to put his team up three, 44-41, he had every reason to feel the way he did.

"I'm just overjoyed," Fitzpatrick said after his team pulled out a 48-44 triumph. "I saw the shot was open and I had to take it."

Asked if he knew it was going in and he said, "Oh yeah."

Fitzpatrick and the Presidents have every reason to be confident. The win, in their enemy's gym, improved their record to 3-7 overall and, more importantly, pushed them back to .500 in the league at 3-3.

With its next three games at home, Quincy is in position to make a leap towards a possible tournament berth. It played Taunton Tuesday, which it beat earlier in the season. And then it takes on the top two teams in the OCL — Barnstable tomorrow (Friday) night and Silver Lake Tuesday.

"This was a big game for us, beyond the North Quincy rivalry, because of our injury problems," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "Hopefully we can start to string a few together towards a tourney berth. We needed this to keep our season going."

BOYS' BASKETBALL:
Quincy: 48 North Quincy: 44

After a strong first half in which it built a 27-17 lead, Quincy hit a dry spell to start the second frame, going the first six minutes without hitting a field goal. As well as it executed in the first 16 minutes, it did just as poorly during this stretch.

"We just broke down," Franceschini said. "We got out of our scheme and started taking poor shots."

North Quincy (5-7, 3-4), meanwhile, ignited its offense with a 14-2 spurt led by senior Matt McCann's three buckets. The forward hit a long jumper, a leaner and his layup with a little over seven minutes left gave the Red Raiders a 31-29 lead.

"We changed up our defense and confused them a little bit," said North Quincy coach Ted Stevenson. Finally, we started shooting the ball in the basket which we didn't do a good job with in the first half."

Senior point guard Dan Kelly (20 points) followed with a long three for Quincy' first field goal of the second half, and the game was a seesaw battle the rest of the way.

Senior forward Andy Tam nailed back-to-back shots for Quincy to tie the game, 39-39, with about three minutes to play. Kelly came up with a steal and went coast-to-coast for a layup, but after a North Quincy timeout, McCann (15 points) tied the game on a touchdown pass off the inbound.

But Quincy stepped up its defensive pressure and Fitzpatrick's shot sealed the game as it was just a matter of the waiting out the late-game free throws.

Fitzpatrick held the Twin Towers in check on the boards and the tandem combined for only 6 points, all by O'Toole.

"Our defense won this game," Franceschini said. "It has been strong all year. We held a good team to 17 points in the first half. I'm really proud."

The first half was back-and-forth as both teams exchanged baskets for the first six minutes. Quincy called a timeout with 10 minutes left and after that it came out scorching, going on an 18-8 run before the break.

Kelly led the surge with 11 points in the half, including two threes, a three-point play and a behind the back pass to Fitzpatrick for an easy score.

If it weren't for sophomore sensation Phil McGillicuddy, who scored 8 of his 13 points in the half, North Quincy would've been embarrassed on its homecourt.

North Girls' Track Shines

The North Quincy girls' track team came up with outstanding performances in a series of meets in recent weeks.

At the MSTCA team pentathlon, North Quincy found itself among the state's elite and despite many personal bests, it finished 11th overall with 2429 points.

Sophomore Laura Wells ran the hurdles in 10.54, freshman Krystle Neves cleared the high jump at 4'73/4", and senior Lisa DellaCroce tossed the shotput at 24'101/4". Senior Lynda Wilson wrapped things up with a 2:34:92 in the 800 meters.

At the Martin Luther King Invitational for freshmen and sophomores at Franklin High School, Neves won the high jump with a leap of 4'6" and sophomore Natalie Caron took second place in the two mile with a 13:15 clocking. Other competitors were Meghan Haines, Kara Cheesman, Sam Chaisson, Kate Marchard and Laura Wells.

Senior Sarah Houghton and Caron both came up big at the Rhody Classic Jan. 15 with season bests in the 3000 meters. DellaCroce was just shy of the 30' mark in the shot-put (29'7") and freshman Jessica Jacques continued her assault in the 600 meters, eclipsing the two minute barrier again with a 1:58.1.

North Quincy competed in a tri-meet make-up with Falmouth and Plymouth South Tuesday, and it brings eight girls to the State Coaches Invitational Saturday at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Quincy Cruises In Third Straight Win

By CHRIS POISSON

Before Monday night's game, North Quincy coach Bob Doyle told his team not to be intimidated of Quincy's potent top line, one of the best in the Old Colony League.

He knew what that line was capable of. He checked out the box scores of Quincy's last two games — a 7-5 win over Plymouth South last Wednesday and an 11-1 whipping of Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday.

The Red Raiders (4-8, 2-5) may not have been fearful, but they didn't do much to slow the line down as the Presidents (6-4, 4-3) cruised to a 4-2 victory, their third in a row, before a packed house at Quincy Youth Arena.

"Right now we're playing good hockey," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "If we keep going like we're going, the second half of the season is going to be very interesting."

Prior to its modest win streak, Quincy suffered a let-down when its top line missed two games as it served a suspension for fighting at the end of the Barnstable game on Jan. 8. Those two games happened to be against the top two teams in the league (Silver Lake and Falmouth) and Quincy lost both as it didn't score a single goal.

"Our team has to score goals," Sylvia said. "I give North Quincy credit holding us to three [the fourth was an empty-netter]. You saw the first two periods. We had some quality shots out there."

They sure did. The first line — sophomore Bill McKeon and juniors Scott Mattson and Paul Campbell — led the assault as Quincy outshot its city rival, 26-6, after two periods of play.

Quincy held a 3-1 lead after 30 minutes but it easily could've been 13-1 if it weren't for North Quincy goalie Matt Gregory (30 saves) turning back shot after shot.

"Quincy pretty much carried the play," Doyle said. "They were all over us. They forechecked very well. We started the game back on our heels."

"I told them not to be intimidated by Quincy's first line. Our inconsistencies getting the puck out of the zone combined with Quincy's up-tempo style in the first and second periods, pretty much sealed our fate."

It took only 17 seconds for Quincy to get on the board. McKeon blasted a shot from the right circle and sophomore forward David Germain knocked home the rebound for the quick strike.

At 2:32, the Presidents made it a 2-0 cushion on almost an identical goal. This time Mattson fired a shot from the right circle and McKeon scooped up the rebound to beat Gregory.

In the second frame, Gregory kept the game close with some dazzling saves and North Quincy finally put one in the cage. Sophomore center Scott MacDonald skated up the right side, deked defenseman Shane Kabilian near center ice and moved ahead untouched to beat goalie Ryan Kruegar from the slot at 11:17.

Quincy, though, made it 3-1 when senior tri-captain Brian Nolan redirected Matt Conso's shot from the point past Gregory at 1:02.

Midway through the final stanza, the Red Raiders finally started to put some pressure on Quincy. At 4:25, MacDonald struck again as he flew past two defenders and flipped the puck past Kruegar to cut the lead to 3-2 on the power play.

"In the third period I just told them we are down 3-1 and we have nothing to lose so we have to take a little bit more offensive chances," Doyle said. "Scotty MacDonald has been my go-to guy all season. Give him a lot of credit. He drove to the net and got that goal which seemed to give us a spark."

North Quincy was on the attack the rest of the game, but Kruegar bailed out his teammates with eight saves down the stretch.

"We get into these defensive ruts once in a while where we think our defensemen are going to get the puck out of our zone," Sylvia said. "The third period was a little bit helter-skelter when it really shouldn't have been. But it's a typical Quincy-North Quincy game: when one team is behind, the other always comes back."

Mite A's Travel Roll To Two Wins

The Quincy Mite A travel team continues to roll in recent Greater Boston Youth Hockey League action.

Quincy knocked off Somerville, 6-3, Saturday and edged Needham, 3-1, the previous week.

Doug Haskins blasted a pair of goals to give Quincy a 2-0 first-period lead. In the second both teams traded goals. Defenseman Mike LeBel, who has played solid two-way hockey all season, scored for Quincy.

In the third, Johnny Magliozzi netted two goals and Chris Brown chipped in with one. Somerville tallied two to close out the scoring.

Against Needham, Quincy fell behind early but evened the game before the end of the first on Brandon Gilmore's goal.

In the second, Quincy peppered the Needham goalie, and Haskins and Brown each found the cage for a 3-1 advantage and the eventual win.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

A FEW FACTS ABOUT FEET

The foot is a 26-bone structure. Its 33 joints, 107 ligaments, 19 muscles and tendons hold it together and allow for a variety of movements. Each foot contains 125,000 sweat glands, which excrete nearly two pints of moisture weekly. About 75% of Americans suffer foot problems at some point in their lives. Women have four times as many problems as men, mainly due to the prolonged use of high-heeled shoes. The feet bear pressure that exceeds body weight during periods of walking—this pressure grows to three to four times body weight when a person runs. The feet are a mirror of an individual's general health. Arthritis, diabetes and nerve and circulatory disorders often show initial symptoms in the feet.

The feet are the foundation of the body and keeping them strong and healthy is fundamental to your entire body's well-being. When foot problems occur, correcting them early on often leads to the correction of aches, pains and problems in other parts of the body. If foot problems point to trouble elsewhere in the body, or result from other conditions, we will work with the members of your health care team to ensure your good health. Keep your body's foundation in the best of health - call us at 617-472-3466, 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

P.S. Neglect and little awareness of proper care bring on most foot problems.

Montclair Students Learn About Water Conservation

AmeriCorps members with Massachusetts Community Water Watch (MCWW) recently taught Montclair Elementary students about water conservation as part of MCWW's week-long, state-wide environmental education program.

MCWW presented various lessons to students about the importance of water and water conservation and the effects of pollution on local waterways.

Lessons ranged from 1st graders acting out how water molecules move under different heat conditions to learning about the three phases of water to 3rd graders conducting a family feud between an 1890's and 1990's family to demonstrate the importance of water conservation.

This is the second year for MCWW's January Education Week. The fifteen member group spends the second week in January traveling to five Massachusetts' urban centers to teach school children about water quality using hands-on, interactive activities.

AMERICORPS VOLUNTEER Molly Brownwood instructs Montclair Grade 4 students Robert DePace, Stephen Burke, Shirley Chen, and Matthew Coughlin in the value of water conservation during a recent visit to the elementary school. The presentation was part of a week-long environmental education program by Massachusetts Community Water Watch. (Quincy Sun Photo/Robert Noble)

"The education tour is a fun and exciting way to teach a large amount of children the importance and necessity of water," explained AmeriCorps member Beth Cullen. "The students become better stewards of their local waterways, the environment, and their communities. Our lessons provide a different way of learning about science and the environment that is often hard for teachers to do in the daily classroom setting."

The AmeriCorps members and Water Watch volunteers made over 140 presentations and educated over 2,000 students during the course of their state-wide tour.

Massachusetts Community Water Watch is an AmeriCorps program with funding from the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG) Education Fund and the Massachusetts Service Alliance.

New Year Fitness Resolutions

By MICHELLE I. COX, MS
EXERCISE PHYSIOLOGIST

Many of us make and break the same New Year's resolution every year — to lose those extra pounds and get in shape. We tell ourselves that this is the year we are going to develop a fitness routine and stick to it. But all too many of us have found that resolving to do something and actually seeing it through are often two completely different things.

There are many benefits of physical activity. Being fit can increase energy levels and strength. It can help in the prevention of serious conditions such as coronary artery disease, diabetes, and osteoporosis. Exercise can even benefit people who suffer from depression.

So how do we go about making this the year that we finally stick to our resolution to incorporate fitness into our lives? The first and perhaps most important thing you need to do is make the commitment to increase the physical activity in your life. Tell yourself I WILL instead of I WILL TRY. Once you have made the commitment to add exercise to your life, the rest will become easier.

Make the time to exercise. One of the most common reasons people give for not exercising regularly is lack of time. While there are no easy solutions to this all-too-real problem, you have to ask yourself if you are truly committed to developing a fitness routine. If you are, then you simply must make the time for exercise. Wake up a little earlier and go to the gym or stop at the park on your way home from work to take a walk. You will find that whatever time you can set aside for fitness will be time well spent.

Find activities you enjoy. If you dread going to the gym or can't seem to get yourself motivated to attend the aerobics class, you probably need to find other activities that are more fun or interesting to you. Try taking a walk with friends. Go swimming a few times a week. Take a dance class. You will find that if you like what you are doing, you are more apt to make it a part of your fitness routine.

Be realistic. Sometimes the reason people fail to establish a regular exercise routine is that they set unrealistic expectations. If you are a beginner exerciser, don't try to leap right into a strenuous exercise regimen — start off slow. Park at the farthest space in the parking lot and walk the extra distance into the shopping center. Take the stairs instead of the elevator. Once you become used to these activities, you can gradually begin to increase their duration and intensity.

Stay away from excuses. If you are making excuses not to exercise, ask yourself why. Do I not enjoy the activity I have chosen? Am I being unrealistic in my goals? If you find you are more motivated to come up with reasons why you can't or won't exercise, you may need to look for the reason so you can begin to change this counterproductive behavior.

Don't beat yourself up when you miss a workout. If you weren't able to get to the gym because your daughter had a dance recital, it doesn't mean the end of your fitness goals. If you miss a workout, simply start where you left off the day before. Life is not going to stop so you can exercise, so get back on track if you miss a workout or two.

View getting and staying fit as a way of life. Increased physical activity can help you feel better and making it a permanent part of your lifestyle will help you reap the benefits for many years to come.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

The dictionary defines the word "creed" as "any system of belief or of opinion."

The value of any creed lies in its use, not in its possession. What we believe is important, but the diligence with which we give ourselves to the keeping of any creed may have is vastly more important. The world is interested not so much in the creed we profess as in the creed we live by. The creed we leave at the church door or at home will not do us nor the world much good. The question is not only, do you have a creed?, but, do you have it with you?

Someone once said that Ralph Waldo Emerson had a short creed, but he took it with him... The same thing was said of a certain business man. His creed might have been summed up in the word "honesty." It was short, but from the time he awoke in the morning until he went to bed at night, he carried it with him; and everyone recognized this...

Salome's Stars

- ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You often use charm to get people to see things your way - but this week you could run up against a Cancer who wants more than sweet persuasion. Prepare some hard facts to prove your case.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your usual commonsense approach to decision-making wins out again. There will be some changes in your financial situation that you can turn to your benefit.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You need to nourish your inner self. Get away for a while from all that artificial light and closed-in surroundings. Mother Nature will do wonders for your spirit.
- CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your love for travel pays off this week when someone you met on a previous trip makes contact with you. Your career may seem stalled right now, but be patient; a big change is in the works.
- LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're the hottest cat around and a certain Libra would love to bask in that warmth you exude. There's a chance of a major move at work that could mean relocating overseas.
- VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your penchant for neatness is to be admired. But in your zeal to tidy up the loose ends of a relationship, don't cut yourself off forever from someone who loves you.
- LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You could be called upon to exercise leadership in a difficult situation. You may feel a little uneasy at the prospect, but you know it's something you can handle.
- SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Someone at work wants to know a secret that someone else has confided to you. All sorts of persuasion will be offered to get you to reveal it, but stick to your principles.
- SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This is a good time to mend a relationship that once held great promise. The longer you delay, the more difficult it will be to patch things up. Take care of a minor health problem immediately.
- CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You may feel a mite frisky this week. Great. You earned the right for a real caper. After the fun, get back to some fundamentals, including an outstanding money matter.
- AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Family is your priority this week. Reach out to someone who may be too proud to ask for help. At work, speak up about a problem that is affecting you and your coworkers.
- PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You may be trying to do too much too soon. Slow your pace a little and you'll find you can accomplish what you need to do without pushing yourself to exhaustion.
- YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You may feel a little let down because you're not sure that people appreciate what you do for them. Not everyone can express how they feel, though; be assured that you are appreciated and loved, and for that, you should consider yourself very lucky.

Cautious Optimism For Wollaston Manor Residents

from the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development, an agency which administers federal funds for subsidized housing for seniors. That application was submitted last week and a decision is expected in April.

If approved, the tax credits would give SSD roughly $4 million in actual value which the company would use to acquire and renovate the property. The credits would also ensure that the building remain subsidized housing.

SSD is also seeking 164 Section 8 preservation vouchers from the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for current Wollaston Manor residents. The vouchers essentially guarantee that, despite proposed rent increases for future residents, current residents would still pay the same rent. The vouchers would be portable, allowing residents to move from Wollaston Manor and still be eligible.

At the meeting Keene and Mather agreed that the proposed state tax credits were the best way to keep Wollaston Manor affordable housing.

"When they (SSD) get the tax credits, they commit to 100 percent affordability," Mather said. "The tax credit program is an essential piece of assuring 100 percent affordability. Without it, a developer could move to market value and no one could really do anything about it."

Keene said that the tax credit agreement assures 30 years of affordable housing but that SSD has trumped that with use-restriction by promising affordable housing "in perpetuity" in the actual application.

"This is perhaps the best program available to achieve that goal (use restriction)," Keene said. "And it is our understanding that they (SSD) are committed to long-term affordability."

Although there would be no portable vouchers for future Wollaston Manor residents, Mather explained that, if there were an available unit, SSD would seek referrals from the QHA for another individual with section 8 status in order to remain 100 percent affordable. "That would be part of the agreement," Mather said.

Although protection for current residents seems a given, concerns were raised that future residents without vouchers may be forced to pay exorbitant rents. John O'Brien and Virginia Kelly of the non-profit group Mass Alliance of HUD tenants gave tentative approval of the plan but said many details still needed to be worked out.

Another concern raised was that the tax credits assure affordable housing for seniors and the disabled but that the definition of "disabled" now includes those with drug and alcohol problems.

If SSD receives the tax credits, Wollaston Manor residents would pay 30 percent of their annual income in rent, which is what most pay now with slight exceptions. To qualify for the subsidy, residents would need an annual income $34,242 or less.

Despite the vast array of rents, subsidies, programs, and calculations, the bottom line was that current tenants seemed well protected by SSD promises and government regulations. "What we're hearing is that the rent will go up but what you (actually) pay will stay the same," Raymond told the residents in attendance.

The fate of Wollaston Manor became an issue last year when the possibility arose that AIMCO, the building's current owner, could pre-pay the mortgage administered by MHFA and end rental subsidies at the property.

The MHFA has expressed its support for the Wollaston Manor proposal and two similar proposals in the state.

Two Held For Bomb Found At McDonald's

A bomb found in the restroom of the McDonald's on Southern Artery Monday led to evacuations, traffic jams, and the arrest of two suspects.

Lorraine Trombetta, 43, and Martin Niven, 33, were charged with planting the bomb inside the restaurant. Both have extensive criminal records. They were held overnight for arraignment Tuesday at Quincy District Court. Bail was set at $100,000.

Police discovered the bomb after a tip from the staff of Father Bill's Place. They evacuated the restaurant and shut down surrounding streets as a safety precaution, backing up traffic on Coddington St. and the Southern Artery for hours.

The Boston Police Bomb

Squad removed the bomb and transported it to the State Police Crime Laboratory.

Niven was sentenced to three to five years in prison in 1996 for making a false bomb threat to the Norfolk Superior Court House.

Trombetta made headlines last year when her five children were found neglected in their home in Everett.

Council Looking Into Major Needs For Fire Dept.

realistically, that won't happen."

The department currently has 156 firefighters, 42 lieutenants, 14 captains, and five deputy chiefs. Gorman said he expects 35 retirements in the next two years.

Gorman last summer told the city council that some of the stations could not physically accommodate modern-day apparatus. He said the city should take a long, serious look at the needs of the fire department over the next decade.

The eight fire stations and the engines assigned there:

Engine 1, (Central); Engine 2, (Atlantic); Engine 3, (Quincy Point); Engine 4, (Wollaston); Engine 5, (West Quincy); Engine 6, (Houghs Neck); Engine 7, (Squantum); and Engine 8, (Germantown).

Engines 1, 3, and 5 are the department's busiest.

MHI Seeks Another Extension On Shipyard Loan

Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), owner of the Fore River Shipyard, is seeking an extension on its loan payments once again.

MHI wants an extension on its loan payments to Fleet Bank and others which come due next week. The Fleet Bank payment is a $3.1 million installment on a $55 million loan, which is backed by the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD).

MHI wants lenders to extend the time period, it says, to allow the firm more time to seek alternative financing for the troubled shipyard.

MHI is already six months behind on its payments and over a year behind schedule on construction of the new shipyard.

Fallon Ambulance Pledges $30,000 To Medical Center Emergency Dept.

Milton-based Fallon Ambulance Service has pledged $30,000 to Quincy Medical Center's Emergency Department, announces Maryrose Mirick, executive director of the Quincy Medical Center Foundation.

Peter Racicot, vice president of Business Development for Fallon Ambulance Service and a QMC Foundation Board member, made the contribution to benefit patient services at the recently privatized 109-year-old facility. QMC affiliated with Boston Medical Center last fall, making QMC the only hospital on the South Shore affiliated with a Boston teaching hospital.

"The QMC Emergency Department will be able to further enhance lifesaving services offered on the South Shore due to the generosity of Fallon Ambulance Service," said Octavio Diaz, M.D., chief of QMC Emergency Services. "Both Quincy Medical Center and Fallon are dedicated to saving lives and helping people. This donation demonstrates the importance of working together so we can benefit even more people."

"My hope," Racicot said, "is that Fallon's pledge to Quincy Medical Center will encourage other area corporations to follow our lead and support philanthropic efforts benefiting Quincy Medical Center as it moves forward in its affiliation with Boston Medical Center."

The Quincy Medical Center Foundation raises money to improve patient care through the purchase of new equipment, funding of hospital building projects, and support of program initiatives and educational programs.

$2.05 Million Renovation Project For Heavy Cruiser On Schedule

USS Salem's Hull In Good Condition

The infrastructure of the USS Salem's hull is in good condition as renovation work on the heavy cruiser continues while the ship is dry-docked in South Boston, according to the director of the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

"Considering the Salem had not been dry-docked for repairs in nearly 40 years, we found the condition of the hull's infrastructure was in good shape," said Captain Robert Deutsh, executive director of the Quincy-based shipbuilding museum. Only a limited amount of corrosion was found in the port bow area, and a 40-foot section of half inch steel was mounted to repair that area, Deutsh said.

Overall, the restoration work is proceeding according to plans. To date, the hull has been sand blasted and a prime coat was painted so that a good bond could be obtained. Recently, shipyard workers began applying a second coating.

Upon completion, four coats of paint will be applied to the ship's 716-foot hull. Other work includes:

continuing the manufacturing and installation of the propeller shaft enclosures, re-gasketing the sea chest covers, and the completion of the design work to modify the head bathrooms.

"Baring unforeseen weather, the USS Salem will return to Quincy mid-February as originally planned," said Salem Project Manager Jim Quinn. Several special events and a reopening of the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum (housed on board the USS Salem) are scheduled in celebration of the ship's return.

This spring, the museum will present a new exhibit on the history of shipbuilding at the Fore River shipyard from its founding to present day, covering the shipping industry; Thomas Watson, founder of the shipyard, and his inventions; the people of Quincy and the South Shore who built the ships and their contributions to the Fore River shipyard and America's military defense.

moved from her berth at the Fore River shipyard Dec. 7 and dry-docked in South Boston at Boston Ship Repair to undergo a $2.05 million restoration project.

Once the ship was placed on her blocks and the marine growth was removed, a survey and assessment of the underwater hull was conducted to determine the extent of the work that needed to be done.

Foy, Faring Elected To Neighborhood Housing Board

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services recently added two members to its Board of Directors.

Robert E. Foy, III, former Quincy City Auditor and Gail Kingston Faring, Vice President and Compliance Director for South Shore Bank joined the board in January.

Foy served the city for 27 years, working with five different mayors. He was city auditor for more than 17 years. He and his wife, Mildred, were instrumental in the Neighborhood Housing Services' development of four new housing units for the handicapped in the city. He will be a neighborhood representative on the board and will serve as the assistant treasurer.

Faring will be representing South Shore Savings Bank on the NHS board. In the past, she has worked for the Quincy Savings Bank and Citizens Bank. Faring was also an FDIC examiner for 17 years. She has a masters degree in management from Lesley College and is a CPA.

George Murphy, President of the NHS Board, welcomed both new members and acknowledged them as "important additions, bringing much experience and knowledge from the banking industry and city government."

RONALD "RON" ADAMS, 7th grade teacher at Broad Meadows Middle School, is the Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year for 1999 for inspiring his students to campaign against child labor, poverty and other social ills. He was selected by a judging panel from among 35 nominees submitted by Sun readers.

For Outstanding Community Service

Ron Adams Sun

'Citizen Of The Year'

By HENRY BOSWORTH
Sun Publisher

Ronald G. Adams, who has given freely of his time to guide and inspire his Broad Meadows Middle School students in highly acclaimed efforts to right social wrongs and over-sights, both local and worldwide, is The Quincy Sun's Citizen of the Year for 1999.

The 25-year career teacher of Language Arts and Social Studies in the Quincy public schools was selected for the honor by a panel of judges from 35 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

The 15th recipient of the award for outstanding community service, Adams, 50, will be honored at a reception in March at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

Since the mid-1980's, Adams' students have been tackling issues ranging from long overdue recognition for the women who helped build the ships at Fore River shipyard during World War II to world poverty, and child labor abuse which have taken them from Quincy to Washington, D.C. and Geneva, Switzerland.

Their campaign against child labor resulted in raising $147,000 to build a school in Pakistan in memory of 12-year-old Iqbal Masih, a former child labor slave, who visited and spoke at Broad Meadows in 1994 and was murdered the following year on his return to Pakistan.

The student projects and campaigns initiate as letter writing assignments in Adams' 7th grade English class but are carried out at after-school meetings and, not unusual, on weekends and school vacations.

He suggests that they find something that is wrong somewhere and write to someone who might do something to correct it.

The kids eagerly take up the challenge.

"This is a wonderful honor," Adams said when informed that he had been selected for The Sun award. "But I feel it also belongs to the students—a great group of kids I am lucky to work with."

Adams is always there guiding — and challenging — the students but prefers to remain in the background when they are recognized for their accomplishments.

But one of his former students, Evelyn McInnes, who still participates, decided it was time to move him to center stage by nominating him for The Sun Citizen of the Year.

In her nomination remarks, she said in part: "Every week (sometimes twice) our campaign gathers for meetings. These meetings last for about 2 1/2 hours after school."

"Mr. Adams gives up his time each and every meeting to run them. He's so encouraging, hard working and dedicated and that's what inspires us to keep working."

"And, he's so modest about the 'whole building of the school thing' (Iqbal's school). He always insists the students should get all the credit. But we all know that he deserves so much of the credit, too."

Now in the eighth grade, Evelyn is still active in a current campaign to make local stores aware of their products if made with child labor.

Adams steers the credit back to his students.

Up To $220 In QCAP Program 1,700 Families To Receive More In Fuel Assistance

By CRAIG SALTERS

An estimated 1,700 Quincy families, fearful of plunging temperatures and skyrocketing oil prices, stand to receive approximately $220 more in fuel assistance through the Quincy Community Action Programs.

QCAP Executive Director Beth Ann Strollo said the good news is the result of a $10 million federal emergency fuel assistance allocation to Massachusetts.

"We've been in a bit of an emergency response mode lately," Strollo said. "We're afraid that people will be forced to keep their heat dangerously low, and that's what creates the crisis."

The new funds, Strollo said, will translate into approximately $220 more for Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) beneficiaries. With the added money, LIHEAP clients can now qualify for between $180 and $660 for the heating season, which runs from November to March.

To qualify for the maximum benefit of $660, Strollo said, a family of two not in subsidized housing must earn $11,000 or less.

According to Strollo, oil vendors Tuesday in Quincy were quoting prices between $1.63 and $1.95 per gallon, a significant spike from December's price of roughly $1.30 and a far cry from last year's rates of 80 to 90 cents.

That means that a home with a $180 season allowance would be able to purchase about 106 gallons of oil, which translates into approximately 1/2 a tank, or three weeks, of fuel, Strollo said.

"Even with the extra money, more than half (of LIHEAP clients) have run out of their benefits," Strollo said.

Strollo, who attributed the dramatic price hike to OPEC's decision to curtail oil production, said the sharp increase has consumers worried about price gouging by the vendors, something she said was being looked into by the Attorney General's office.

However, Strollo was quick to point out that vendors themselves were reporting paying higher prices at the terminal. "When you see a difference in price from $1.63 to $1.95, that's bound to raise eyebrows," Strollo said. "But we at QCAP think price gouging is rare. The vast majority of vendors are great guys, with one or two trucks, and last week they were the ones helping to keep people alive."

Strollo said there is currently a bill in the State House Ways and Means Committee requesting an additional $10 million in emergency fuel assistance.

QCAP serves approximately 1,700 homes in Quincy and 2,900 in four communities on the South Shore. It distributes roughly $1 million per year in oil, gas, and electric heat assistance.

For more information on QCAP's emergency fuel assistance program, call (617) 479-8181, ext. 101.

SPEARED — Melinda Flynn of Hull received quite a shock last week when a steel beam tore through the back windshield of her Dodge Shadow after stopping on Hancock St. in Quincy Center. The beams had been fastened with nylon straps on a Quincy Steel & Welding truck but let loose when the driver braked behind Flynn. No one was injured but there was damage to both car and truck and traffic jams in the square.

To Make Good On Other Loans

MHI Seeks $15 Million 'Bridge Loan'

Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), owners of the Fore River Shipyard, will use its one-month loan guarantee extension from the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) to seek a $15 million "bridge loan."

The bridge loan, which would be from a private lender, would allow MHI to make good on its overdue loan payments and finish construction of the shipyard. The bridge loan would in turn be paid off with funds from MHI's proposed $146 million in private refinancing.

MARAD, which has guaranteed Fleet Bank's $55 million dollar loan to MHI, has set its new deadline at Feb. 25.

Mayor James Sheets, who met with MARAD officials and elected officials about the shipyard during last week's visit to Washington, D.C., for the National Mayors Conference, said the bridge loan is really the one and only goal for the next 30 days because it allows everything else to move forward. "The bridge loan will allow for the completion of the shipyard and the payment of all overdue loan payments," Sheets said. "It's really impossible to set a timetable beyond those 30 days."

MHI, Sheets said, has been in contact with a prospective private lender but the mayor was not at liberty to say which one given the private nature of the talks.

Said Sheets: "People are working together on this and they're all talking. They all want to make sure that this deal works. It's just a question of how."

Council President Paul Harold remained skeptical. "From the news reports, they're looking for an extension to borrow money to pay back money that they already owe," Harold said. "MHI came to the table with no cash and no contracts, and nothing has changed in the last four years."

MHI is late on loan payments to Fleet Bank, Mass Development, and the city of Quincy. It has been ordered to pay its principal contractor, O. Ahlberg & Sons, $2.2 million to settle a contract dispute but the company is appealing.

Sheets Expects GSA Approval For Squantum Gardens Soon

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he expects the General Services Administration (GSA) to approve the city's "special conveyance" for Squantum Gardens within the next two weeks.

An earlier agreement between the city and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) granted a "special conveyance" to the city to purchase the 27-acre, former Navy housing site for $1 so that the city could move ahead with its plans for 112 units of senior housing and a city-wide senior center.

Last week the GSA asked HUD for a written justification of the sale price, which Sheets said is perfectly reasonable, given that this was the first time land had been transferred for $1 under the new regulations.

Under the new regulations, Sheets said, HUD must receive 25 percent of Squantum Gardens' appraised value, roughly $700,000, or it can sell the property for $1 dollar under special circumstances.

"They (GSA) want a paper trail," Sheets explained. "They want to make sure they have information in their files which explains the sale price."

And the justification?

"The reason is simple," the mayor replied. "We're talking affordable housing."

Sheets said if the future owners of Squantum Gardens, the private, non-profit Elder Housing Corp., were made to pay $700,000 for the property instead of $1, they would have a larger mortgage and have to increase their rental rates accordingly.

But that scenario, the mayor said, won't happen. "The GSA supports the project and thinks it's a great idea," Sheets said.

"Their only issue is that they want more information. I've spoken to the assistant secretary of Housing, the regional GSA director, and the GSA people in Washington. We've followed all the procedures and I expect their answer in 10 days, two weeks maximum."

To Create Open Space, Park Fund Raymondi Proposes Hotel Occupancy Tax

By CRAIG SALTERS

A Home Rule Petition authorizing the city to impose a local occupancy tax on motels and hotels for the creation of an Open Space, Park, and Recreation Fund will be proposed at Monday night's city council meeting.

If adopted, guests at the city's motels and hotels would pay a one percent tax beginning in July of 2001, with the tax increasing yearly by one percent to the state-imposed maximum of four percent in 2004.

Councillor Daniel Raymondi, author of the HRP, said the local option tax and the newly created fund would mark the first time in the city's history that money was specifically targeted for open space preservation.

"This is the first time that we can identify a stable and significant funding source for the purchase of Open Space and Historical Preservation," Raymondi said. "Funds from this initiative, including interest, could only be used for open space, historical preservation, or the construction and reconstruction of parks. We're targeting an investment area where, historically, funds have not been available."

The councillor emphasized the proposed tax was not scheduled to go into effect for another 18 months, giving plenty of time, he said, for discussion and sensible modifications. He also stressed the gradual phasing-in of the four percent maximum level would give affected properties time to factor the tax into their pricing and advanced booking. "This industry is extremely competitive," Raymondi said. "We don't want to put Quincy businesses in a disadvantage."

Raymondi added the tax would have minimal impact on the residents of Quincy because, with few exceptions, it would be borne by tourists visiting the city.

When asked if the tax would put city hotel owners at a competitive disadvantage, Raymondi responded that 152 communities in Massachusetts have the local option tax. Braintree and Weymouth, Raymondi said, already have the maximum four percent local option tax and Boston, by special law, has a local option tax of 4.5 percent. Raymondi said that, according to Department of Revenue statistics, Braintree took in over $600,000 through the local option tax in 1998.

Raymondi estimated Quincy's existing hotel/motel properties -- The Adams Inn, The Ritz Motel, and the Presidents City Inn -- would bring in $26,000 per percentage point in local option taxes. The future addition of Flatley Company's Marriott Hotel with over 400 rooms, Raymondi said, could put city revenue from the tax between $500,000 and $750,000, depending on occupancy rates.

Said Raymondi: "Every year we're losing $100,000 in revenue and that's just with the existing rooms. Not to do this would be irresponsible. It is in the best interest of the residents of Quincy."

Peter O'Connell, owner of the 100-room Adams Inn in North Quincy and therefore the person most affected by the tax, is recep-

So Far, No Rush For Commercial Abatements

Last month the Quincy Business Council urged business owners to seek tax abatements in protest of the city's new 175 percent tax classification.

So far, reports Marion Fantucchio, chairperson of the Board of Assessors, there has been no increased activity in her office, which handles abatements for the city.

Fantucchio said that, as of Jan. 27, her office received a total of 236 tax abatement applications. Of those, 144 were on residential and 92 were on commercial.

This is in contrast to last year when the total number of abatements sought, residential and commercial, was a little over 500, Fantucchio said.

Fantucchio was quick to emphasize the abatement

IRS Says To Check The Numbers Now

The number most likely to be strong on a tax return isn't an income or deduction amount according to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) -- it's the identification number for the taxpayer, spouse, or dependent.

"It's worth taking the extra time to check all tax forms and schedules for correct numbers," said IRS Director Steve Daige. "Doing so now can help eliminate frustration later."

In many instances where the IRS detects an error, the required identification number is either missing or does not match IRS or Social Security Administration (SSA) records for the name shown on the tax return. The IRS may disallow tax credits or exceptions claimed for any identification number mismatches, resulting in a smaller refund or even a tax bill being sent to the taxpayer.

To prevent problems that may delay the processing of tax returns, the IRS suggests that taxpayers double check the following items before filing.

- Make sure taxpayers identification numbers don't have a number transposed or missing.

- Obtain a social security number (SSN) for all dependents being claimed. Use Form SS-5 to apply for a number from SSA.

- Taxpayers, whose names have changed due to marriage or divorce, must notify SSA to change their name. Names shown on the tax return must match SSA records.

Taxpayers should call SSA at 1-800-722-1213 to apply for, or to change the name on, a Social Security card. Representatives are available Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

4 Year Mayor, Council Terms?

Four year terms for the mayor and city councillors? Frank McCauley, city councillor and former mayor, thinks it's a good idea and hopes to make it a reality.

McCauley will introduce a home-rule petition at next Monday night's City Council meeting, which would be the first step in bringing about the four-year terms.

"I think it's time to get away from these elections every two years," he says.

McCauley has City Solicitor Steve McGrath working on the wording of the petition which on Monday night will probably be sent to the Ordinance Committee for study. The petition would have a long road to reach reality.

It would have to be approved by the city council, the mayor, the state House of Representatives, the state Senate and signed by the governor. And then it would go on the ballot for the voters of Quincy to have the final say.

This is McCauley's second try for four-year terms. He proposed them while mayor in the 1980s. The petition cleared Quincy but died in the House.

The four-year terms, if approved, would require a change in Quincy's Plan A charter.

If the home-rule petition clears all the hurdles this time, the first election with four-year terms for mayor and councillor would not be until the year 2003, says McCauley.

McCauley notes that the school committee already has four-year terms.

"The trouble with two-year terms," he says, "is that you get elected and before you know it, it's election time again.

"Four year terms would give the mayor and councillors more time to concentrate on their duties and not on running for re-election."

There are critics, though, who firmly believe in two-year terms because they hold those elected more accountable by having to face the voters more often.

They feel four-year terms would be more of a convenience for those holding office and not necessarily improve their performance in that office.

The best argument against four year terms, they say, are electing a wrong mayor or councillor.

Waiting four years to correct the mistake can be a long, long time, they argue.

But, insists McCauley, "I think it's time for the change."

AMAZING WHAT A difference five years has made in the City Council.

The only one still serving from the 1995 council is Tim Cahill.

Nine others who were in that council are now former councillors. Yes, nine. There were 10 who served as councillors that year but not at the same time.

Joseph LaRaia, who held an at-large seat, left the council to become an assessor and Charles McIntyre, runner-up in the previous election was named to succeed him.

Others in that council were:

Michael Cheney, who was the president and a councillor at-large; Peter Kolson, Ward 1; Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 2; Larry Chretien, Ward 3; Tom Fabrizio, Ward 4; Charles Phelan, Ward 5; and Bruce Ayers, Ward 6.

And that interesting tidbit comes from Joseph Newton who succeeded Ayers as Ward 6 councillor this year. Newton noticed a montage of photos of the 1995 council hanging on the wall at City Hall.

His constituents should be pleased to know that he is really keeping an eye on things around City Hall.

FRANK McCAULEY has a souvenir from a vacation trip to Barbados that he would like to get rid of.

He and his wife, Sandra, were there earlier this month for a week. And, on the first day, McCauley slipped and fell coming out of the swimming pool, suffering a painful sprain to his right leg.

"Sandra had to push me around in a wheelchair for the rest of the week," he says.

X-rays were negative. But the sprain was severe enough that he is still hobbling around a little.

YOU MIGHT SAY that Bill Fitzgerald, co-owner of Photo Quick on Hancock St., Quincy Center, has a good political connection.

A real good one. He's the uncle and godfather of House Speaker Tom Finneran. Bill's sister, Mary, is Finneran's mother.

Family and friends got together at Florian Hall the other night to celebrate Finneran's 50th birthday.

Don't know if Bob Kraft was there.

REV. JOHN SWANSON, pastor of Union Congregational Church, is going to jail.

For a worthy cause.

The good reverend has been served with a warrant for his arrest, charging him with having a "Big Heart."

And, on Wednesday, Feb. 9 he will do time in jail at Dave Dinger's in Braintree, until he raises $500 as bail to get out.

Proceeds go to St. Jude Hospital to help continue the fight against cancer in children.

Anyone who would like to help spring John Feb. 9 and help that fight against cancer can do so by calling the church office at 479-6661 and making a pledge.

WEATHER REPORT: A guy walked into the lobby of a Quincy bank last Friday and for a few moments became a hold-up suspect.

The bank manager alerted a guard to keep a close eye on him.

Reason for the suspicion was that the guy was wearing a black ski-mask and carrying a bag, the kind you might have a gun in.

But, as it turned out, he wasn't there to rob the bank. He was wearing a ski-mask to protect his face against the frigid temperature and just didn't take it off when he got inside.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1912 postcard was published by the Wollaston Coal Company that was located on Weston Avenue alongside the railroad tracks in Wollaston. The company specialized in 'Lehigh & Lackawanna' coal that was widely used at the time in home heating furnaces. And, as this card proclaims, it was one of the first companies to use trucks for quick delivery service. It later became the Ralph Coal Company owned by two brothers from Wollaston. They continued retail coal operations at this site until the late 1950's. Although they carried a wide variety of coals, Ralph Coal specialized in a very hard, shiny, Pennsylvania anthracite they marketed as 'Blue Coal.' It was lightly sprinkled with a fine blue powder for effect. The powder had nothing to do with the fact that the coal burned naturally with very little flame that had a bluish hue. Before the widespread use of oil and gas there were over a dozen companies in Quincy selling coal and coke for home heating fuel.

Dr. Martin Luther King's Legacy

Editor, The Quincy Sun: It's been nearly 32 years since his death but we are still reminded that "a bullet can't kill a dream."

Another Martin Luther King Holiday and the Bryan Post was once again filled with a wonderfully diverse group of young and old, black and white, Hispanic and Asian, people of every race, creed, and color. Dr. King would have been 71, and an elder statesman had he not been martyred for the cause of human rights. I surmise he was proud and smiled at what he was seeing in Quincy that Monday morning in January, from his seat in the Promised Land.

The Quincy Human Rights Commission honored not only the memory of Dr. King in its annual event but also the embodiment of that memory in action in its presentation of awards to Abe Cohen, Betty Yau, Charlene MacDonald, and Clara Yeomans.

However, it was Abe Cohen who hit the nail on the head when he suggested that he was not so much concerned with recognizing the past and its accomplishments but rather looking towards the future and what remains to be done. Abe and the rest of us there saw the face of that future in all the young people in attendance. Most remarkable were the young women representing the Broad Meadows Middle School who spoke of their ongoing campaign against child labor throughout the world. They and their predecessors who worked to establish a school for Igbal, truly have taken the adage of "thinking globally and acting locally" to a higher level.

The consensus of opinion was that these faces of the future captivated all who listened to their call to action to end forced, abusive child labor. Their message, as has been their deeds, was pure and untainted. They didn't contaminate their goal of making the world a better place with some personal political agenda, as did one adult speaker that morning. I can only hope that they will carry this spirit of untarnished community activism into their adult lives.

Dr. King's legacy to all of us is far more than a collection of acts of civil disobedience in order to highlight oppression and discrimination. It is the antithesis of self aggrandizement. It is the striving for a collective greater good. It is about leadership and commitment, the kind shown by these young faces of the future who may be "too young to drive or vote, but not too young to take action." They are Dr. King's legacy personified.

Reflections On The Dawning Of A New Age

Editor, The Quincy Sun: It is now 7:35 p.m. on New Year's Eve. The fireworks have just begun. Over Boston's harbor the bursting displays thrill a jubilant throng of patient celebrants who since early morning have been waiting at Boston City Hall and Faneuil Hall to welcome in the year 2000.

In those moments of the first multiple explosions of pyrotechnics I had a flashback that briefly brought back visions of similar colorful explosions of light and smoke on various historical occasions.

During those times the skies were also on fire. The constant bursts of smoke seen rising along the miles of burning shrubs, trees and land were recorded in our history as bombardments from American naval warships off the coastlines of New Guinea, Truk, Guam, Palau, Yap, Luzon and many more.

With each burst mile high flashes of light could be seen from great distances; somewhat similar to those million dollar fireworks displays witnessed on the television as they occurred into the early morning hours around the world.

I couldn't help asking myself, "What would the year 2000 be like if history were different. What if those who delivered supplies to Russia failed, or if the men who invaded Germany's shorelines were turned back, or if that biggest burst of all over Japan never happened?"

Perhaps in future celebrations when people stand in awe of the bursting fireworks and smoke filled sky, they may also reflect for a moment on the people throughout the world who, as well as how, made this celebration possible.

Christ Statue Proposed For Quincy's Blue Hills

By PAUL HAROLD

Former Quincy resident, sculptor Joseph Coletti, proposed a monumental Christ statue for the Blue Hills in Quincy to help rejuvenate the spiritual life of the country.

Feb. 3 - 9

49 Years Ago

Coletti, a Harvard graduate, envisioned a 50-foot statue that would be similar to the "Christ the Redeemer" statue that dominates the horizon in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. The estimated cost of the statue was between $200,000 and $300,000.

Coletti was an assistant to the John Stinger Sargent in designing the decorations for the Boston Public Library.

FAXON COMMUNITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT

Business leader Robert Faxon was elected president of the Quincy Community Council at its annual "Dutch treat" dinner at the Neighborhood Club.

The council was increased by 27 members to 60 to provide for a broader representation of the city.

Faxon's first official act was to name Paul Hurley as the head of the 1952 Red Feather campaign.

William O'Connell was chairman and toastmaster for the annual meeting.

REPAIRS UNDERWAY AT ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

The original sills and beams under the parlor of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace were replaced because of termite damage. The hand-hewed beams were installed in the early 1700's.

The John Quincy and John Adams Birthplaces were owned by the city and came under the supervision of the Historic Places Committee. Committee included William Edwards, city historian; Laurence Lyons, Henry Adams, an Adams descendant; Mrs. Henry Bonsall and Mrs. Maurice Spillane.

project," he says. "I feel lucky to work with such great kids. I feel like a coach with an all-star team."

And, he adds:

"The kids want to get involved in the community. They want to help. We adults have to give them the opportunity. And we should listen to them."

The Iqbal Masih story is both heart-breaking and heart-warming and a real example of the determination of the Broad Meadows students when they get involved in a worthy cause.

In 1994, the Reebok Foundation which had heard of the students' activism, asked Adams if he would be interested in a 12-year-old guest speaker coming to the school classroom. Adams said, he sure would.

It was Iqbal, who since age 4 and until he escaped at age 10, had been a child slave as a bonded carpet weaver.

With the help of activists, he crusaded across Pakistan encouraging other bonded children to escape and speaking out against child labor.

Iqbal asked Adams' students to help end child labor. The students promised to do what they could to do help.

In 1995, after receiving the Reebok Award, Iqbal returned to Pakistan "to be like Abraham Lincoln." On Easter Sunday he was murdered, apparently for speaking out against child labor. No one has been convicted of his murder.

It moved the Broad Meadows students to action.

Students Amy Papile, Amanda Loos and Nicole Calley said at a meeting with Adams they should keep the promise they made to Iqbal and keep alive his message of "freedom and education for all children." They suggested they work together to build a "School for Iqbal" in Pakistan.

The students took to the Internet and raised $147,000 with the help of people in the 50 states and 28 countries.

Many were $12 donations, symbolizing Iqbal's age when he visited Broad Meadows and the amount he was sold for into child labor.

Reebok donated $12,000 for Iqbal's school and another $12,000 to Broad Meadows for after-school programs.

A five-room school named "A School For Iqbal" was built in 1996 in Kasur, Pakistan, and today has 288 students age 4 to 14.

And there is a nice recent development.

Annette Langer, a school nurse in Weehauken, N.J., discovered the Iqbal school on the Internet and telephoned Adams.

Does the school have health services, she wanted to know. It did not. She told Adams she would try to raise money to pay for a full-time school nurse. She and her students raised $4,000, enough for the salary of a full-time nurse for two years.

At the request of Senator Edward M. Kennedy, the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan makes periodic checks on the school. The message: the U.S. is very much interested in this school and doesn't want any problems there.

In 1996, Congressman Joseph Kennedy invited students Amy Papile and Amanda Loos to testify at a Congressional hearing on child labor.

In 1998 students Stacey Smith, Greia Amarra, Meaghan Donoghue and Amanda Loos went to Geneva, Switzerland where 1800 delegates from around the world were attending a conference on child labor abuse in the United Nations building there.

The students, chaperoned by Adams and Principal Anne Marie Zukauskas, presented to the delegates messages they had gathered on the Internet from children citing child labor abuse experiences. And the students appealed to the delegates to invoke tougher international child labor laws.

The Broad Meadows students are now networking via the Internet with students in other states to raise money for education programs in poor countries.

Over $30,000 was realized to help educate 500 children in Haiti through the year 2002. They are now raising money for a similar program in El Salvador.

Congressman William Delahunt invited students Elizabeth Bloomer, Katie Sault and Meaghan Donoghue to testify at a Congressional hearing on behalf of the program known as Operation Day's Work.

Delahunt, a long-time activist for Haiti and a member of the House Foreign Relations Committee, has joined the Broad Meadows students as an advisor.

The interest of Adams' students in issues began locally in 1989 when seventh grader Margaret McLean wrote a letter to Mayor James Sheets and Gov. Michael Dukakis suggesting the creation of a Quincy Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

In 1994 the museum became a reality when the city obtained the USS Salem as the centerpiece.

While researching the city's maritime history for the museum, students discovered there was very little information about women who worked at the Fore River shipyard during World War II.

The students tracked down some of the women who related their experiences. This led to a reunion of the women at a City Hall ceremony which included an official and first "thank-you" from the U.S. Navy for their part in the war effort.

The students produced an award winning video history book called "The Winnie The Welder Story."

Turner Broadcasting producer Pat Mitchell used the Broad Meadows transcripts as the basis for a character in the "Century of Women" television series. The character played by Olympia

RON ADAMS AND students Katie O'Driscoll and Jennifer Cunio view their Web site "A School For Iqbal" for the latest messages. Since 1995 the site has received more than 40,000 messages from around the world.

Dukakis, helps build the aircraft carriers Wasp and Lexington both built in Quincy.

The Broad Meadows students have been recipients of numerous awards including:

Reebok Youth-in-Action Human Rights Award, National Geographic "Kids Do It! Award", Minnesota Advocates for Human Rights Award, National Consumer League's Transportation Award, U.S. Secretary of Labor's Recognition Award, Domestic Partnership Award for USAID, Global Activism Award, Northeastern University Project Teamwork Human Rights Award.

Student Amanda Loos, a campaign leader against child labor, was named by Ms. Magazine as "One of the 21 Young Women To Watch in the 21st Century."

Although Adams steers attention to his students, his work has not gone unnoticed.

He received the Massachusetts Teachers Association Civil Rights and Human Rights Award in 1991 and was named Massachusetts State Teacher of the Year in 1992. He recently received the National Eisendrath Bearer of Light Award.

Adams has been active in the Quincy Education Association teachers union, serving as a building captain and representative and a term as an executive board member.

In addition to teaching, he is the cross country coach at Broad Meadows and has coached girls track at Broad Meadows and Atlantic, and football when Atlantic was a junior high school.

He has taught at North Quincy and Quincy High Schools, Central, and Atlantic.

Born in South Boston, he is a graduate of the public schools there and the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

He is married to the former Patricia Sullivan of Houghs Neck, a Quincy High School graduate. They lived in Houghs Neck for 10 years and in Quincy Point but now live on Coolidge Ave. in Weymouth.

Ron Adams was the first in his family to graduate from college. And that is one of the big reasons why he takes education very seriously.

And he wishes some others would, too.

"Too many elected and appointed officials simply do not appreciate that public education is the cornerstone of our democracy," he says.

"All of our children deserve a world class education. Many Massachusetts officials seem unable to understand or provide that."

He's trying to give his Broad Meadows students part of that world class education.

The latest campaign the students have is an extension of their fight against child labor.

"They want to get a label on clothing and other products sold in the United States that says: 'Guaranteed Child Labor Free.'"

"They are great kids," Adams says. "They don't give up. Right now they are watching the news on TV, and reading newspapers looking for things that aren't fair whether it's across the street or across the ocean."

And when they find something, he is sure the kids will want to do something about it.

Shelter Awareness Day At Sacred Heart School

Sacred Heart School, 370 Hancock St., North Quincy, will observe Shelter Awareness Day Friday, Feb. 4 as part of the school's celebration of Catholic Schools Week, "Lighting the Way to a New Century," and in keeping with its philosophy of educating to service of others through outreach projects.

Students from each grade will donate an assigned item (shaving cream, soap, combs, white socks, etc.), for the residents of the Long Island Shelter. The Student Council placed collection boxes in the rear of Sacred Heart Church for parishioners to contribute to this worthy project.

Volunteers will deliver the donations to the shelter. Sacred Heart students have collected donations for the Long Island Shelter for many years.

Students at Sacred Heart

Church are provided with the study skills and discussion necessary for informed reflection and action on social justice issues and are committed to an educational program which emphasizes the Gospel teachings on concern for the poor and needy.

Marie Sullivan of the

Ward 3 Democrats To Caucus Saturday

Chest Pain — Is It A Heart Attack?

By DR. OCTAVIO J. DIAZ, MD
Chief of Emergency Services
Quincy Medical Center

I think it's safe to say that at one point or another all of us have had some sort of chest pain.

And whether young or old, healthy or not, we may have briefly thought, "could this be a heart attack?" How do we know when to just sit it out or when we need to sound the alarm and call 911? Well, unfortunately, the answer is not an easy one, but with some basic knowledge of heart disease and available therapy, we can hope to answer that question.

Heart disease is a major cause of illness and death, striking millions of Americans every year. A significant portion of our healthcare dollars are spent on heart disease diagnosis, treatment and ongoing therapy. But the best way to treat heart disease is prevention. Your primary care physician or cardiologist is an expert at providing you with the resources necessary to keep a healthy heart. But when chest pain strikes, who do you turn to for help?

Chest pain may have dozens of causes, from a simple muscle strain, to a major heart attack. Sometimes, a heart attack occurs silently, with no pain at all. Your healthcare practitioner must obtain information necessary to make the diagnosis. This information requires a review of your medical history, medications you might be taking, your risk factors for heart disease and a thorough understanding of the type and duration of your pain. Some further studies may be necessary, including a heart tracing, known as an EKG, and x-rays and blood tests. Your healthcare practitioner may also order some medications to alleviate your discomfort while a diagnosis is sought. In some cases, all this can take place in your doctor's office, or you may need to go directly to the emergency department. Which one do you choose?

When you have chest pain your first reaction should be to sit down and not panic. If you have a preexisting heart condition, chances are you already know what to do. If chest pain is new to you, follow this simple rule: if the pain is severe, or accompanied by shortness of breath or sweating, or if the pain travels to your arm, neck or jaw, get to the nearest emergency department. Sometimes this may mean calling 911 for an ambulance. If you are unsure of the severity of the pain, or if it comes and goes quickly, call your doctor. Your doctor knows you best, and can help you decide if you should be seen in the office or if you should go to the emergency department for help. Also, take an aspirin if you have no contraindications to taking it; it may help lessen the effects of a heart attack. Your doctor is well equipped to assist you and appropriately guide you in your time of need.

At Quincy Medical Center's Emergency Department, we treat dozens of chest pain patients every week. Our nursing and physician staffs are experts at diagnosing and treating your chest pain. Working together with our cardiologist, we can provide you with an array of services to diagnose, treat and prevent a heart attack at a state of the art facility right here in Quincy.

Seniors May Be Paying Too Much For Leased Telephones

If Quincy seniors are still leasing their phones from AT&T some 16 years after the telephone giant's breakup, they could be paying too much money for their phone service.

A Jan. 18 resolve sponsored by Councillor Daniel Raymondi requests the council's Senior Citizen Committee to conduct public hearings and survey Quincy's seniors to investigate whether they are leasing, instead of purchasing, their phones. Raymondi is chairman of the Senior Citizen Committee.

The resolution states: "The Quincy City Council in the interest of the public should educate all residents and specifically its senior population about the high cost of leasing phones and the alternatives that may be available to reduce the cost of long-distance service."

According to the resolve, surveys by the American Association of Retired People (AARP) indicate that people over the age of 65 are more likely to lease their phones rather than buy them. That means they could be paying between $4.45 to $21 per month for a phone which costs about as much to buy outright.

"There may be people out there who are paying 10 times, 50 times what they should for a phone," Raymondi said. "And if it's 10 people, that's 10 too many, because it just doesn't make any sense in this day and age."

Raymondi said the goal of his proposal was to begin a process of educational outreach to seniors working with the city's Council On Aging and other senior services providers to let seniors know they had choices when it came to phone service.

AARP surveys also indicated that 75 percent of people over the age of 65 continue to pay the most expensive basic long-distance phone rates instead of switching to a discount plan, an issue the Senior Citizen Committee will also address.

Overall, the bank gave away $2,100 between the Quincy and Canton branches.

Seasonal Park Ranger Jobs At Adams Historical Park

The Adams National Historical Park will accept applications through Feb. 25, for seasonal employment from April 12 to Nov. 10 as Park Rangers.

Park Rangers conduct tours through the historic structures, participate in educational programs and special events, and perform other duties as assigned.

Adams National Historical Park includes the birthplace of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams: the "Old House," home to both presidents and their descendants; a visitor center and, through a cooperative agreement, interpretive programs at the United First Parish Church, final resting place of the two presidents and their wives.

To be eligible for seasonal employment, applicants must be United States citizens and submit their Optional Federal Employment Form OF-612 or resume to Adams National Historical Park, 135 Adams St., Quincy, MA 02169-1749.

Applications must be postmarked no later than Feb. 25. To obtain an application, contact the Personnel Office at 617-773-1177, Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

ALICE COOK with Rev. Theodore Fortier, Catholic Chaplain at Quincy Medical Center, and Rev. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's, Quincy Point.

Alice Cook Honored By Catholic Clergy

Alice Cook was recently honored at a Quincy Catholic Clergy meeting for her volunteer work at Quincy Medical Center.

For the past 10 years she has served in the Pastoral Care Department at the hospital by arranging the lists of patients who need a visit from a priest chaplain or one of the priests from the nine Catholic parishes in Quincy.

Alice was presented with a bouquet of flowers and an award plaque in recognition of her outstanding service to the priests of Quincy in their pastoral care of the patients at the hospital.

Musical Mondays For Children At Library

An introduction to music and basic instrument forms for babies and children through age 5 and their parents or caregivers is being sponsored by the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Family network. Older children are welcome, but the program will be geared to those younger.

Each program, which will be held at the Adams Shore Branch Library, 519 Sea St., Mondays from 3 to 4 p.m., will include songs with lyrics to take home, dances and a "jam" session with instrument that fit the theme.

Themes include strings on Feb. 7, wind instruments on March 13 and bringing it all together April 10.

The program, taught by musician Aubrey Atwater, is funded from a Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioner LSTA grant.

Raymondi Seeks 15-Minute Council Open Forum At Meetings

Councillor Daniel Raymondi wants future city council meetings to begin with a 15-minute open forum.

During that time, residents would be able to address the council on any matter pending before the body.

Raymondi sponsored the open-forum resolve at the council's Jan. 18 meeting where it was sent to the Rules Committee for discussion. Councillor Timothy Cahill is chairman of the Rules Committee.

Raymondi said the 15-minute session would foster "an atmosphere of open dialogue" between council members and the residents they represent. "This forum doesn't supplant public hearings," Raymondi said. "It's an opportunity for residents to enlighten their city council, to make proposals, to participate."

Raymondi said this marks the third time in the last five years he has made such a proposal to the council. The first two times, he said, he was unable to muster the necessary five votes for passage.

Raymondi added this step would solve the problem of individuals or groups feeling they didn't have their say before the council, as was the case Dec. 13 when procedural rules kept business leaders from speaking on increased tax rates. "This rule would give anyone the chance to voice their opinion on matters pending before the council," said Raymondi. "No votes or motions -- it would eliminate that confusion."

deadline was Monday, Feb. 7 and that people traditionally waited until the last minute to file abatements. "I expect this to be a busy week," she said.

The abatement deadline was originally Feb. 1 but was extended by the state because it had been late in sending financial information to Massachusetts communities.

Even with the extension and the late filers, however, Fantucchio expects this year's figures to be about the same as last year. "It's too early to tell," Fantucchio said, "but if you're asking if we've seen an increase in abatements, the answer is not yet."

The QBC called for the commercial abatements after the commercial property tax classification was raised from 169 percent to the legal maximum of 175 percent without, the QBC said, any input from the city's businesses.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

A POOR FIT FOR WOMEN

More than 70 percent of women wear athletic shoes that are too small, according to a recent study. Many women's athletic shoes are manufactured as scaled-down versions of men's shoes. Because a woman's foot narrows more from forefoot to heel than a man's foot, women find that many athletic shoes are too loose in the heel. They then buy a smaller-sized pair to compensate, and the result is a poor fit. A properly fitted athletic shoe will be roomy around the toes and snug at the heel. If your heel slips around, your toes will push forward into the front of the shoe and possibly cause hammer toes, a condition where the toes remain in a bent position.

Switching shoes may not always be the best solution to correcting foot problems, but wearing appropriate footwear can help prevent or alleviate some problems from happening or continuing. As your foot care specialist, your podiatrist can diagnose and recommend a course of treatment that may include a change in footwear, regular general care, medications, physical therapy, orthotics and surgery. If your feet are tired of ill-fitting shoes, or if you're just tired of feet that hurt, we welcome your call at 617-472-3466. We're located at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

P.S. Make sure your athletic shoes have enough cushioning for shock absorption. This will help prevent a number of foot problems.

An Important Message To Consumers

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT!

and

PLEASE DO NOT SHOP VICTORY MARKETS

The men and women of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791 truly appreciate the tremendous show of support by the public for our picket lines at Victory Supermarket. The UFCW is picketing and leafleting Victory Market to protect and preserve our union contracts. Victory Supermarket is non-union and does not have a contract with or employ members of United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791.

Why are we picketing?

Because union jobs are held by working people and support our communities, and in turn, support our schools, and our tax base. Union jobs have allowed millions of workers and their families to benefit from a higher standard of living. Union contracts provide workers with good wages, health insurance and pension benefits and safe working conditions. The AFL-CIO reports that most non-union workers have substandard wage and benefit packages when compared to union workers in similar industries. The more non-union supermarkets like Victory Market that open and operate will make it increasingly difficult to enhance and or maintain good union contracts that benefit workers and their families.

For these reasons, we respectfully ask that you recognize that Victory is a non-union supermarket and choose instead to support union-represented supermarkets such as SHAW'S and STOP & SHOP.

This message brought to you by the hard working men and women of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791 AFL-CIO.

This advertisement is directed solely to the shopping public and is not intended to cause a stoppage of work or interference with deliveries.

REAL ESTATE

Real Estate Solutions Introduces Website

Real Estate Solutions of Quincy, a real estate brokerage located in Wollaston, has introduced a new website that functions as a community resource for residential property buyers and sellers in Quincy and Milton.

The service, called Afinehome.com, provides Internet access by entering either <http://www.Afinehome.com> or www.Afinehome.com.

In addition to listings, the new one-stop site has MCAS scores for Quincy and Milton, plus links to local experts in real estate law, mortgages, and insurance, says Bill Riddle, principal of Real Estate Solutions. The site's market reports for Quincy and Milton also let surfers quickly and easily check out recent sales activity in these communities.

Real Estate Solutions is also expanding the circulation of Great News, a publication which reaches 15,000 residents of Quincy and 10,000 in Milton. An on-line version of Great News, containing articles about the local real estate market and tips for home sellers, appears on the site.

Afinehome.com was created by Riddle, a real estate professional since 1982. The author of Home Selling Secrets, Riddle's experience ranges from traditional single family home-selling to the management of a $20 million national residential and commercial portfolio. His company was a leader in revitalizing a large section of Brockton through the acquisition, rehabilitation and sale of multi-family properties.

For more information, call Real Estate Solutions at 617-472-8181.

Slide Show Spotlights

Better Customer Service

Conway Chairman Presenter At RELO Conference

Jack Conway, chairman of Jack Conway and Company, was a featured presenter at the 1999 RELO Regional Meetings in Boston recently.

The educational program was one in a series of nine regional conferences held by RELO, the national real estate referral network.

Conway's presentation and slide show focused on "Moving RELO into the 21st Century" and explored ways in which real estate agents can better serve customers moving into and out of the region.

"We are fortunate to have talented professionals like Jack Conway who are willing to share their expertise with fellow RELO members," said RELO

President and Chief Executive Officer Pam O'Connor. "His presentation added important value to this regional meeting."

In addition to Conway, four key people in the Conway Company's Relocation Division attended the one-and-a-half day event: Corporate Services President Maureen McCaffrey, Relocation Counselors Susan Haigh and Beverly Gordon and Referral Registrar Dawn Stevens.

The Regional meetings included educational programs, workshops, brainstorming sessions and networking opportunities for member agents in the Northeast Chicago-based RELO, the highest-producing national relocation network, is comprised of nearly 1,000 independent companies with 90,000 sales associates serving 15,000 communities. RELO members have a collective annual sales volume of $212 billion.

Founded in 1957, Norwell-based Jack Conway and Company is the largest independently owned real estate firm in Massachusetts, with more than 600 agents in 36 offices from Boston to Cape Cod.

Make Time For A Healthy Heart

February is heart month, ringing in Valentines and ro-

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
Should I keep my batteries in the refrigerator?

Absolutely not! Today's hearing aid batteries are made with zinc. They have a good shelf life, but if put in the refrigerator, they will accumulate moisture and cause corrosion in your hearing aid. When zinc air batteries are fresh they have a guaranteed shelf life of one year. Buy them fresh! When they are on sale at pharmacies or discount stores, it may be because they are an older batch. It is much easier to monitor their freshness in a Hearing Instrument Specialist's office where we do not sell many other products. A fresh battery will give you constant life. An old battery might go dead at any time. You may save a couple of dollars but you'll save more dollars by doing business with your specialist. Customers that buy batteries from me on a regular basis get more "freebies" when they come in for service. It's my way of thanking them for being dedicated customers. Keep your batteries in a dry cool place, like a desk drawer, and order a 4-6 month supply at a time.

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve mance, cards and candy, and a very special message from Weight Watchers.

The bad news is that every 33 seconds someone in America dies from cardiovascular disease. The good news is that risk factors such as lack of physical activity, poor eating patterns, and obesity may be reduced by adopting healthier habits.

While some risk factors such as family history of heart attacks and high blood pressure are inherited, other risks are a matter of choice.

Florine Mark, president and CEO of The WW Group, the largest franchise of Weight Watchers International, says there is no better time to take control than in American Heart Month.

"A few simple changes can make a big difference, — a diet rich in fruits and vegetables and making physical activity a part of daily life," Mark says, "but it's important that the whole family gets involved. You can't insist your children snack on grapes while you eat pound cake."

Other important changes advised by health care professionals include losing weight (if you are overweight), quitting smoking, and increasing physical activity.

"It's important to work in a workout every day. Exercise builds stamina, helps us deal with stress and gets the endorphins going," Mark says. "No matter how busy you are, keep your exercise appointment with yourself. It's an investment that pays multiple dividends."

Tips for creating a heart-healthy lifestyle:

- Eat more grain foods, vegetables, and fruits. They are packed with heart healthy nutrients such as antioxidants and fiber.

- Limit fat intake to no more than 30 percent of total calories. Become a fat detective: watch for hidden fats in meats and dairy products with fat; cut down on butter, margarine, shortenings and oils.

- Limitsaturated fat intake to 8-10 percent of calories. Sources of saturated fat include meat and dairy products and tropical oils, such as coconut, palm, and cocoa. Choose fat-free or low-fat dairy products, leaner meats, and foods prepared with little fat.

- Start with simple physical activities like walking, gardening, dancing, and even housework for 30 minutes a day. If time is a concern, you can break down your routine into three 10-minute, mini workouts and still achieve results. Both children and adults need 30 minutes of exercise each day.

"To succeed at weight loss or exercise, you need to decide what fits into your lifestyle and just do it," said Mark.

Surgeons-Podiatrists

OSTEOARTHRITIS AND THE FOOT

Osteoarthritis is a form of "degenerative joint disease" that afflicts mostly people over the age of fifty years. There are two main forms: a type that involves several joints and is of unknown origin; and a second type involving one joint where an injury or some other cause has affected the integrity of the joint. Usually people with the first type do better symptomatically since the progression of the disease is slower.

The second type may be encountered in the foot, for example, in the large toe and can involve younger patients as well. If the individual fails to respond to conservative therapy (non-surgical), several choices are available to the Podiatric Surgeon. These include: surgical cleaning of the joint where excess bone formed by the osteoarthritic process is removed; removal of part or all of the joint; replacement of the joint with an implant; or fusion (making two bones join together) of the joint. All the above procedures have the intention of eliminating pain and improving function.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

North Quincy Hockey Blitzes New Bedford

Ross O'Driscoll Hat Trick Powers 7-3 Win

By CHRIS POISSON

North Quincy coach Bob Doyle admitted he was uncertain about which team would show up at Quincy Youth Arena Monday afternoon.

Was it going to be the club that prides itself on strong defense and an opportunistic offense, or the club that comes out deflated and overmatched?

Well, neither. It turned out to be a team Doyle hasn't seen since last season — a fast-paced, quick-strike, Sportscenter-esque team.

The Red Raiders (5-9, 2-6) exploded for a 7-3 win over non-league opponent New Bedford (2-11), marking a season-high in goals scored.

North Quincy played at Taunton yesterday (Wednesday) and Saturday it returns home to face Falmouth.

"I was a little hesitant about what team was going to show up [Monday]," Doyle said. "Looking in the paper, you get caught up in the standings and how your opponent is doing."

"The offense was nice. Last year we were loaded with offense. This year it has been tough to find. So it was really nice to find the net with seven goals."

And it didn't take the Red Raiders long, either. Senior Ross O'Driscoll, who netted a hat trick, led a three-goal, first-period blitz when he chipped in a rebound off sophomore Scott MacDonald's blast from the slot.

Before you could chant "Let's go Raiders," senior Graham McShane beat goalie Adam Shoemith from the right circle just nine seconds later for a 2-0 lead.

O'Driscoll added his second of the game when he gathered the rebound off junior Matt Holt's shot from the point and wrapped it past Shoemith for a power-play strike at 6:35.

"I kind of abandoned a little of our tight checking system and opened up the trap a little to let the kids play some more," Doyle said regarding the early three-goal cushion.

In the second period, North Quincy lost some of its fire as it got sloppy in its own end with several turnovers.

"In the second period I thought we were very stale," Doyle said. "We stopped skating and that gave them some scoring chances. We gave up three odd-man rushes."

The Whalers, however, couldn't capitalize, or catch a break. Nearly a minute into the period, center Robert Boyer uncorked a shot from the slot that trickled by junior goalie Pat O'Donnell but didn't reach the net as O'Driscoll was in position to clear it out.

Everything seemed to be going right for the Red Raiders. At 3:30, sophomore Joe Fitzpatrick beat a Whaler to the puck behind the boards and passed toward a teammate in front, but a Whaler accidentally knocked it into his own net.

"Both instances, I said to the guys on the bench, 'You got some breaks here. We never got those earlier in the year.' But we were very fortunate. There's no reason they should have two or three guys parked in front of the net to begin with."

The onslaught continued when senior Ryan Murray spotted sophomore Ryan Barry, who flipped it past Shoemith at 7:36 for a 5-0 advantage.

New Bedford finally got on the board when Boyer scored on the power play at 4:22. O'Donnell had no chance as he was left to fend off a flurry of shots.

"My speech to the kids in the locker room before the third was, 'Don't get complacent. Don't get too happy with yourselves.' We don't find ourselves in this situation at all."

In the third, North Quincy committed a couple of penalties that let New Bedford gain momentum and it answered with two goals in just over two minutes.

Forward Mark Rossi took a feed from Wayne Peebles in front and stuck it past O'Donnell to make it 5-2 at 6:05. Boyer cut it to 5-3 with a power-play strike at 8:35.

"I'm still not happy with the penalties," Doyle said. "We gave New Bedford some lift with some lazy, lazy, undisciplined penalties. We need to straighten that out. That's what we pride ourselves on."

Part of the reason New Bedford was able to get back into the game was that two first unit players — sophomore Charlie Sorrento and Murray — sat out the third period with injuries.

Murray injured his right hand in Saturday's tough 3-2 loss at Silver Lake and it started to swell up again. Sorrento aggravated an old shoulder injury when he collided with two Whalers and Holt in the second stanza.

North Quincy, though, ended any thoughts of a comeback when Holt lashed a shot past Shoemith on a 2-on-1 break at 12:12. O'Driscoll scored an empty-net goal with 36 seconds left to tally the hat trick and close out the scoring.

Despite the Red Raiders' offensive outburst, Doyle believes it's the defense that will carry the team the rest of the season.

"In order for North to be successful this year, every game has to be a defensive battle, 3-2, 4-3, to give us a shot," Doyle said. "We're not going to win many shootouts. The only reason we won this one is we're catching New Bedford on a downside."

Presidents In Thick Of Hockey Tourney Hunt

The Quincy hockey team avoided a January collapse and now has its sight set on playing in the month of March.

After a three-game skid, in which three players were suspended for two of those games, the Presidents have bounced back to win four straight to position themselves for a postseason appearance.

Its latest notch in the win column was a 6-2 whipping of league laughingstock Taunton (0-8, 0-12), Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena. In its four-game win streak, Quincy's electrifying offense has fried its opponents, outscoring them by a 28-10 margin.

"It was an important win for us," said coach Bob Sylvia, whose team improved to 7-4 overall and 5-3 in the Old Colony League. "It gives us seven wins this season and we need two more with seven games left to get into the tourney. We're in good shape to qualify and we're looking forward to that."

When the difference between goals scored and goals against is that lop-sided, you know your team is clicking in all facets of the game. For Quincy, it's the defensive improvement that's important; offense has not been a concern at all this year.

"Our defense is gaining confidence and that's the thing we were looking for," Sylvia said.

Sophomore forwards Bill McKeon and David Germain each netted a pair of goals and McKeon also picked up two assists. Senior captain Brian Nolan tallied four helpers and a goal and junior forward Paul Campbell also found the cage.

"We have everyone back now and we're just starting to get back to where we were before that incident," Sylvia said.

And the Presidents will need a fully loaded squad as their next three games come against the top three teams in the league, which happen to be the same teams that handed Quincy straight losses.

Yesterday (Wednesday) Quincy hosted Barnstable (8-4, 5-3) which is in third place, just ahead of Quincy in the standings. Saturday, Quincy travels to Silver Lake (9-4, 7-1) before it faces off with top dog Falmouth (7-1-3, 7-0-1) next Wednesday.

"We have a tough stretch of games right now," Sylvia said. "They're big games because we could propel ourselves into first place."

Quincy Girls Making Most Of Second Half

By CHRIS POISSON

Although the Quincy girls' basketball team has had a disappointing season record-wise, you can't complain about its play in the second half of the year.

After a sensational 49-38 win at Barnstable Friday night, the Presidents suffered a five-point loss, 56-51, at Bridgewater-Raynham Monday. Their record now stands at 3-12 overall and 3-6 in the Old Colony League.

In the second half, though, Quincy is 3-2. And one of those losses was a one-point setback to undefeated Taunton, which is ranked No. 11 in the Globe Top 20. It's biggest win was against city rival North Quincy.

Also, the Presidents haven't seen Coddington St. since Jan. 7 as their last six games have been on the road. They're 3-3 in those games and Tuesday they concluded their road trip at Silver Lake.

BASKETBALL

"Our record doesn't indicate how well we've played, especially the last 10 to 12 games," said coach Bob Noble. The kids have battled all season. I have no complaints about their effort, whatsoever."

The first half against Barnstable was a sluggish 16 minutes for both teams as Quincy trailed, 18-16. In the second half, Quincy picked it up offensively to come away with the win.

"It was an ugly first half," Noble said. "But we kind of put things together in the second half. We played well. It was another solid effort by everyone. We did a nice job on the road."

Senior Colleen Nichol paced the Presidents with 19 points and 15 rebounds. Senior guard Kelly Raymer turned in her best outing of the season with 16 points.

Against B-R, Quincy rallied from an eight-point deficit with less than two minutes remaining to pull within one, 52-51, after senior Jen Grogan nailed a huge three-pointer with 30 seconds left.

Quincy had two chances to take the lead but was unable to come up with the go-ahead basket.

"It was great game," Noble said. "It was another hard fought game against one of the better teams in the league."

Quincy trailed 32-25 at the half and fell behind by 13 points early in the second half before it stormed back to grab a 44-43 lead.

Colleen Nichol scored 22 points and pulled down 11 rebounds and her sister, Caitlin, added 13 points and seven steals.

North Quincy Girls Battle, Bow To Taunton

Twenty-four hours after scorching Ursuline Academy, the North Quincy girls' basketball team almost capped the Old Colony League's most powerful fleet.

But in the end, North Quincy (7-6, 4-4) suffered a 62-57 sinking to undefeated Taunton (13-0, 9-0), ranked No. 11 in the Globe Top 20, Friday night at home seas.

The day before the Red Raiders hammered Ursuline (4-7), 75-38, behind senior tri-captain Jill Nicholson's 29 points, including a school-record six 3's from international waters.

"We gave Taunton a good game," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "It could've gone either way. We're still playing good. We've just had our ups and downs."

North Quincy traveled to Falmouth (8-5, 6-3) Tuesday and tomorrow (Friday) it remains on the road to play Bridgewater-Raynham (6-7, 5-3). MacFarlane (flu) did not make it to Tuesday's game. Freshman coach John MacFarlane, junior varsity coach Mark Scanlon and athletic director Brian Buckley filled in on the bench.

Sophomores Lauren Sleeth (guard) and Kahli Dearani (center) each scored 14 points in the loss to Taunton.

Against Ursuline, Nicholson (16.4 points per game) also had five assists and three steals, and Dearani added 13 points and nine rebounds.

North Quincy led 41-32 at halftime and then came out stymied Ursuline's offense, holding them to six points over the final 16 minutes.

Kelly Wigmore On Alpine Ski Team

Kelly Wigmore of Quincy, a graduate of North Quincy High School, returns to the Colby-Sawyer College women's alpine ski racing team.

The sophomore had a pair of top 10 outings in her first year and was 21st overall in the Osborne Division. She finished seventh in giant slalom at Smith and 15th out of 75 in the slalom at Regionals.

Both the men's and women's alpine ski racing teams have qualified for the United States Collegiate Ski Association (USCSA) National Championships in each of its first two years, and coach Andrew Cannon is confident both will make it back for the third year in a row.

Mite B's Blank Hyde Park For Third Straight

The Quincy Mite B's won its third straight game with a 2-0 Super Bowl Sunday win over Hyde Park.

Wayne Milford put Quincy on the scoreboard early with an assist from Joe Vialpando. Quincy killed several Hyde Park power plays with outstanding defense.

The teams played a scoreless second period before Quincy scored its second goal with 27 seconds left in the game. Derek Murphy, with an assist from Matt Rodriguez, put a great move on the Hyde Park goalie for the score.

Goalie Jeff Giordani shined once again between the pipes as he recorded the shutout.

In previous action, Quincy edged a tough Waltham team,

4-2. Seamus McKenna netted the first goal to get things started. Zac Helfrich and Kevin Magoon earned the assists. Vialpando scored the second goal, unassisted.

In the second period Milford netted the third goal, and Magoon tallied the fourth goal in the final period on a pass from Milford.

Quincy blanked Hyde Park, 4-0, behind Giordani's solid goaltending and the defense. Milford scored a hat trick and McKenna added the final goal. Andrew McCarthy picked up three assists.

Underdog Quincy Boys Fall To Barnstable

By CHRIS POISSON

The Quincy boys' basketball team had to play flawless ball if it was going to knock out an Old Colony League heavyweight.

But Friday night's fight turned out to be a preview to Saturday's Mike Tyson-Julius Francis bout. Tyson needed only two rounds, and Barnstable (11-2, 7-1) needed only eight minutes to land its blow as it bullied Quincy, 80-63, in a one-sided affair.

Although Quincy (3-9, 3-5) never led in this game (the closest it came was 3-3 in the opening minutes), it found itself hanging around as it only trailed by five, 26-21, with six minutes left in the first half.

That's when the Red Raiders of the Cape put on a run-and-gun clinic, as they composed a 17-2, four-minute flurry featuring layups, layups and more layups.

"We would have liked to have slowed it down but their game really dictates that because they apply full-court pressure," said Quincy coach John Franceschini. "If you don't push the ball up they're going to get you in their trap. They force you into that up-tempo game."

Quincy's 48-44 win over North Quincy Jan. 21 was seen as a stepping stone toward a tournament run, but that stone is quickly sinking as the Presidents have now lost two in a row. Last Tuesday they fell, 51-45, to Taunton, a team it beat earlier in the season and a team it needed to beat again.

Quincy ended its three-game home stand Tuesday against Silver Lake (10-1, 8-0).

Franceschini's crew did play hard against Barnstable but they came nowhere close to playing perfect or near-perfect or even average ball to dig out a win. They turned the ball over on the press, committed a slew of traveling violations and shot a putrid 33% from the floor and 41% from the line.

"They're obviously a very good team and the one thing we needed to do was to shoot the ball well," Franceschini said. "And our shooting took away any shot we had [of winning]."

Barnstable held a 50-31 advantage at halftime and led by as many as 28 in the second stanza before it turned to its bench with four minutes left. Guard Stefan Gomes scored a team-high 20 points as the Red Raiders had five players with seven or more points.

"They're a team that has nine to 10 quality players and they just played well tonight," Franceschini said. "And with the group we have we needed to play a very good game, and we didn't. That's really it. That's the story of it."

Senior center Sean Fitzpatrick led Quincy with 20 points, scoring seven of the team's first 12 points as Quincy looked inside early on. Senior guard Dan Kelly finished with 15 points and backcourt partner Chase Clarke added 10.

Jim Rendle ENC Athlete Of Month

Jim Rendle, a senior guard on the Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team, has been named Athlete of the Month for January.

Rendle, a North Quincy High School graduate majoring in history, led the team to its first Commonwealth Coast Conference win over rival Gordon College Jan. 22 with 15 points and six rebounds.

With three seconds remaining he hit a 15-footer to break a 56-56 tie in front of a sellout crowd at the Lahue Physical Education Center.

Rendle currently ranks seventh in the CCC in steals with over two per game.

Squirt A's Win 2 Tournament Games

Quincy Youth Hockey's Squirt A "Wolfpack" posted two victories in recent state tournament qualifying games, a 2-0 win over Franklin and a 5-4 triumph over Randolph.

Quincy overpowered Franklin at Quincy Youth Arena behind the outstanding goaltending of Frankie Sorrento. Johnny McInnis scored in the first period with an assist from Mikey Griffin for a 1-0 lead.

Forwards Tommy Pasquantonio, Jimmy Fitzpatrick and Mike Marshall kept the Franklin attack off balance with their consistent backchecking.

In the third, the defensive intensity of Chris Rooney, Mike Maxey and Mike Leone held off the desperate Franklin attack. With 23 seconds left, McInnis notched an empty net goal to seal the win.

Against Randolph, Quincy combined offensive power and tenacious defense to pull out the win. Goalie Matt Connors played a great game between the pipes.

Craig Calley starting things with a goal two minutes into the game. In the second, Quincy erupted for three goals as Brian Sullivan, McInnis and Calley lit the lamp.

Teddy Walsh provided a spark for Quincy in the third period as Randolph's offense couldn't get it going because of his non-stop forechecking.

The defense of Zack Deegan, Ricky Penzo and Jonathan Conso proved to be too strong for Randolph, and McInnis scored the game-winner with five minutes remaining in the game.

Defenseman John Kurpeski will return from an injury when Quincy faces Needham in its next state game.

Mite A's Rolls Over Framingham, 8-1

The Quincy Mite A travel team fell behind 1-0 Saturday but roared back with eight straight goals to knock off Framingham, 8-1, in Greater Boston Youth Hockey League action.

Chris Brown netted a pair of goals and Doug Haskins scored one to hand Quincy a 3-0 first-period lead.

In the second, Brown scored again to tally the hat trick, his second of the season. One of his goals was a great individual effort when he picked up a loose puck at center ice and outskated the Framingham defense and sent a hard, low wrist shot past the goalie.

Andrew Bythrow also found the cage in the stanza and Quincy held a 5-1 cushion. In the third, Brown scored his fourth of the game and Mike LeBel and Billy Kiley added goals to close out the scoring.

John Sessions netted a pair of goals to lead Haye's Dream to a 3-2 win over Quincy Sheet Metal for the January Jamboree Mite championship.

Shawn Dowling added a goal, and Scott Vallantini picked up two assists while Sean Dunn and John Conroy each had one.

Brian Bowe scored Metal's lone goal.

In the semi-final, Justin Halloran tallied four points (2 goals, 2 assists) to guide Quincy Sheet Metal to a 7-3 win over Doran & Horrigan. Wayne Milford netted a pair and Matt Furey, Matt Bresnahan and Justin Lawless added goals. Mark Gibbody notched two assists, and Jeffrey Matthies, Lawless and Brian Bowe each had one.

Chris Brown struck twice for D & H and John Sullivan scored once. Danny Gibbons and Jeremy Mock each had an assist.

In the other semi-final, Haye's Dream beat Paul Harold Club, 4-1, behind John Sessions two goals. Matt Forbes and Shawn Dowling added goals. Scott Vallantini and Forbes each had two assists and John Conroy had one.

Seamus McKenna scored for Harold Club with Nicole Haskins and Kevin Chenette earning assists.

In previous action, Doherty & White Ins. knocked off Doran & Horrigan, 5-2, led by Kyle Craig's four points (2 goals, 2 assists). Mike Kineavy, Scott Richardson and Matt Rodriguez also scored.

MITES

Chris Brown and John Sullivan scored for D & H. Victoria Virtue, Sullivan and Paul Reardon had assists.

Seamus McKenna netted a hat trick and had two assists as Paul Harold Club blanked Lydon's, 6-0. Zach Helfrich and Kevin Chenette added goals. Matt Sullivan picked up three helpers and Sal Totomasi had one.

Robert Hudson had three points (2 goals, assist) in Jay Cashman's 5-2 win over Bruce Ayers Club. Michael Benoit, Tim Young and Meg Gillespie also found the cage. Benoit and Derek Graham had assists.

Brandon Gilmore netted two goals for Ayers Club. Adella DeSisto and Evan Verhault had assists.

Kiley Real Estate and Barry's Deli battled to a 3-3 stalemate. Bill Kiley scored two goals and had an assist for Kiley Real Estate. Matt Bridgeman had a goal and an assist.

Mike Gates netted two for Barry's and Andrew Barba one. Kyle Roche, Ben Leahy and James Phelan notched assists.

Haye's Dream tied Quincy Sheet Metal, 4-4. John Sessions, James Flaherty, Sean Dunn and Steve Russo scored for Haye's. Flaherty, Dunn and Sessions picked up assists.

Justin Lawless, Justin Halloran, Wayne Milford and Matt Bresnahan scored for Metal. Brian Bowe and Eddie McManus recorded assists.

Seamus McKenna blasted a hat trick in Paul Harold Club's 4-2 win over Quincy Sheet Metal. Nicholas Radcliffe added a goal. Kevin Chenette had a pair of assists.

Wayne Milford and Jeffrey Matthies tallied for Metal. Matt Bresnahan and Justin Lawless had assists.

Haye's Dream routed Bruce Ayers Club, 8-1, behind five points (3 goals, 2 assists). John Conroy and Scott Vallantini each scored two goals and Shawn Dowling added one. James Dunn, Dan Nazzaro and Vallantini each picked up an assist.

Malcolm Kelly scored for Ayers Club with Adella DeSisto notching the assist.

Chris Brown scored four goals and Kevin Keith had three as Doran & Horrigan blew past Jay Cashman, 12-1.

Stephen Brown, Danny Gibbons, John Sullivan, Sam Calley and Stephen McNally also scored. Timmy Riordan and Victoria Virtue each had two assists. Sullivan, Andrew McCarthy, Jeremy Mock, Ryan Polley and Gibbons each had an assist.

Patrick Young scored for Cashman with assists from Rick Pugsley and Megan Gillespie.

SQUIRTS

Carita each had a goal and two assists for Keohane's. David Arrufat added a goal and Matt Lawlor had an assist.

In previous action, Quincy Sun beat Pat Foley Painting, 4-2. Brendan Crosslin, Robert Mann, Brendan Foley and Andrew Gormley scored. Crosslin had an assist.

Jim Dunn scored both of Foley's goals. John Kennedy had an assist.

Keohane's edged Cotter Club, 4-3. David Guerriero, Matt Lawlor, David Arrufat and Eric Moreschi all scored. Moreschi, Craig Calley, Ken Patey, Lawlor and Joe Carita had assists.

Justin Laura, Laura Ledger and Matt Grady scored for Cotter. Bryan Gilligan and James Corbett picked up assists.

James Patten tallied a pair of assists in Westminster Dodge's 3-2 win over Smith & Brink, P.C. Jeff Bailey, Steve Graham and Chris Rooney each scored. Casey Conley and Derek McFarlane picked up assists.

Josh McKeon and Lambros Papalambros tallied for S & B. Joe Morris had an assist.

Brian Sullivan erupted for six points (3 goals, 3 assists) in Quincy Car Wash's 12-6 win over Burgin Platner. Michael Marshall and Glenn Peterson each score two goals, and Eric Johnson, Michael Grant, Greg Cahalan, Kyle Tobin and Brian Marks each added one. Tom Conley, Johnson and Erik Beagle each had two assists. Alex Murray, Tobin, Cahalan and Marshall had one.

Mike Maxey netted a hat trick and had an assist for Platner. Joe Ferris, Zach Sloane and Alex Smith added goals. Patrick Morrissey notched two assists and Smith, Dave Regan, Kelsey Finn and Ferris each had one.

Buckley, Miller Usher In New Era For High School Athletics Coaches, 'Feeder Programs' Focus For New Quincy, North Quincy AD's

By CHRIS POISSON

In New England, the Patriots-Jets Border War finally came to a halt last week with the Bill Belichick regime kicking off a new era. Some like it. Some don't.

More locally, Quincy public schools entered a new age in December when it made the controversial move of appointing a second athletic director. Some like it. Some don't.

William Walker, former athletic director for both Quincy High School and North Quincy High School, stepped down to become the director of the GOALS program in Quincy.

His replacement is the tag team of Ed Miller and Brian Buckley.

Miller, former Marshfield athletic director, moved to Quincy headquarters Jan. 24, and Buckley, former director of the Quincy Council of Aging, took over at North Quincy Jan. 3.

The addition of a second athletic director received some backlash in the community because of the $60,000 salary, but Miller feels it's a necessity for the success of the athletic programs.

"Based on my past experience, coming from a high school almost the same size as Quincy and North Quincy, I'd say it's very necessary for each school to have one," Miller said. "There are a lot of issues and a lot of things to do at each school."

"I'm just glad to have the job," Buckley said. "Anything you can do to help at all is a step in the right direction."

Both are stepping into a sticky situation as they take over in the middle of the winter season. There's not much they can do now except to familiarize themselves with the programs and coaching staffs.

"It's a little different coming in January, coming in at mid-stride," said Miller, a 1967 graduate of North Quincy. "The winter season ends, for the most part, in about four weeks, so my goal is to come in and get reacquainted with everyone. To meet my coaches and to start evaluating all the programs and see where we are. I'm going to come in with a real positive attitude and go from there."

Although neither have started their evaluations, one of their foremost tasks should be to restore respectability to the football programs come next fall when they begin their first full year as athletic director.

The two schools have been glued to the bottom of the Old Colony League the past two seasons, combining for a 5-36-1 record over that span, with two of those wins coming in their annual Thanksgiving Day game.

Buckley believes the first step in building solid athletic programs begins with the coaches.

"I think it's important to support the coaches," Buckley said. "To give them the opportunity to do the best job possible in terms of being accessible and assisting them in their every day demands."

The next step is to attract the kids. Over the years, many have decided to attend Archbishop Williams, Catholic Memorial and Boston College High School rather than the public schools. A new high school, which Quincy should have by 2003, is one way to increase student participation.

"I'm looking forward to a new high school," Miller said. "It'll be great. Anything new is always great. A new high school should provide a boost for not only the athletic programs but all the programs."

Another way to attract more kids, Miller said, is to focus more attention to the youngsters.

"We'll start at the middle schools, the feeders to the high schools," Miller said. "We'll work closely with youth programs to get to know better the youngsters coming through the Quincy system. We'll do a better job promoting our programs so the kids know who we are."

Buckley agrees the schools should spend more time with the youth, but also feels they shouldn't overlook the kids they already have.

"Instead of looking at what we don't have, we should look at the kids we already have in our school system and try to develop them the best we can," Buckley said.

Miller has had success with the athletic programs at Marshfield for the last eight years and prior to his stint there, he coached and taught in Quincy for 20 years.

"Teaching and developing the kids is the most important part," Miller said. "Hopefully, I know what it takes and can pass some of my knowledge to Quincy."

Teen Dating Violence

Are You Going Out With Someone...

- Is jealous and possessive, won't let you have friends, checks up on you, won't accept breaking up?
 - Tries to control you by being very bossy, giving orders, making all the decisions, not taking your opinions seriously?
 - Puts you down in front of friends, tells you that you would be nothing without him or her?
 - Puts you down in front of friends, tells you that you would be nothing without him or her?
 - Scares you? Makes you worry about reactions to things you say or do? Threatens you? Uses or owns weapons?
 - Is violent? Has a history of fighting, loses temper quickly, brags about mistreating others? Grabs, pushes, shoves, or hits you?
 - Pressures you for sex or is forceful or scary about sex? Gets too serious about the relationship too fast?
 - Abuses alcohol or other drugs and pressures you to take them?
 - Has a history of failed relationships and blames the other person for all the problems?
 - Makes your family and friends uneasy and concerned for your safety?
- If any of the above apply to you, you may be involved in an abusive relationship.

What If Your Partner Is Abusing You And You Want Out?

- Tell your parents, a friend, counselor, a clergyman, or someone else whom you trust and who can help. The more isolated you are from friends and family, the more control the abuser has over you.
 - Alert the school counselor or security officer.
 - Keep a daily log or the abuse. If the abuse is physical, have a close friend take pictures of the abuse.
 - Do not meet your partner alone. Do not let him or her in your home or car when you are alone.
 - Avoid being alone at school, your job, on the way to and from places.
 - Tell someone where you are going and when you plan to be back.
 - Plan and rehearse what you should do if your partner becomes abusive.
- Next week: Part Two
From: National Crime Prevention Council
If you need help because of abuse, call: The Quincy Police at 911 or the D.O.V.E. program at 617-471-1234, a 24-hour hot-line.

MAKING THE PROPER ADJUSTMENT

According to a report from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, drivers and passengers can reduce the likelihood of whiplash injury significantly by properly positioning their vehicles' headrests.

Previous studies have shown that more than 70 percent of drivers leave their adjustable headrests in the lowest position, where it has minimal chance of preventing the head from lurching backward in the first stages of a rear-end collision. For better protection of the head and neck during a crash, the headrest should be positioned so that the top of the restraint is about the same level as the top of the driver's head. The headrest should also be no more than four inches from the back of the head.

Your safety is our concern. Don't neglect your car's safety devices and systems, whether it is owned or leased. LEO & WALTS'S SUNOCO invites your inquiries about most anything connected to the care of your car. Our ASE Certified technicians are highly skilled so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent condition. We're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550). We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: To reduce the distance the headrest sits from the back of the head, it may help to adjust the tilt of the seat back-should also be no more than Friendship hour in Susanan Wesley Hall will be hosted by Joan Honig, Maude Kyoperi and Shirley Smith.

Four Chaplains Sunday

The Quincy Veterans Services Department reminds readers Sunday, Feb. 6 has been mandated "Four Chaplains Sunday" by the U.S. Congress in memory of four U.S. Army chaplains who died 57 years ago after a transport ship was sank off Greenland.

Early in the morning of Feb. 3, 1943, the Troop Transport Dorchester was wallowing through the icy seas off Greenland. Most of the 900 troops on board were asleep in their bunks. Suddenly, a torpedo smashed the Dorchester's flank. Frantically pounding up the ladders, the troops milled in confusion on the decks.

In those darkest moments of panic, the coolest men aboard were four U.S. Army Chaplains: 1st Lieutenants

Clark L. Poling (Reform Church of America), Alexander D. Goode (Jewish), John P. Washington (Catholic) and George L. Fox (Methodist). The four chaplains led the men to boxes of life jackets and passed them out to the soldiers with boat drill precision. When the boxes were empty, the four chaplains quietly slipped off their own precious life preservers, put them on four GIs and told them to jump.

The Dorchester went down 25 minutes later in a rumble of steam. Some 600 men were lost, the heroic chaplains had helped to save more than 200. The last anyone saw of them, they were standing on the slanted deck, their arms linked in prayer to the one God they all served.

Affordable Housing Petition Campaign At First Parish

United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will host the Greater Boston Interfaith Organization's (GBIO) Affordable Housing Petition Campaign Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The campaign's goal is to collect 100,000 signatures to present to local and state elected officials to convince them of the need and desire for affordable housing throughout the metropolitan area.

Parishioners from St. Christopher's and St. Mark's, Dorchester, as well as from UFPC and other Quincy groups will gather at the church at 10 a.m. for an hour of training. Then they will fan out into the community for signatures before returning to UFPC for debriefing and celebration at 1:15 p.m.

Irene D. Aitken, 89

Member Of Wollaston Yacht Club,
Quincy Neighborhood Club

A funeral service for Irene D. (Patterson) Aitken, 89, formerly of Quincy, a member of the Wollaston Yacht Club and the Neighborhood Club of Quincy, was held Monday at the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mrs. Aitken died Jan. 27 at Colony House Nursing and Rehabilitation.

She enjoyed dancing and painting.

Born in Boston, she lived most of her life in Quincy before moving to Abington six years ago. She was a 1927 graduate of Quincy Hospital and attended art school for two years.

She is survived by a son, Douglas F. Aitken of Bedford, N.H.; a daughter, Christine A. Todaro of South Weymouth; three granddaughters; and seven great-grandchildren.

Burial was private.

James A. Pansullo Jr., 74

Longtime Boston Radio, TV Broadcaster

A funeral Mass for James A. "Jim" Pansullo Jr., 74, of Quincy, a longtime Boston area news and sports broadcaster, will be celebrated Friday in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston.

Mr. Pansullo died Monday in Quincy Medical Center.

He worked in radio and television for 55 years covering everything from sports and crime to politics and religion. He retired in 1996.

A longtime resident of Wollaston, he also contributed time to many social and charitable causes both on and off the air.

Mr. Pansullo managed WEEL radio's 590 Fund, which raised millions of dollars for homeless shelters and other causes in New England.

A heart attack survivor, he was 1976 Heart Fund Chairman for Southeast Massachusetts.

Prior to working at WEEL, he worked at the former WHDH-TV Channel 5 and WHDH radio and WCVB-TV.

Mr. Pansullo gave color commentary along side legendary Boston Celtics broadcaster Johnny Most and was at the game in which John Havlicek "stole the ball" from the 76ers in the 1965 Eastern Conference championship.

He was present at many historic events in the Boston area including the capture of reputed Boston Strangler Albert DeSalvo.

He conducted an exclusive interview with Rose

JAMES A. PANSULLO, Jr.

Kennedy when her son, Robert Kennedy, announced his New York Senate campaign.

When WEEL changed to all-sports format, he focused on the 590 Fund and his Sunday morning radio program, "Topic Religion."

He was chairman of the Thomas Crane Public Library Addition Fundraiser and a board member of Catholic Charities for 25 years.

Born in Hartford, Conn., he graduated Hillyer College with an associate's degree in journalism.

He enjoyed music, tennis and reading mysteries.

Mr. Pansullo was an Army veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his wife, Betty Jo (Bullard) Pansullo; a son, James Pansullo III of Quincy; a daughter, Nancy Pansullo Gordon of Holbrook; and three grandchildren.

Burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery in Scituate.

Visiting hours were scheduled 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday and 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. today (Thursday) in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 30 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169.

A Thought For The Week

We all have many keys on our keychains... big ones... small ones... shiny ones... dull ones. How many times have you tried to open your door at home or your car only to find that you were using the wrong key? It can be mighty frustrating...

We waste a lot of time in life trying to open doors with the wrong keys. Most people wish to open the door to happiness. They try one key after another but the door will not open. Yet at the same time people all around them seem to be opening their doors with their keys...

What are these right keys - the keys that really open the doors to contentment, happiness, satisfaction and health? One of these keys is compassion; another diligence. There is a self-control key. There is no doubt that the key which opens the door to popularity is thoughtfulness.

Knowledge is a wonderful key, but there is a greater one still. This key is the key of faith. The wonderful thing about this key is that it is reserved for no special person or group. It can be put on anyone's key chain...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Sometimes a setback gives you a chance to get a sharper perspective on the situation at hand. Your cheerful nature helps you override this temporary disappointment. What you learn from this pays off soon.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Be careful not to charge into something you don't fully understand. Being asked to act on trust might be all right — as long as you can trust the one who asks.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A chance for romance beckons from someone you thought was far out of reach. But Cupid can always come up with a shortcut. How you respond to the situation determines how the relationship develops.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A career move seems more likely now than when you first considered it. Some of your plans will need readjusting as new facts emerge. Be careful that you don't allow jealousy to create an unnecessary obstacle.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your love for beautiful things is part of what makes you the fine feline you are. But a little caution is advisable for a while. Resist the urge to splurge until your money signs look a little better.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A co-worker could be trying to undermine you. Resist the temptation to retaliate. Instead, keep careful records of what you do so you'll be ready to present a strong position when the time comes.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Family problems have been simmering for a while and could soon boil over. Avoid taking sides. There are many facts you don't know yet. A business decision proves more complicated than you expected.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Cupid's arrow can pierce hearts, but it can't open tight lips. Only you can do that. That special someone you've been silently pining for all this time would love to hear you express those feelings.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Well-meaning friends might try to persuade you to give up on that project that seems to have hit a dead end. Someone will take notice, and your persistence will pay off.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's one thing to make a difficult decision, but you also have to stick with it despite pressures to get you to change your mind. You need to reassure someone you care for that you can keep your commitments.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This is a good time for you to remember to be good to yourself. A trip to a place that was once very special in your life reawakens many precious memories and soon leads to making new ones.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An old health problem flares up and needs attention. A chilly reaction from a once warm friend needs to be confronted. Set the record straight before it's too late to save the friendship.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You enjoy helping others. You have a taste for life's luxuries and will take risks to get what you want. In matters of amour, you love deeply, and you expect your amorous intensity to be returned in kind.

Morrissey Hails Senate Approval Of Stalking Bill

Senator Michael Morrissey hailed the senate's approval of Bill 2082, which amends the state stalking law and creates a new crime of "criminal harassment."

The bill must next be approved by the House of Representatives before it can be signed into law by Governor Cellucci.

"The current stalking law is inadequate to protect victims who do not know their harasser," Morrissey said. "There are people in this Commonwealth whose daily lives are plagued by fear because adequate protections are not available to them."

This legislation will empower victims who often feel helpless under the current stalking law."

Under current Massachusetts law, a stalker must threaten imminent fear of death or bodily harm to order to be prosecuted for the crime of "stalking." Harassing behavior, such as the kind suffered by Sandra Berfield, an Everett woman killed by a package bomb sent to her by a suspected stalker, is not covered despite the obvious anxiety and fear it generates," Morrissey said. In addition, victims of stalking have not been able to obtain the strongest type of restraining order which is now only available to victims of domestic violence.

The senate bill would amend the current stalking law in two ways.

It would allow stalking victims to obtain the same protective orders that are available to victims of domestic violence. If the perpetrator violates those orders, he or she is subject to expedient criminal prosecution and jail time.

It will also create a new crime of "criminal harassment." This provision will protect people who have been victim to a pattern of harassing behavior that causes substantial emotional alarm, stress, and fear. Those convicted of criminal harassment are subject to imprisonment for up to three years in state prison, 2 1/2 years in a house of correction, and/or a fine of $1,000.

"Sandra Berfield, like many other stalking victims before her, pursued every legal option available to her," said Morrissey. The current system failed her. This is an important step forward in changing the system. We are closing the loopholes that enable stalkers to continue their predatory."

QUINCY ANIMAL CONTROL officer Donald Conboy, Jr. accepts a donation for the animal shelter from Elizabeth Caliri, Worthy Advisor of the Wollaston Assembly, Order of Rainbow Girls who raised money for the shelter as part of her service project. A donation was also made to the Shriners Hospital Burns Unit.

House Passes Non-Group Health Insurance Reforms

Rep. Ron Mariano of Quincy, vice-chairman of the Joint Committee on Insurance, announces the passage of the nongroup health insurance bill, by a unanimous vote of 152-0 in the House of Representatives.

The legislation restructures the nongroup marketplace by making healthcare more accessible and more affordable for those individuals who pay 100 percent of their health insurance costs. The legislation will also bring Massachusetts state law into compliance with the Kennedy-Kassenbaum federal law (the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA)).

"The reforms engrossed make it easier for consumers to access health coverage and brings Massachusetts in line with the rest of the nation," said Mariano.

House Bill 4989 affords consumers the same level of protections that were enacted four years ago: insurers are still required to enroll any eligible individual seeking health insurance regardless of an individual's health condition. Under the proposed legislation, any Massachusetts resident seeking health insurance can purchase a nongroup health plan except if an individual qualifies for Medicare or Medicaid. More importantly, the bill lets consumers choose from a wide variety of health plans with different benefit levels and cost sharing requirements.

"The reforms presented in this legislation are of dramatic importance to those individuals who have the burden of providing themselves and their dependents with the full cost of health insurance without any cost sharing or contribution made by an employer," said Mariano.

Presently, consumers shopping for health insurance in the nongroup market can only buy one type of plan. The plan is a comprehensive health package that includes unlimited prescription drug coverage and durable medical equipment. As a result, products offered are expensive.

Additionally, the nongroup law enacted in 1996 requires insurance companies to terminate all individual health plans that were issued prior to the enactment of the 1996 law by September 1 of this year. House Bill 4989 allows those plans, known as closed plans, to continue.

"If these reform are not enacted into law, approximately 67,000 individuals in the nongroup market will be terminated from their current health plan this fall. It is therefore imperative that these members be allowed to remain in their health plan to maintain stability and continuity," said Mariano.

The nongroup bill further allows consumers to purchase health plans continuously throughout the year with a 6 month pre-existing condition exclusion. This provision will allow consumers the opportunity to purchase a health plan without waiting for any special open enrollment period. The pre-existing condition exclusion is waived if an individual had 6 months or more of comparable coverage prior to enrolling in a nongroup health plan.

"It is my hope that with the passage of this bill, health insurance will become more attainable for the nearly 496,000 uninsured Massachusetts residents who have no access to health coverage and cannot afford products currently offered in the nongroup market," said Mariano. "Health insurance is not accessible if it is unaffordable."

Aviation Celebration Reception Today At Beechwood Center

Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St., Wollaston, will host an aviation history celebration today (Thursday) at 1 p.m. in the center's Aviation History Information Center.

"The Amelia We Knew" is a special reception honoring all who knew Amelia Earhart during her Dennison Airport Days (1927-1928).

The aviation center evolves from five years of community meetings and assistance from aviation history buffs, journalists, and interested community folk. Programs, activities, and collection focus upon the history of aviation in New England:

- 1910-1911-1912 Air Shows
- The Dennison Airport Days
- The "First Ladies" of Quincy Skies, Harriet Quimby & Amelia Earhart.

A second aviation celebration focusing on the Squantum Air Base will be held Tuesday, March 14 at 6:30 p.m.

Capt. Robert Duetsch, USNR (retired), executive director of the U.S.S. Salem shipbuilding museum, will join aviation history enthusiasts at this meeting of the Aviation History Info Center.

Duetsch will share stories about his days as a young naval Flight Officer, his 3,000 flight hours and duty tours; and closure of the South Weymouth Air Base. Commander Duetsch was the 29th and final commander of the Weymouth Air Base.

For more information and reservations, call (617) 471-5712.

Quincy College Offers WGBH Telecourses

Quincy College is offering nine "telecourses" in conjunction with WGBH's Diploma Connection Program.

Classes begin in January and February and registration is until the first class.

The courses feature a series of PBS instructional television programs watched at home for college credit. Classes meet at arranged times so students can keep pace with requirements and assignments.

"We have been offering telecourses for the past 18 years," explains Margaret Yamamoto, director of the WGBH Diploma Connection. "In that time we've seen the concept of distance education grow and keep pace with changing technologies. It has become an integral part of WGBH's commitment to life long learning."

Deanna Yameen, executive director for Learning Assistance and Student Services at Quincy College, said the school has been involved with the program for a little over five years and has been impressed with the results.

"These series are produced especially for the selected course and come complete with their own textbooks," said Yameen. "For adults who are responsible enough to do the work, these are excellent courses."

The programs, Yameen said, are broadcast on either Channel 2 or Channel 44 but copies of all programs are available at Quincy College's Anselmo library.

Telecourses being offered are: The Examined Life; American Cinema; Connect With English (ESL); It's Strictly Business; Living With Health; Nutrition Pathways; Sociological Imagination; Western Traditions; and The World of Abnormal Psychology;

For more information, call (617) 984-1650.

BUSINESS

Robert Griffin Named To South Shore Co-op Board

Robert J. Griffin of Quincy, has been appointed to the Board of Directors of South Shore Co-operative Bank (SSCB).

Griffin is a partner of the firm Krokiday & Bluestein LLP, of Boston.

"South Shore Co-operative Bank is growing. The forthcoming opening of our branch office in Quincy emphasizes the importance of quality leadership and continued local involvement," said John J. O'Brien, Jr., the bank's President and CEO.

"The input of an individual like Bob Griffin, who has so much administrative experience and has done so much for the community of Quincy, will prove invaluable."

Griffin formerly served as Chairman of the Massachusetts Rate Setting Commission, where his duties included the distribution of over $5 billion dollars in reimbursement payments to health care providers. Prior to that, he was Assistant Secretary of the Executive Office of Human Services, where he was responsible for coordinating numerous state-wide service programs.

"Bob has given a great deal of himself to the residents of the South Shore and all of Massachusetts. We look forward to his contributions as we carry on our tradition of excellence in community banking," said David B. MacIntosh, Chairman of SSCB's Board of Directors.

Griffin completed his undergraduate studies at Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., and gained his Masters in Public Administration at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst. He conducted his study of law at Suffolk University Law School, where he graduated in 1983. He is a member of the Board of Directors for the Quincy Medical Center, and assists in the community through his involvement with Quincy Youth Baseball where he is a board member and president of Junior Farm League, with the St. Patrick's Manor and Marian Manor nursing homes - where he is Chairman of the Board, and numerous civic organizations.

Men Of Harmony To Present Singing Valentines

The South Shore Men of Harmony Barbershop Chorus will again deliver "Singing Valentines For That Someone Special" in the South Shore for Valentine's Day from Saturday, Feb. 12 to Monday, Feb. 14 from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 13 from noon to 8 p.m.

Each Valentine will be presented by a chapter quartet in appropriate costume, who will arrive unannounced at a recipient's office, home, school, restaurant, or wherever the purchaser designates. They will be given a long-stemmed red rose and a Men of Harmony Valentine.

The quartet will then sing renditions of "Heart of My Heart," "I Love You," and "I Love You Truly" in acapella Barbershop Harmony style, and pose with the recipients for a Polaroid picture as a souvenir of a very delightful experience.

The "Singing Valentines" are being presented for the fifth year as part of a nationwide program offered by "SPEBSQSA" the Society for the Prevention and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America.

The cost for each Valentine is $40, $10 extra for each additional recipient or precise time appointments. Proceeds are being used for service projects and charities the Men of Harmony support. For further information and to place orders, call Bill Fitzgerald, 781-337-0227 or Rich Barry 781-659-7463.

Bridgewater Credit Union Earns Superior Financial Strength Rating

Bauer Financial Reports, Inc., the nation's leading independent financial institution research firm, announces Bridgewater Credit Union has earned a 5-star Superior rating, its ninth in a row, in recognition of its superior financial strength and performance.

Bridgewater Credit Union has assets in excess of $165 million with offices in Bridgewater, Plymouth, Fairhaven and Quincy.

"I am truly pleased that the credit union has received this award," said Audrey Phinney, president of Bridgewater Credit Union. "The Board of Directors and staff have worked extremely hard to assure our members that we are financially fit and that we offer products and services that benefit the membership."

A 5-star superior rating demonstrates commitment to fiscal responsibility and performance, said Paul Bauer, president of the research firm. "Sustaining that high level of excellence over nine consecutive reporting periods only adds to its superior reputation," he added.

Tiffanie Williams & Company Creates Logo, Identity For 'La Paloma Salsa'

Tiffanie Williams & Company, a Quincy-based advertising and public relations firm, has created a logo and consumer identity for "La Paloma Salsa."

"La Paloma Salsa," which has for years been served at the award-winning La Paloma Restaurant located on Newport Ave. in North Quincy, has been available for sale in its restaurant and will now be offered at other selected food service establishments.

The identity campaign by Tiffanie Williams & Company included creation of a logo and overall label design which will be used in all packaging and sell-sheets for "La Paloma Salsa."

"We are very excited about the outstanding look Tiffanie Williams & Company gave to our salsa," said Michael Walsh, owner of La Paloma. "You need a certain look to catch the consumer's eye, and the new logo is exactly what we were searching for. We've already had a great reaction to it."

For more information about "La Paloma Salsa," call Michael Walsh at (617) 773-0512.

Council's Senior Citizen Committee Approves Wollaston Manor Plan

The City Council's Senior Citizen Committee wrapped up its fact-finding sessions on Wollaston Manor Monday night with a 4-0 vote in favor of Silver Street Development's purchase of the property.

Committee chair Daniel Raymondi said the committee would speak in favor of the project at the full council meeting Monday, Feb. 7, and ask that a letter of support be sent to the Massachusetts Housing and Community Development.

MHCD is currently considering SSD for $4 million worth of tax credits which would enable SSD to purchase and refurbish the property while at the same time committing the 91 Clay St. site to 100 percent affordable housing.

City support is a factor in MHCD's decision. Edward Doherty and Roger Gendron of SSD were on hand to reassure tenants that the company was committed to keeping Wollaston Manor affordable housing. Doherty said there would be layers of protection for residents, saying SSD would retain current Section 236 restrictions as well as HUD restrictions which say that, after a 15 year period, SSD must sell the building to the state or a non-profit with affordable housing restrictions.

In fact, Gendron added that SSD had trumped all of those restrictions by declaring in its MHCD application that it would remain affordable housing "in perpetuity."

"We're going to keep this building affordable as long as this building stands," Gendron said to much applause.

Gendron and Doherty also said no tenant would ever pay more than 30 percent of his or her income for rent, which is a requirement for the tax credits.

Michael Kane of the Mass Alliance of HUD tenants worried that some present "over-income" tenants at Wollaston Manor, tenants who were actually paying less than 30 percent of their income in rent now, would see an increase in rents but called it "a solvable problem."

Kane also said the SSD proposal was a better alternative than keeping the building in the hands of its current owner, Apartment Investment Management Company (AIMCO), who could pre-pay the existing MHFA mortgage and make the property market-value housing.

Along with Raymondi, councillors Michael D'Amico, Stephen Durkin, and Patrick McDermott voted in the affirmative.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers attended the meeting and promised to keep a close eye on the state portion of the funding. Council President Paul Harold also attended the meeting, saying he would lend his support at the council meeting.

Raymondi Proposes Hotel Occupancy Tax

tive to Raymondi's proposal. Said O'Connell:

"Councillor Raymondi is doing his best to work out a piece of legislation that would be acceptable to all parties and we're happy to work with him and the other city councillors. It's an innovative approach to phase-in the tax because it gives businesses the opportunity to adjust.

"The key here is how the funds are to be used. We're just observers on that end of it but we would prefer the funds were used for a special purpose in the city rather than put in the general fund."

O'Connell said the Adams Inn and other hotels sometimes book with travel agents years in advance for group packages or special events, so the gradual nature of the tax is imperative.

The Home Rule Petition will go to one of a number of committees for discussion and debate. Once out of committee, it would need approval from the city council, the mayor's signature, and, finally, approval from the State Legislature to become law.

License Board Agenda

The License Board agenda for Feb. 8 is as follows:

• Request from the Quincy Youth Hockey Association for a one day permit for their "Family Day" April 2.

• Request from the March of Dimes for a one day permit for their annual "Walk America" April 30.

Union Head, Chief Differ On Fire Fears At Twin Rivers

By CRAIG SALTERS

Safety for Quincy firefighters responding to incidents at Twin Rivers Technologies was a topic of discussion at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Despite questions of procedure and appropriateness, William Ariente, president of the firefighters' union, was allowed to speak before the body on a resolve, co-sponsored by Councillors Daniel Raymondi and Gregory Hanley, for the Public Safety Committee to conduct public hearings and meetings on the safety of the Quincy Point fatty-acid plant.

Successful motions to move discussion and refer the resolve to the Public Safety Committee ended debate fairly quickly, but not before Ariente reiterated much of what he and several fellow firefighters had written in a Jan. 25 letter to Chief Thomas Gorman: that Quincy firefighters lack both the equipment and the training to battle the unique problems associated with Twin Rivers.

Ariente warned that the tallow running through the Twin Rivers' pipes has a flashpoint of only 350 degrees and that Quincy firefighters have only one set of gear. That means, Ariente said, that if tallow were to stick to a firefighter's gear and he were to respond to a subsequent incident, where temperatures can routinely reach 500 degrees, "Our gear would flash right on top of us."

Kindergarten Registration March 7

Registration for kindergarten for the school year 2000-2001 will be held Tuesday, March 7, announces Dr. Richard DeCristofaro, assistant superintendent of Quincy public schools.

Registration, he said, will be from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. at all public elementary schools for all children who will be five years of age in calendar year 2000.

DeCristofaro also noted the following requirements:

Parents must present a birth certificate, passport/visa at the time of registration and evidence of immunizations. Department of Public Health kindergarten entrance immunization requirements are effective September 2000:

- 5 doses of DPT, unless 4th dose given after 4th birthday
- 4 doses of Polio, unless 3rd dose given after 4th birthday
- 2 doses of MMR, with 1st given after 1st birthday
- 3 doses of Hep B, if born after January 1, 1992
- 1 dose of Varicella (chickenpox) or doctor documented case of chickenpox.

A recent entrance physical examination is mandated by the state for all students entering school, and preferably should be presented at registration or at least before the start of school in September. In addition, evidence of previous screening for lead poisoning is required for all kindergarten entrants.

Children who will be six years of age on or before Dec. 31, 2000 and who have not attended public kindergarten may be registered for grade one on the same day.

Parents of children living in the Lincoln-Hancock, Clifford H. Marshall, Francis W. Parker, Wollaston and Snug Harbor School districts may receive information at kindergarten registration concerning opportunities for preschool/early childhood education.

Federal Funds At Stake U.S. Census 'No Shows' Can Cost City Millions

The U.S. Census 2000 begins March 15 with up to as much as $110 million in federal funds for Quincy at stake.

"For every person not counted in the census, the city stands to lose $1,100 in federal funds for schools, highways, seniors and other programs," City Clerk Joseph Shea told Quincy business leaders Tuesday.

That would be $1,100 each year for each such person for the next 10 years when the next U.S. census will be taken.

Joseph Gillis, liaison between the City of Quincy and the U.S. Census Regional Office for Norfolk and Plymouth Counties based in Randolph, told The Sun there could be up to 10,000 people undercounted by not responding to the census forms which will be mailed out March 15 and are due back April 1.

If there are that many and if they are not found, he said, it would add up to a loss of $11 million a year in federal monies for Quincy. And up to $110 million until 2010 when the next federal census is taken.

Senator Michael Morrissey, Shea and Gillis met with members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Board of Directors Tuesday seeking that association's help in urging customers to fill out and return the census forms. They will also place posters in their store windows.

Shea, who conducts a city census (street listing) annually, estimates Quincy's current population as between 85,000 and 90,000.

The U.S. census, however, has the population pegged at 83,000 — as of 1990.

Shea said census workers traditionally have trouble finding 10 percent of the actual population because they do not respond.

String Of Retirements For Police Department

The month of February will see nine officers retiring from the Quincy Police Department.

This brings the total to 13 officers, with a combined experience of more than four centuries, who will have retired from the force between October of last year and this April.

However, as of Feb. 25, 19 recruits will be ready to take their place.

"They're all excellent officers," said Quincy Police Chief Thomas Frane of the retirees. "We're going to lose a lot of experience. It's almost the loss of a generation."

The 13 retiring officers include:

Officer Harry Williams, 30 years; Officer Michael McCormack, 32 years; Officer David Schofield, 28 years; Officer Frank Spring, 32 years; Officer James Condon, 31 years; Officer Ronald Johnson, 30 years; Officer Timothy Tobin, 33.5 years; Captain Donald Riley, 37 years; Officer Philip Cheverie, 32 years; Officer Paul Curtin, 32 years; Officer Donald Murray, 30 years; Officer Kevin Murphy, 33 years; and Officer

Peter Kendall, 29 years. Frane called the loss both

From past experience, he identified the weak response areas as Germantown, Brewer's Corner, Montclair, other parts of North Quincy and Marina Bay.

Marina Bay, Gillis noted, has many people living in luxury condos and apartments with no Quincy roots.

Shea said most residents will receive single sheet forms, but one out of six will get a 17-page questionnaire.

Once the forms have been returned and the response is found low in certain areas, workers will be sent out from the regional office to knock on doors, Shea said.

Shea noted the change in Quincy's population makeup in recent years.

"Quincy was once 97 percent white," he said. "It is now 79-81 percent white and 17-18 percent non-white. Most of the non-white are Asians."

Senator Morrissey said that a drop in population figures could also affect Quincy politically.

'Quincy Complete Count Committee'

A "Quincy Complete Count Committee" is being established to urge residents to respond to the U.S. Census so the city won't lose vital federal funds.

The committee is headed by Congressman William Delahunt, Mayor James Sheets and City Clerk Joseph Shea as co-chairmen.

Members already named to the committee are:

Jack Mather, executive director Quincy Housing Authority; School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Fr. Michael Kearney, St. Boniface Church; Rev. Richard Law, Wollaston Lutheran Church; Hi Thai, designee for Police Chief Thomas Frane; Ann McLaughlin, director Thomas Crane Public Library.

Liz Harrington, Quincy Planning Department; Arthur Keough, Quincy College; Charles Phelan, city director of Data Processing; Jonathan Yip, city Equal Opportunity Officer; Denis Tardo and William Draicchio, Quincy Board of Voter Registrars; Tackey Chan, designee Senator Morrissey; Betty Yau, owner Yau's Marketing Service; Kathy Quigley, Germantown Neighborhood Center; Cynthia Antonopoulos, Houghs Neck Community Center; Margaret Carlson, Adams Shore Community Center.

Patricia Thorley, Atlantic Neighborhood Center; Sandra Buckley,

Squantum Community Center; Phyllis Bagen, Ward 2 Community Center; Marge Dupere, State Street Bank; Henry Bosworth, publisher The Quincy Sun; Karen Dobbyn, Human Resources, Patriot Ledger; and Liz Chase-Marino, Stop & Shop Corporation.

Others are to be named.

Quincy state representative seats," he said.

He did not see Congressman William Delahunt's 10th District seat being immediately affected.

A "Quincy Complete Count Committee" is being established to urge residents throughout the city to fill out and return their census forms, and to stress the importance to the city of their doing so.

The committee is headed by Mayor James Sheets, Delahunt and Shea as co-chairmen.

Meanwhile, census jobs are still available and pay $12 to $15 an hour. Anyone interested may call the regional office in Randolph at 1-888-325-7733.

Inspectional Services Dept. Expands Hours

Effective Monday, the city's Inspectional Services Department has expanded office hours to 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., announces Director Walter White.

"We hope these expanded hours will make it more convenient for you to do business with this department," White said. "We are most interested in any suggestions you may have to help us improve our service.

"Please feel free to share any suggestions you may have by calling me directly at (617) 376-1456. You can also write them down and leave them at the office to my attention," White added.

Open Forum Resolve Rejected By Council

Councillor Daniel Raymond's resolution to begin each City Council meeting with a 15-minute open forum for residents was rejected by a 6-3 vote Monday night.

The proposal was sent to the full council by the Rules Committee with a 4-1 negative recommendation.

Councillors Timothy Cahill, Gregory Hanley, Patrick McDermott, Frank McCauley, Joseph Newton, and Council President Paul Harold voted against the resolve.

Councillors Michael D'Amico, Stephen Durkin, and Raymond voted in favor.

This marks the third time in Raymond's council career that an open forum resolution has gone down in defeat.

"I'm disappointed that it looks like the Rules Committee will reject this for the third time," Raymond told the committee during its debate. "It's in the public interest that we allow residents who have the time to speak before the council."

Proponents of the measure cited a similar forum at School Committee meetings and said it would give residents the opportunity to address all nine councillors at once.

Those against argued that the City Council's business was quite different than that of the School Committee and that the forum could pose time problems for a council trying to work through an already busy agenda.

President Harold said he had supported the open forum on a trial basis in the past but, after speaking with councillors from several communities, was convinced the idea was not right for Quincy.

"The problem arises when you have 15 minutes and 60 people," Harold said, adding that the 15-minutes might possibly stretch to two hours. Harold also noted that, in Lawrence, that city's open forum had led to people arriving in costumes, singing and dancing before the council.

Councillor McCauley said that residents had ample opportunity to speak to their councillors at neighborhood meetings and public hearings. "I think this is a bad idea 'whose time has not come,'" McCauley said. "The first and third Monday of each month is our night. That's when we talk."

In contrast, the open forum was championed by Councillor D'Amico, who called it "an extension of good constituent services" and added, "If it's an issue that's important enough for people to be here, then they should be listened to."

By CRAIG SALTERS

The recent stretch of unusually cold weather has added another challenge for Father Bill's Place as it copes with record numbers at its 38 Broad St. shelter.

"We're in overflow," said John Yazwinski, executive director of Father Bill's Place. "We definitely feel the pinch more in the winter. Those who would normally choose to be outside have no choice but to come in."

Yazwinski reported the 95-bed shelter has been averaging between 100 and 110 guests since September and that January witnessed nights of 114 people.

Yazwinski also said 1999 was the first time in its 12-year history that Father Bill's Place had been above capacity each and every month.

Council Adopts Speaking Limit For Members

The City Council Monday night adopted new rules concerning how long its members could speak on any given issue.

From now on, a councillor will be limited to 10 minutes of speaking time per agenda item. After all councillors have been extended the courtesy of speaking on an issue, that same councillor can speak an additional five minutes.

The "10 and 5" rule was drafted by Councillor Frank McCauley as a revision to an earlier plan before the council. It was approved by the Rules Committee earlier in the night and passed unanimously later by the full council.

An amendment sponsored by Councillor Daniel Raymond to exclude "Question and Answer" periods from the overall time total was defeated soundly, with Raymond the sole vote in favor.

"This will really streamline the process," said Council President Paul Harold, who said he'd spoken with several communities -- including Beverly, Weymouth, and Lawrence -- which had had success with similar measures.

Councillor Michael D'Amico called the time limit "long overdue" and said it would provide order as the council attended to its business.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, chair of the Rules Committee, emphasized that the time limit did not apply to public hearings or special permit granting authority meetings. He also said that the rule could be suspended by a simple majority vote.

"What this does is move things along," Cahill said. "It ensures that no one issue can dominate an entire city council meeting."

Joseph Shea, City Clerk, will be responsible for monitoring the time limits.

U.S. Census 'No Shows' Can Cost City Millions

From past experience, he identified the weak response

areas as Germantown, Brewer's Corner, Montclair, other parts of North Quincy and Marina Bay.

Marina Bay, Gillis noted, has many people living in luxury condos and apartments with no Quincy roots.

Shea said most residents will receive single sheet forms, but one out of six will get a 17-page questionnaire.

Once the forms have been returned and the response is found low in certain areas, workers will be sent out from the regional office to knock on doors, Shea said.

Shea noted the change in Quincy's population makeup in recent years.

Sex Offender Registry Ward 5 Assn. Topic

The Ward 5 Community Association will conduct its monthly meeting Thursday, Feb. 17, at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, Fenn St.

The meeting's topic will be the status of the state's Sex Offender Registry. The registry is no longer in effect despite the concerns of many parents.

Guest speakers will include State Rep. Steven Tobin, chairman of the House Criminal Justice Committee, and a representative from Quincy Police Department Chief Thomas Frane's office.

"The Sex Offender Registry is a topic that has been hotly debated since its inception," said Dave Murphy, president of the Ward 5 Community Association.

"Through 'Megan's Law,' parents once had the ability to identify anyone in their community who might pose a threat to children. That protection is now gone and we hope to learn why and what can now be done to help parents."

"This is an issue that extends well beyond the boundaries of the ward and we welcome those who live outside the ward who would like to learn more about this topic."

For more information on the Ward 5 Community Association, call 479-3631.

Local Spinster Started Valentine Craze

If it hadn't been for a spinster who lived her later years here in Quincy, Valentine's Day might be just plain Feb. 14, another cold, ho-hum day in the middle of winter.

Esther A. Howland, who apparently never found her own true love, was the mother of the American valentine of today.

Because of her, Feb. 14 is now the day to be sure to tell that someone special "I love you" with a valentine, candy, flowers, or jewelry, etc.

Esther lived most of her life in Worcester, graduating from Mount Holyoke College in 1849.

That year, she came across a number of valentines sent from England to her father, who owned a Worcester stationery and book store.

Esther, as the story goes, didn't think much of them and decided she could create better ones. She came up with some samples and before long was soon on her way to a $100,000 a year business which in turn sparked the nation-wide industry we know today.

Esther lived in Worcester until 1886 after both her mother and father had died. She had given up her valentine business in an act of love—to care for her bed-ridden father.

She came to Quincy to live with her brother, Charles, at 2 Adams St. And died there March 15, 1904 at the age of 75.

She never married, apparently never finding her own valentine in life.

But she did live to see the nation-wide industry that was spawned by her creations back in 1849.

And she must have smiled whenever she thought of the instructor at Mount Holyoke College who back around the time she was creating her valentines, was warning his students against "sending any of those foolish notes called valentines."

How did Feb. 14 get to be Valentine's Day?

According to legend, it goes back to the year 270 and a man named Valentinus, believed to be a Roman priest who helped Christian martyrs persecuted under Emperor Claudius II. A crime punishable by death.

Valentinus, the story goes, was arrested and brought before the Emperor and tried to convert him to Christianity.

Claudius was so impressed by Valentinus, he tried to save his life by converting him to the Roman gods. Valentinus refused and was condemned to be beaten, stoned and beheaded.

According to the legend, while awaiting execution, Valentinus became friends with the blind daughter of his jailer and restored her sight.

On the eve of his execution, he supposedly wrote her a farewell note and signed it: "From your Valentin."

The next day, he was beheaded. The date: Feb. 14. But let me close this on a lighter note, especially for you men:

Roses are red,
Violets are blue
Don't forget Valentine's Day,
Or she'll be ticked off at you.

(And I'm sure I'm going to hear from Charlie Sweeney about that magnificent meter and rhyme.)

THE LATEST BUZZ along the local political front is that Paul Harold is going to surprise everyone and run for Norfolk County clerk of courts.

That would be bad news for Mike D'Amico who is very seriously considering running, especially if long-time incumbent Nick Barbadoro decides to step down this year.

But it would be good news for Jim Sheets who is thinking of running for a seventh mayoral term next year.

And for Tim Cahill and Dan Raymondi, both of whom have mayoral aspirations.

They would have Harold out of their hair if he ran for clerk of courts and won.

But, apparently there's no reason for anyone to get excited. Harold insists there's nothing to the rumor.

"The next office I run for will be for mayor," he says.

REMINDER TO UNREGISTERED voters from City Clerk Joseph Shea.

If you are planning to vote in the Massachusetts Presidential Primary March 7, time is running out on you.

Deadline for registering is Wednesday, Feb. 16, Shea notes. The Election Department will be open 8:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. that final day. Or you can register during regular City Hall Hours until then.

Shea also reminds unenrolled (independent) voters that they can vote in the Presidential Primary by taking either a Democrat or Republican ballot on election day.

By doing so, an unenrolled voter becomes a Democrat or Republican while they are voting. But can quickly return to unenrolled status by filling out a registration card available on site.

ARTIST MARY REARDON, one of the great talents to come out of Quincy, is being honored with a one-person show at the South Shore Arts Center in Cohasset running through Feb. 20.

Known world-wide for her mosaic ceilings in the National Cathedral in Washington and the St. Louis Cathedral in St. Louis, Mo., her work locally includes the beautiful mural in the lobby of the South Shore YMCA in Quincy.

She is a member of a distinguished Quincy family. Her father, Daniel, was one of the founders of Quincy Hospital and served for many years on the school committee.

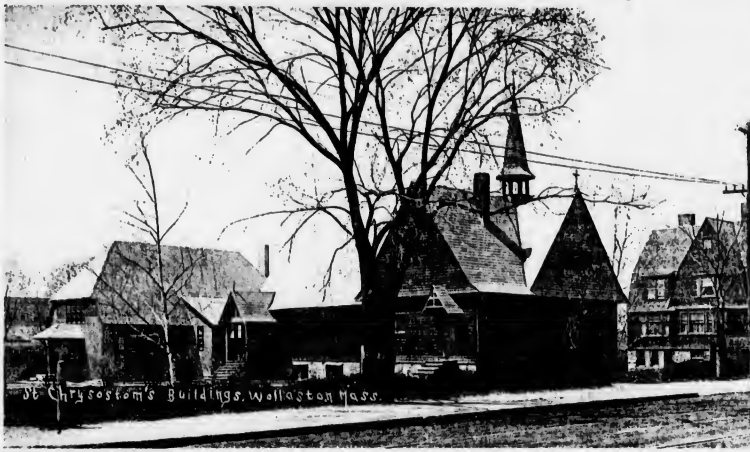

She is the sister of the late Superior Court Judge Paul Reardon and the late George Reardon, owner of the former Presidents Chevrolet and a community leader.

Reardon St. in West Quincy is named for Bartholomew Reardon, the first member of the family to settle in Quincy.

Some claim the tradition of exchanging valentines on February 14 can be traced back to the writings of Geoffrey Chaucer.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1915 real photo postcard of St. Chrysostom's church at the corner of Linden and Hancock Streets in Wollaston. Only the church hall building on the left is unchanged. A new church and parsonage have replaced those shown here. The trolley tracks in the foreground are still there. If you drive down this section of Hancock Street, you can see some of them poking through the pavement.

READERS FORUM

Sees Regional Tourism Potential For USS Salem

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I was delighted to read in The Quincy Sun of Jan. 27 that the USS Salem will return to the Fore River Shipyard as a new and improved vessel this Spring. Also, that the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum will reopen with new exhibits on the history of the Fore River Shipyard and its founder Thomas Watson.

Because Watson was a Salem, Mass. native, we have several nationally significant sites here in Salem "the Witch City" which relate to Watson's early life and pre-Quincy partnership with Alexander Graham Bell. We also have the state's leading authority on Mr. Watson — a professional tour guide — living here in Salem, as well as many complementary tour attractions including the "Bewitching Seaport" for which the USS Salem was named — and which the Quincy-built ship promoted whenever, and wherever, she sailed.

Because Salem and Quincy could benefit so strongly from working together more closely — and because Quincy's high-speed ferries now link Quincy with Salem via Boston — we propose that Quincy and Salem planners work together soon to develop new regional maritime history tours re-connecting the USS Salem with the other two ports. The Boston History Collaborative has just published an impressive "Boston By Sea" maritime trail that links the USS Salem with Boston and Salem, so indeed there is now a precedent for regional tour linkage, as well as the new ferry means for carrying tourists, international visitors, and school groups to this triplet of seaports by water.

Approximately 802,224 people visited our historic Salem waterfront in 1998 before our new $6 million Friendship Tall Ship was even complete. We have many world class resources for telling the chapters of Early American history relating to New England's maritime origins, commerce, industry, the early development of U.S. Naval shipbuilding, and Thomas Watson's youth before the later chronological chapters are told in Quincy. We could easily produce day-long, or multi-day "sea and seaport" tours, utilizing combined coastal resources in Salem, Boston, and Quincy to market larger and more exciting adventures to broader audiences to benefit all.

Interested Quincy parties who would like to assist in developing new 21st century regional tour programs linking these remarkable, related port cities are encouraged to write: John V. Goff, International Tide Mills Museum, P.O. Box 8655, Salem, MA 01971, attention: Salem-USS Salem tours.

Concerned About Gas Stations At Supermarkets

Editor, The Quincy Sun: As a North Quincy community activist, as a member of the board of directors of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association and as a former candidate for public office, I have always believed that government is our business. Either we run it or it runs us.

However, it isn't just government that is our business, it is things like Highpoint, the Quincy Shipyard, Quincy Hospital, Marina Bay and Stop & Shop gas stations, too.

The quality of life in our neighborhoods depends on active neighbors concerned about their own communities. City Hall has yet to take a stand on Stop & Shop's plans for a gas station at its Newport Avenue supermarket but the neighborhood is already being heard.

On Feb. 3, Stop & Shop unveiled its plans at a meeting of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association. The meeting was held at Work Inc. but if you listened to many of the neighborhood folks present, the gas station idea probably ain't gonna work for them.

To be fair, I haven't driven over to Abington to see their Stop & Shop gas station. I was unable to get to the neighborhood meeting but have heard the comments of many with their reservations for this gas station idea. According to Stop & Shop, they just "want to enhance the concept of one-stop shopping."

According to Matteo Panarelli, "Stop & Shop could care less about the neighborhood. The same thing is true with this gas station. They're not doing it because they want to be a good neighbor."

I shop at Newport Avenue's Stop & Shop at least twice a week. I could go to a supermarket closer to home but I choose Stop & Shop because they have union employees and treat them with respect. All I ask is that they do likewise for the people of Ward 3 and the Montclair neighborhood that they are a part of.

When I heard where the gas station site was to be (at Holbrook Rd and Newport Ave.), I could just imagine the gridlock possible at that horribly congested intersection. All the traffic lights and turn signals in the world aren't going to dent this problem. If Stop & Shop moved the location to the other side of the parking lot by Farrington St., it would turn the neighborhood in to a nightmare for residents.

As a resident of Ward 6, I defer to the folks of Montclair and Ward 3 like Kevin Coughlin or to Howie Crowley who told Stop & Shop representatives, "We're not happy about it. You're going to have to prove you're not going to impact parking before anyone is going to be happy."

This project is just getting off the drawing boards. Before it becomes a reality, it must pass muster with numerous city boards and the City Council. Of course, Stop & Shop thinks the gas station idea is great, what else would they say?

Some folks in Ward 3 think the whole gas station issue is already cut and dry. As Howie Crowley said, folks are not happy about it. I am not happy about it. If a supermarket wants to be part of the community, it should listen to the community and not operate in a corporate vacuum. Now is the time to let your elected officials know where you stand. After all, this is our business. If we do nothing, we'll just get the business. Good luck to Montclair. The ball is now in your court.

Feds Oppose Local Expressway Ramp

By PAUL HAROLD

At a State House hearing officials from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads voiced their opposition to the construction of a $750,000, northbound expressway ramp at Capen's Bridge, on the Quincy-Braintree line.

Feb. 10 - 16

38 Years Ago

Braintree elected representatives joined with the federal officials to oppose the plan backed by Quincy's political and business establishment, including Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, representatives James McIntyre, Joseph Brett and Charles Shea and business leader Joseph B. Grossman. Also opposing the ramp were the faculty of Archbishop Williams High School.

Federal officials said that with the planned construction of the Shawmut Trail, connecting the expressway with the Fore River Bridge, that area of Quincy and Braintree would be furnished with additional service.

Despite criticism from residents who claimed that the speeding enforcement on Sea St. was "excessive," Police Chief William Ferrazzi said the enforcement effort would continue.

Since the crackdown began in October, 300 violations were issued with many charges brought to court. The most blatant offenders were clocked at 60 m.p.h.

KOCH IN LINE FOR PARK-RECREATION JOB

A bill passed the House this week and was sent to the Senate, providing for the appointment of Richard Koch as executive secretary of the newly consolidated Park and Recreation Commission.

City Councillor James McCormack, chairman of the Park and Recreation Committee, said Koch was in line for the new top job, with William Ryan continuing as director of recreation.

QUINCY-ISMS

Rep. Joseph Brett pushed legislation that would have the MDC take over control of two areas in Quincy. The first area was along the Neponset River, with the second lying between Wollaston and Merrymount, along Quincy Shore Drive. He said that both areas were threatened with "undesirable development and that the only way to save these areas for future generations was for the MDC to take control."

... Bernard Moore, Jr. of Atlantic St. joined the Quincy-Shore Chamber of Commerce staff. He was a graduate of North Quincy High School and Antioch College in Ohio. ... Some 719 people signed a petition for the re-zoning of a portion of Quincy Shore Drive from residence C to residence B to stop the construction of a 12-story apartment house, north of Billings St. and west of East Squantum St. The petition was presented by William Fitzgerald, president of the North Quincy Civic Association. ... Magician Edwin Shaw, the "honest pickpocket" mystified 100 Rotarians and their wives at the Ladies' Day Valentine's luncheon at the Neighborhood Club. James D. Asher and Kenneth Fallon, Jr. were in charge of the following week's radio day at WJDA. ... The Morrisette Post scheduled its 33rd annual memorial Mass and parade, with vice commander Paul O'Neill as parade marshal. ... Blood donors from St. Joseph's Holy Name Society included Raymond Dunn, Joseph McCourt, Edward Hoyle, Valentine Grazioso, William McKenzie and William Gaffney. ... A son was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Caramanica of Figurehead Lane. ... Members of the Sisterhood of the Jewish Community Center met at the Norton St. home of Mrs. Eliot Rosen to plan for future activities. ... The Quincy High School hockey team scored four times in the first period to win the 10th Met Hockey League game at the Boston Arena, 6-1 over Christopher Columbus. Outstanding defenseman Bob Carroll scored the last goal. ... Fourteen-year-old Mary Kenney of Shelton Rd. was crowned "Miss Sweetheart" at the Future Homemakers Valentine's Dance at the QHS gymnasium. Faculty sponsors of the dance were John Conner, Mrs. Lawrence Cillahan, Mrs. Jean Smart and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Willis. ... Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cassagrande of West St. celebrated their 50th anniversary. Their three children were Mrs. Rose Herbert, Mrs. Elsa Zanolli and Joseph Cassagrande. ... Frank Rusconi and Kathleen Cedrone were on the seventh grade honor roll at South Junior High School.

Augustana College Choir In Concert At Bethany Church

The Augustana College Choir from Rock Island, Illinois, internationally recognized for its musical virtuosity-acclaimed by appreciative audiences and critics alike, will perform in Quincy on Sunday, Feb. 27.

The concert, sponsored by the Bethany Congregational Church Youth Group and Music Committee, will begin at 4 p.m. at Bethany Church, corner of Spear and Coddington St.

The event is open to the public free of charge.

The 75-voice Augustana Choir, directed by Choral Conductor Jon Hurty, has toured throughout the United States and Scandinavia. The choir has performed at Orchestra Hall in Chicago, and at the Lincoln Center and Carnegie Hall in New York, where the New York Times once wrote, "The Augustana Choir has the reputation of being one of the finest in the country."

JOHN HURTY

Music has been a part of Augustana College since its very beginning in 1860. Founded by Swedish Lutheran pioneers to train leaders for immigrant communities across North America, the initial focus of music education at the college was of a religious nature. Music programming at Augustana, however, has grown to include performance opportunities from American Jazz to Japanese Koto.

The visit to Quincy is part of the choir's annual spring tour.

AUGUSTANA COLLEGE CHOIR will perform Sunday, Feb. 27 at 4 p.m. at Bethany Congregational Church.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS planning the American Red Cross Mardi Gras Ball to be held March 3 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club include (seated) Michelle Bowen and Co-chairwomen Mary Snethen and Lynne Houghton. Standing are Jerry Dacey, Glenn Ferguson and Mark Fisher.

Red Cross Mardi Gras To Be Held March 3

The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay will hold its 21st Annual Ball Friday, March 3, at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Co-chairing the event are Mary Snethen and Lynne Houghton.

Because the ball is being held during Mardi Gras time black tie is optional or costumes may be worn. There will be Mardi Gras beads and masks for those attending. Cocktails will be at 6 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. followed by dancing to the music of "Obsession".

The ball will help raise needed funds to support the programs and services that the Red Cross offers to the community. The American Red Cross has been helping millions of people since 1881. Whether it's offering disaster and emergency relief, teaching lifesaving skills such as CPR and first aide or providing youth programs in the community.

In Quincy the past six months the volunteer Disaster Action Team responded to six fires providing emergency assistance to 12 individuals. Two Red Cross volunteers visited five schools and taught over 1,000 students how to be safe on their own through the Home Alone Program. And with the help of generous volunteers Red Cross was able to provide 872 needy children with stockings and toys this past holiday season.

Tickets are on sale for $50. each or $500 for a corporate table. Send checks to the American Red Cross, 1495 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 or call Jackie Gardner at (617)770-2600 for more information.

PRIME TRAVELER

by George P. Murphy

...AND AWAY WE GO!

"Let's get away from it all" was the theme of a popular song many years ago. If it was a good idea then, it's an even better one now. Getting away is virtually a necessity in these days of stressful jobs and high activity lifestyles. A visit to a different climate, a change in scenery, a contrasting culture and just doing something out of the ordinary can relieve tensions and recharge one's batteries. Those who travel often have learned, though, that the key to a successful vacation is to plan it in advance. We intend to help you with the important task of planning your vacations by bringing you up-to-date information on places to go, things to do, and sights to see. We will also share some of our favorite travel tips and suggest ways that you can make the most of those precious vacation days. Welcome to our new column on the wonderful world of travel. Today, travel is a highly diverse product. It can be on any of the world's waterways. It can be the trip of a lifetime to one of the exotic and fascinating destinations worldwide. It can be a visit to family and friends near or far. Where in the world do you want to go? Delahunt Urges NQHS Students To Get Involved

By CRAIG SALTERS

Congressman William Delahunt came well prepared to speak before Ann Carrolls' American Government classes at North Quincy High School Monday morning.

And he should thank his lucky stars he did.

After more than an hour of remarks in which Delahunt explained some of the nuts and bolts of both his job and American politics in general, the enthusiastic students peppered Delahunt with questions about Social Security, Election 2000, Campaign Finance Reform, Elian Gonzalez, Affirmative Action, The Middle East, and the rating of the Clinton Presidency.

One student even asked Delahunt to comment on the growth of Right Wing politics in Austria.

"This is obviously a very talented group of students," Delahunt said. "It's just another reason to be proud to be a Quincy native."

Delahunt was not without an enthusiasm of his own, challenging the students to "become engaged" in the political process, to define their position on a citizen's rights and responsibilities and the role of government, and to become vigilant of their freedoms. "The bottom line is you've got to get involved and you've got to think about it," Delahunt said. "If you haven't thought about what the role of the citizen is, then democracy is at risk."

As an example of that involvement, Delahunt pointed to NQHS's Student Alliance Against Racism and Violence, a regional civil rights youth initiative founded by Delahunt in the 1980's when he served as Norfolk County District Attorney. The Alliance is a partnership between prosecutors and schools to combat the incidence of hate crimes by and against young people.

The SAARV chapter, Delahunt said, was formed at a time when Quincy's Asian population was booming and racial tensions in the city and in the schools were high. "We addressed it right here, right in this city," Delahunt said, adding that, although no system was perfect, Quincy's Asian population did indeed assimilate with a minimum of hardship.

When Delahunt was asked what one aspect of American politics he would most want to change, he immediately responded, "Campaign Finance Reform." Said Delahunt:

"That really underlies all that we do. There's a disproportionate access given to special interest groups.

That's why the McCain campaign is so interesting. The American people are making the connection be-

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

GOUT

Gout is a form of arthritis that occurs when uric acid accumulates in the body's joint fluids. It develops when the body produces excess uric acid or fails to efficiently eliminate it through the kidneys and urine. Gout usually begins with a sudden onset of intense pain in one or more joints, often the big toe joint. Redness, swelling and warmth over the joint accompany pain. Wearing shoes is difficult and painful and it hurts to move the joint or stand. Oral anti-inflammatory medications are often prescribed to manage acute attacks of gout. To treat the condition effectively, a doctor must establish whether it was caused by excess production of uric acid or a failure to properly eliminate it.

The good news is there is no reason to continue to experience foot discomfort due to gout. We turn to the most advanced treatment for problems of the foot and ankle, always with a gentle and caring approach. That's the reason why so many adults, seniors and children continue to seek our help whenever it is needed. At 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy, we make taking care of your feet, your body and your well-being easy. Call 617-472-3466 for an appointment.

P.S. Acute attacks of gout may be caused by eating purine-rich foods, such as red meats, shellfish, beer, red wine, or salt.

$63,000 Childhood Center Appropriation Passed To School Department

Councillor Michael D'Amico sponsored a resolution Monday night asking Mayor James Sheets to appropriate $63,000 for the Library Media Center at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center.

The resolve passed 5-4, but not without a very significant amendment: instead of going to Mayor Sheets, the request is now addressed to Quincy Public School Superintendent Eugene Creedon.

The amendment was made by Councillor Frank McCauley, who said he's still upset about QPS' hiring of a second athletic director.

McCauley wondered why the School Committee, with its $52 million budget and second athletic director, couldn't afford materials for the center.

Not only is the resolve now directed to Supt. Creedon, but it instructs Creedon to find available funds through "breakage," which is money left over when veteran teachers retire and replacements are hired at less salary.

If there was enough "breakage" for a second athletic director, McCauley argued, there ought to be enough for the Della Chiesa.

Bookmobile Visits QCAP Students Today

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., will host the Thomas Crane Library's Bookmobile visit today (Thursday) from 10 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at its offices at 1509 Hancock St.

The Bookmobile will visit the students in the English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) class.

The event will introduce students to the books, books, videos, and tapes specially designed for students studying English as a second language as well as many family activities and programs offered by the library. New library cards will be issued on-site to all eligible students.

a professional and a personal one. "These officers' careers have paralleled mine," Frane said. "I've spent a lot of time with them in various capacities. But, again, we prepare for these things, so we have very capable officers ready to take their place."

Frane reported that 19 new officers, who are also filling slots from a handful of previous retirements, will graduate Feb. 25 from the Norwood Police Academy.

The officers were sworn in as recruits Sept. 28 in the City Council Chamber and began their training Oct. 4.

After graduation, Frane said, the officers will undergo a 12-14 week, in-house Field Training Officer Patrol program, which will pair the rookies off with police department veterans. "The program will guide their transition from what they learned in the classroom to what they'll learn on the streets," Frane said. "We've found that the program pays big dividends."

The new officers, Frane said, will be ready for full-patrol duties sometime in May, helping the QPD reach its manpower goals. "As of July 1, we will be at our full complement of 167 patrolmen," Frane said.

Besides the 167 patrolmen, the QPD has one chief, five captains, 16 lieutenants, and 29 sergeants.

The 19 new officers are: Donald G. Greenwood, Fort Bragg, N.C.; Stephen M. Burgo, Quincy; Matthew D. Patten, Quincy; Daniel Flaherty, Wollaston; Patrick E. Buonaugurio, Wollaston; James J. Borden Quincy.

Kevin G. DiMaggio, Wollaston; Thomas M. Ford, Quincy; James L. Lencki, Quincy; Lisa J. Lindsey, Quincy; Ronald L. McKim, Quincy.

Timothy S. Moran, Quincy; Paul J. Murphy, Braintree; Paul L. Pieper, Quincy; Jimmie L. Whedbee Jr., Hanover; Edward J. Hartnett IV, Braintree.

'State Of Ward' Address By D'Amico

Ward 4 City Councillor Michael D'Amico will deliver a "State of Ward 4 Address" Wednesday, Feb. 16, at 7 p.m. at the Sterling Middle School Auditorium.

The address will be carried live on Quincy Access Cable.

D'Amico will focus on public works improvements, public safety initiatives, advances in school initiatives, and his Constituent Service Plan.

In addition to highlighting all Ward 4 advances during the past four years, D'Amico will outline his agenda for 2000.

SENIOR LIVING

by Laura Andrus, Director of Marketing

GOOD NUTRITION PROLONGS LIFE

According to a study conducted by European researchers, good nutrition prolongs life. That is the conclusion reached after studying the eating habits of 3,045 Italian, Finnish and Dutch men over a 20-year period. Although dietary patterns varied considerably between countries, the men with the best diets were 13% less likely to die during the study than were the men with the worst diets. Even though the study began with dietary benchmarks that were developed in Europe over 25 years ago, they are remarkable similar to the diet considered best for Americans today: low intake of cholesterol, saturated fat and simple sugars; a moderate amount of protein and a high intake of dietary fiber, complex carbohydrates, fruits and vegetables.

It's never too late to improve one's diet, which, by the way, will often improve one's well being. When you come to MARINA PLACE to live, you will soon feel at home because of our beautiful environs, our warm and professional staff, and the various independent and assisted living options that are designed to meet your changing needs as a senior. Come have a tour of our campus which includes 110 private apartments. For more information, call 617-770-3264. We're just nearby at Four Seaport Drive.

P.S. The European study mentioned above found that good nutrition was particularly effective in reducing the risk of heart disease and cancer.

Record Number Sheltered At Father Bill's Place

The shelter, Yazwinski said, has added extra bunk beds in the dorm and the Quincy Emergency Management Team has brought in 20 cots for the cafeteria. "We won't turn anyone away," Yazwinski said. "If our cafeteria is above capacity, then we will find room for them in other shelters across the state."

Yazwinski was quick to emphasize that 50 percent of Father's Bill's residents had full or part-time jobs and that, with the exception of one-night emergency stays, all residents were from the South Shore.

Although bitterly cold temperatures may make homelessness more noticeable, Yazwinski said the real culprit was the current housing crunch. One-bedroom apartments or studios, he said, were in short supply and much of Quincy's housing was being priced out of many people's reach.

Said Yazwinski:

"We need more affordable housing. There are rent increases every year and it continues to push the working poor out of the market. Homelessness is rising even as unemployment is decreasing."

Yazwinski was especially concerned about the growing homeless population aged 18-24. "Some of them are leaving foster care without appropriate after-care planning, and their issues are very different from those of a 40 or 50-year old person," Yazwinski said.

Yazwinski praised the volunteers and organizations supporting the shelter and called the support from the South Shore's faith community "tremendous."

Yazwinski placed the shelter's current ratio of guests to paid staff at roughly 30 to 1.

Five Boys Suspended From Central For Obscene Document

Central Middle School suspended five Grade 8 boys last week for writing an 18-page document containing obscene and racist language as well as sexually suggestive language aimed at classmates.

The boys will be suspended for 10 days. After their suspension, they will undergo counseling and their behavior will be monitored carefully.

The document was discovered when a student not involved in the writing acci-dently took home the bookbag of one of the authors. The boy then showed the writing to his parents, who notified Frank Santoro, Central Middle School principal. The police were later notified.

The document is a mock version of the U.S. Constitution and was signed by all five boys.

An Important Message To Consumers

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT! and
PLEASE DO NOT SHOP VICTORY MARKETS

The men and women of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791 truly appreciate the tremendous show of support by the public for our picket lines at Victory Supermarket. The UFCW is picketing and leafleting Victory Market to protect and preserve our union contracts. Victory Supermarket is non-union and does not have a contract with or employ members of United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791.

Why are we picketing?

Because union jobs are held by working people and support our communities, and in turn, support our schools, and our tax base. Union jobs have allowed millions of workers and their families to benefit from a higher standard of living. Union contracts provide workers with good wages, health insurance and pension benefits and safe working conditions. The AFL-CIO reports that most non-union workers have substandard wage and benefit packages when compared to union workers in similar industries. The more non-union supermarkets like Victory Market that open and operate will make it increasingly difficult to enhance and or maintain good union contracts that benefit workers and their families.

For these reasons, we respectfully ask that you recognize that Victory is a non-union supermarket and choose instead to support union-represented supermarkets such as SHAW'S and STOP & SHOP.

This message brought to you by the hard working men and women of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union Local 791 AFL-CIO.

This advertisement is directed solely to the shopping public and is not intended to cause a stoppage of work or interference with deliveries.

REAL ESTATE

Parents Helping Children To Buy A Home

By MARY DAWSON
Daddy, can I buy a house?

Of course, that is an exaggeration about what is said between a child and parents but the connection between generations still exists. The query can be as simple as wanting to know what the process is to actual financial help.

So often the calls come from friends, acquaintances, or strangers referred to a realtor seeking help with the beginning steps for their offspring. It is usually the easiest way to take the next generation through the process. It is enjoyable and hopefully pleasurable for the young people as well.

Often the parents stay involved. They enjoy an occasional tour of properties or perhaps just coming by after a second showing to add emotional support. This is a wonderful opportunity, especially if the new buyer is also newly married and there are two sets of parents.

The next type of involvement is money for a down payment, whether loaned or given. So often this creates an entitlement on the part of the giver to want to be more a part of the process. It should not be a road block but could cause a detour. A well-trained professional agent will work through the complication.

A gift of money is acceptable and should be disclosed to the lender and a "gift letter" signed. Oftentimes the lender will need to see the account information from which the money is coming. Gifts must be from "blood relatives" and most lenders have the paper work to ease the process.

The ultimate parent involvement is as co-borrower. This is much more involved than a co-signer on a car loan. In most their own by refinancing and removing the parents from all documents.

Many times the offspring do not involve the parents until well into the process. Human nature being what it is, many dads and moms become advice givers and create doubt with the younger generation. The kids doubt that what they are doing is in their own best interest. The realtor may ask the parents, "Who helped you make these decisions in past years?" This should help bring them around to supporting the children in accessing the market of today.

What a wonderful opportunity it is for the parents to see their children create a new path for themselves. With the variety of mortgage opportunities available today, as well as the diverse inventory of real estate to choose from, more younger people are able to be homeowners than ever before.

Yes dear, Daddy says you can buy a house.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

How To Buy A Diamond For Valentine's Day

(NAPS)—Thinking of buying your true love a diamond for Valentine's Day, but worried you don't know enough? According to the nonprofit Gemological Institute of America (GIA)—the world's foremost gemological authority on gemology—buying the diamond of your dreams should be worry-free if you follow three basic steps:

Step 1: Choose a qualified jeweler. Choose your jeweler as you would choose your doctor, lawyer or any other professional. Check a jeweler's education and qualifications, and look for affiliations with jewelry industry groups and professional associations. A knowledgeable jeweler will clearly explain the "four C's" of diamond quality and will encourage you to compare diamonds to suit your price range.

Step 2: Learn the "four C's" of diamond quality.

The key to a diamond's value is its rarity, and no two diamonds are alike. Rarity is determined by a diamond's unique characteristics as measured by the four C's: Carat (weight), Clarity, Color and Cut. Using these criteria, a small diamond of exceptional quality will likely be more valuable than a larger diamond of lower quality.

Here is a brief overview:

- Carat: Diamonds are weighed using metric carats. A carat weighs about the same as a small paper clip. Just as a dollar is divided into 100 pennies, a carat is divided into 100 "points." This means that a diamond of 50 points weighs 0.50 carats. But two diamonds of equal weight can have very different values depending on their clarity, color and cut.

- Clarity: Created by nature, most diamonds contain unique birthmarks called "inclusions" (internal) and "blemishes" (external). Diamonds with few birth-marks are rare—and rarity translates to cost. Using the internationally recognized GIA Diamond Grading System, diamonds are given a clarity grade that ranges from flawless, to diamonds with more prominent inclusions (I).

- Color: Colorless diamonds are extremely rare and highly valued. Most are nearly colorless with yellow or brown tints. The GIA Diamond Grading System uses letters to represent colors, beginning with D (colorless) and ending at Z (light yellow or brown).

- Cut: While diamonds come in many different shapes, from round brilliants to hearts, pears and marquise, cut has to do with proportions. The well-cut diamond uses light to create brilliance, sparkles and flashes of fire.

Step 3: Ask for an independent diamond grading report. For the ultimate peace of mind, ask your jeweler to provide an independent diamond grading report with your diamond. The most widely used and respected reports are those issued by the independent GIA Gem Trade Laboratory, who provide reports on the world's most important diamonds. A professional jeweler can arrange to have your diamond graded and even have a personal message or unique GIA Diamond Grading Report number laser-inscribed onto the diamond's outer edge, called the girdle.

Like true love, a diamond's light and brilliance will not diminish with time. To learn more about the "four C's" of diamond quality, or to have your diamond graded or laser-inscribed by the nonprofit Gemological Institute of America, contact your local jeweler or visit the Institute's website at www.gia.edu.

Expert Advice On Communicating With Loved Ones

Here's expert help this Valentine's Day to communicate with loved ones in a way that's straight from the heart.

Hallmark Creations, 51 Newport Ave., North Quincy is offering a how-to guide on improving relationship communication.

It is a 128-page hard-bound book by relationship expert and best-selling author John Gray, Ph.D. entitled: "Mars and Venus In Touch: Enhancing the Passion with Great Communication."

Published by Harper

Collins, the book was written for Hallmark by Gray of "Men Are From Mars, Women Are From Venus" fame.

The book focuses on how important open, honest communication is to sustaining passion, emotion and understanding within relationships. The book sells for $2.95 with the purchase of any Hallmark card.

Valentine's Day provides the perfect opportunity to communicate feelings of love, affection and appreciation for the important people in your life.

According to Hallmark research, this Valentine's Day more than 75 percent of all U.S. homes will celebrate the day.

More than 900 million Valentine's Day cards will be sent. Fifty-two percent of them will be hand-delivered and more than half of them will be purchased during the final six days before the holiday.

The average household will purchase four valentines and the top five card recipients will be: spouse, son/daughter, friend, grandchild and parent.

Something Special For Your Valentine!

10 Ways To Get Closer To Your Valentine

(NAPS)—Finding a unique Valentine's Day gift for the man in your life can become more and more difficult each year. This year, why not consider a non-traditional gift, one that's not only personal and creative, but will make your special someone want to cuddle up with you cheek-to-cheek. Get closer with one of these 10 romantic ideas and Inspire your Valentine to cuddle cheek-to-cheek.

watch those sparks fly.

1. Caribbean Nights. Dim the lights, turn off the phone and rent a palm tree. Break out a beach blanket and create your own cozy cabana without leaving the house.

2. Get Steamy. Book a spa day and treat yourselves to side-by-side massages, facials and a hot tub for two.

3. Cheek-To-Cheek. Start off your romantic evening by treating him to a steamed towel and a pampering shave that will make him even more kissable.

4. Tickets To His Heart. Make a booklet of coupons that your loved one can turn staff to serve your meal so that you will have more time for romance. Don't forget the fresh fruit and fondue for dessert.

7. No Peeking! Blindfold your love and guide him to the site of your first date or profession of "I love you's."

8. "Memories." Showcase the time you have spent together by creating a scrapbook. Include photos, ticket stubs and other mementos that you have shared along the way.

9. A Surprise A Day. Leave one special item, such as candy or a poem, each day until February 14; save the best gift of all for last!

10. Dedicated To The One I Love. Surprise him with a tape of love songs in the car stereo—be sure to record a personal dedication at the end.

Whether you choose to make one, two or all 10 of these smooth moves, you are sure to get closer this Valentine's Day.

in for favors, such as a foot massage while watching the game on Sunday or a quiet evening home alone with you, with the kids at the baby sitter's house.

5. Treasure Hunt. Drop fun clues printed on scented stationery that will lead your love to a luxurious bubble bath.

6. Dinner For Two. Gather your favorite ingredients and drum up a delightful dish for two. Hire a wait

Flowers Are At The Heart Of Every Valentine's Wish List

(NAPS)—A recent consumer survey commissioned by FTD, Inc., has discovered that women prefer to receive flowers (54 percent) over perfume (23 percent) and candy (12 percent) for Valentine's Day. The FTD survey also revealed that although nearly three-fourths (73 percent) of women say that they would like to receive flowers this Valentine's Day, only a third (33 percent) actually expect to receive them.

"Our survey reveals a huge opportunity for men to be heroes this Valentine's Day! This is a wake-up call for all boyfriends and husbands: women want flowers for Valentine's Day," said Bob Norton, President and CEO of FTD.

For those who wonder where to send their Valentine's Day flowers, the survey revealed that 65 percent of women prefer to receive flowers at home, and just one third (30 percent) opt for Valentine's Day flowers at the office.

Men are the top shoppers when it comes to Valentine's Day flowers although women are slowly but surely following in their footsteps. Survey results show that three-quarters (76 percent) of men have ordered flowers for loved ones on Valentine's Day while nearly a third (30 percent) of women admitted giving flowers to the men in their lives.

"Traditionally, women have been the recipients of flowers for special occasions," Norton said. "But today, you don't have to be a woman to appreciate flowers from someone you love. Men are often just as excited to see that flower delivery arrive at their doorstep."

According to the FTD survey, 89 percent of men who will purchase flowers on Valentine's Day will buy them for wives/girlfriends. Fourteen percent of men will buy them for their mothers.

Hepatitis C: You May Not Know You Have It

(NAPS)—Many people who feel perfectly healthy could be infected with a potentially deadly virus called hepatitis C. The hepatitis C virus (HCV) is one of the most common chronic blood-borne infections in the United States. In the next 10 to 20 years, deaths due to hepatitis C are expected to triple and could exceed the annual number of deaths due to HIV, the virus that causes AIDS.

If you are one of the 4 million Americans who are infected with HCV, it's what you don't know that could hurt you. What is hepatitis C? Hepatitis C is an infection of the liver that often produces no signs or symptoms. Many of those infected with chronic HCV already have suffered serious liver damage by the time symptoms such as fatigue, mild fever, and aching joints and muscles occur. If left untreated, HCV can cause permanent scarring of the liver, liver cancer and even death. In addition to being the leading cause of liver transplantation in the United States, HCV causes more than 8,000 deaths each year.

"Hepatitis C does not discriminate," says Alan P. Brownstein, president and CEO of the American Liver Foundation. "It affects men, women and children from all walks of life, and all people need to understand their potential risk factors."

HCV is spread primarily through blood to blood contact. Two common risk factors are contact with infected blood through injection drug use or a blood transfusion prior to 1992, when there was no test to detect HCV. An estimated 300,000 Americans who received blood transfusions or organ transplants before 1992 are believed to have been infected this way.

Getting Tested and Treated

If you think that you may have been exposed to HCV, see your doctor and ask to be tested. Early diagnosis and treatment could potentially restore good health. Therapy with interferon alone or in combination with ribavirin can help many people with chronic hepatitis C. Additional treatment options are being developed. More research is needed to develop cures for chronic hepatitis.

For free information about hepatitis, call the American Liver Foundation

Hepatitis C Virus Infection Risk Factors: Blood to Blood Contact

Known to Transmit Infection

- Using illegal injection drugs, even once
- Having a blood transfusion or organ transplant before July 1992
- Having long-term hemodialysis
- Receiving clotting factor made prior to 1987
- Being injured by a needle or other sharp object coated with infected blood
- Being born to an infected mother

May Transmit Infection

- Having unprotected sex with multiple partners or a history of sexually transmitted diseases
- Tattooing or body piercing in unsanitary conditions
- Using the razor or toothbrush of an infected person
- Other exposure to infected blood

Learning The ABCs Of Asthma Prevention

(NAPS)—Learning more about asthma—the most chronic common disease of childhood—can help children with asthma feel more comfortable, have fewer symptoms or complications and miss fewer days of school.

Asthma is a chronic lung disease that affects 4.8 million American children and results in 10 million lost school days annually. It is characterized by acute episodes or "attacks" of breathing problems, such as coughing, wheezing, chest tightness and shortness of breath.

The symptoms are caused by the inflammation and swelling of airways, which can be triggered by allergens, irritants, upper respiratory infections, excitement or stress or physical exercise.

Preventing asthma can be as easy as ABC. Three important steps are:

A. Assessing (with a doctor's help) what could be triggering your asthma episodes.

B. Banishing as many triggers as possible from your immediate environment.

C. Controlling symptoms by getting the right medication to prevent an episode and to treat symptoms should you have any symptoms.

Taking the right medication and taking it when you are supposed to is an important part of treating asthma and can prevent serious complications.

"By focusing the same type of widespread public attention on the importance of increasing medication compliance as is given to food labeling and health fitness, we have a better-informed patient population, achieve more effective health care and save valuable healthcare resources," says Marilyn Shreve, chair of the California Board of Pharmacy's Consumer Education and Communication Committee and editor of Health Notes.

According to the Southern California based Aire Fresco / Fresh Air Children's Asthma program, studies show that children with asthma who participate in programs such as Aire Fresco have improved school performance, reduced frequency and duration of asthma episodes and increased confidence in their ability to manage asthma.

The Aire Fresco program, which works to educate students, parents and school staff about managing asthma is a joint effort between the University of California, San Francisco School of Pharmacy, Sav-on pharmacists, the American Lung Association of Los Angeles County and the Los Angeles Unified School District.

The program uses the Open Airways For Schools curriculum developed by the American Lung Association.

With proper diagnosis, treatment and education, most children with asthma can become free of symptoms and lead normal lives.

To learn more about managing asthma you may access the American Lung Association Web site at www.lungusa.org.

you hear as well as possible and for a fair price. You do not want to feel rushed into making a decision without exploring all of your options. If your doctor recommends a hearing aid and conveniently sends you across the hall, that is not giving you much choice. Good service is very important and you'll need it for the life of the hearing aid. Select carefully and go with the professional that has the most qualities. Bring your hearing test results to two or three other Hearing Instrument Specialists. Shop for a professional that is caring, is fully equipped, highly experienced and fairly priced. If you feel like you're in a factory, then you're in the wrong place. Hearing aids can require a lot of service, it's a marriage between specialist and patient. Chiropractic Update by Mark C. Jaehnic D.C.

ARM & SHOULDER PAIN

Arm and shoulder pain can have a number of causes, but the large percentage of cases are caused by misalignment of one or more spinal bones (vertebrae), improper posture, spinal curvatures, occupational stresses, or injury to the spine. Any of these conditions may cause irritation or impingement of the nerves supplying the arms, shoulder and neck. Arm and shoulder pain does not always mean trouble where the pain is felt.

The degree of pain may vary between slight and intermittent, to excruciating. But do not be fooled by the degree of pain; sometimes a slight pain goes along with a serious condition while intense pain may be a symptom of nothing more than temporary muscle soreness caused by a weekend of unusual activity.

It should be apparent to anyone that arm and shoulder pain may indicate a serious condition. But whether the problem is serious or not, the pain can become quite debilitating. Fortunately, the doctor of chiropractic is eminently qualified to correct arm and shoulder problems. The chiropractors education and experience have been directed to such problems that involve the spine, nerves, muscles and joints of the human body.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnic, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Raiders Rally Past Taunton; Bow To B-R

By CHRIS POISSON

North Quincy coach Ted Stevenson probably thought there was no way his team could get off to another slow start.

Not after the come-from-way-behind win against Taunton Jan. 28 when it scored 37 points in the final nine minutes after just 17 in the first 23. And not after last Tuesday's start-to-finish, 64-38 spanking of Falmouth.

The notorious slow starts seemed to be flushed from its system. But it returned for the first eight minutes of Friday night's game as North Quincy (7-8, 5-5) stumbled to a 60-53 loss against Bridgewater-Raynham (11-4, 9-2) at home.

The Red Raiders struggled from the opening jump ball, falling behind by 15 points, 23-8, after eight minutes of play. B-R nailed five 3-pointers, including three from senior guard Brendan Gill (17 points), in that stretch.

"They're a very good team," Stevenson said. "We fought hard. We played pretty well after the first eight minutes. You can't get off to starts like that against good teams. It's been a big problem of ours all year.

SENIOR MATT MCCANN (20) pulls up for a baseline jumper over Bridgewater-Raynham's Mike Delgado in Friday night's 60-53 loss. McCann scored a team-high 15 points.

"We gave up too many three's to Brendan Gill. We worked on it and worked on it in practice but we didn't react. They shoot the ball very well. That's been one of our handicaps this season. We have a hard time putting the ball in the basket."

With five games remaining in the season, North Quincy needs to win three to reach the tournament. It played at Barnstable Tuesday and it hosts Plymouth South tomorrow (Friday). Then it closes out the regular season against top dog Silver

Melrose Place Is Behind Youth Hockey Bench

ESPN Hockey Analyst To Coach New York Bantam Team In Kiwanis Hockey Tourney

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

National television hockey analyst Barry Melrose is coming to Quincy but he won't be part of an ESPN entourage.

Instead, the affable Canadian-born Melrose seen regularly as a studio analyst for National Hockey Night on ESPN and ESPN2's NHL 2Night will arrive Feb. 26 in the City of Presidents sans microphone but avec clipboard and whistle. The former professional hockey player and head coach doubles his hockey pleasure these days as coach of a youth team from up-state New York.

The team, the Adirondack Bantams, are among the featured competitors in the 27th annual Kiwanis Club of Quincy Youth Hockey Tournament at Quincy Youth Arena which takes to the ice Monday, Feb. 21 through Sunday, Feb. 27.

The AHA-sanctioned tournament will feature 34 teams at the Mite, Squirt, Pee Wee and Bantam levels — from five states and the local area — and this year, one celebrity coach: Melrose.

"I love coaching the kids," the 43-year-old Melrose told The Quincy Sun in a telephone interview from Toronto where he was part of ESPN's coverage of the 50th annual NHL All-Star Game. "I get to spend time with my son and I look forward to that. I hope to teach these kids something about hockey. And they're getting a real sense of what it's like to be coached."

Melrose's son, Adrien, 15, plays for the Adirondack team. For the past two years, daddy Barry has coached his son and the rest of the Adirondack team while keeping his night job as a hockey analyst on ESPN.

On Friday and Sunday nights, Melrose can be seen in the ESPN studio providing in-depth commentary on NHL players, coaches, teams and trends. But come Saturday and Sunday morning, Melrose can be found, schedule permitting, behind the bench in local youth arenas.

The Adirondack team plays 60 to 70 games a season; Melrose makes it to about 75 percent of them.

And how do the young-

BARRY MELROSE

sters respond to a bench boss who once coached Wayne Gretzky and is an off-ice celebrity?

"These kids know me and I've known them since they were six or seven years old when they were just starting out playing hockey. They treat me like any other coach — they play hard and they practice hard. They really respond to me. I have a blast with them. It's a coach-kid relationship."

Certainly the "kids" are learning something about hockey from the NHL-credentialed Melrose.

During his 11 years as a player, Melrose played 335 career games as a defenseman in the NHL with Winnipeg, Toronto and Detroit (1979-1986). He also played three seasons with Cincinnati in the World Hockey League (1976-1979).

Melrose began his coaching career in 1987 when he led the Medicine Hat Tigers to the WHL's Memorial Cup title. He also coached the Seattle Thunderbirds for the 1988-89 season and the Adirondack Red Wings (Detroit's AHL team) of the American Hockey League for three seasons (1989-92). Melrose guided the Red Wings to the Calder Cup championship in 1991. He also served as the team's general manager during his final two seasons.

In 1992, Melrose embarked on his first head coaching job in the NHL with the Los Angeles Kings. He made the most of his debut, taking his team to the Stanley Cup finals for the first time in franchise history.

In April, 1995 Melrose departed LA and moved back to Glens Falls, N.Y. and joined ESPN full-time in October 1996. He had previously worked as a studio analyst for ESPN's Emmy Award-winning 1994 NHL Stanley Cup Playoffs and for ESPN and ESPN2 during the 1995 Stanley Cup Playoffs.

Melrose says coaching minor league hockey is a passion and when his son Adrien moved up to the bantam level, he accepted the coaching position. The Adirondack team is based in Glens Falls where Melrose still lives with his wife and other son, Tyrell.

Although he's had some pro coaching job offers in recent years, Melrose's place right now is in the ESPN studio and behind the Adirondack bench.

"After a bantam game, I'm so worked up I question whether I could really return to the NHL and coach. But (coaching youth hockey) is a lot of fun. I've had some chances (to coach again in the NHL) but the timing is not right for my family," he said.

Melrose is excited about (Cont'd On Page 19)

North Girls Down Falmouth, Can't Shake Friday 'Falls'

Fridays have not been friendly for the North Quincy girls' basketball team lately.

For the past several weeks it has been up and down: win one early in the week and lose one on Friday. North Quincy has had trouble stringing together a few wins. It's longest winning streak this season was three games (Jan. 11-18), and it had a two-game streak in December.

Last week was no different. North Quincy pulled out a 56-43 win on the road against a tough Falmouth squad (8-7, 6-5) Tuesday, only to suffer a 66-63 heart-breaker at Bridgewater-Raynham (8-7, 7-4) Friday night.

Even with their win-one, lose-one pattern, the Red Raiders (8-7, 5-5) still find themselves in position to lock up a postseason berth this week. And they can even do it before Friday.

North Quincy hosted a pair of home games against teams it has already knocked off this season. It played Barnstable Tuesday and Ursuline Academy yesterday (Wednesday). Tomorrow (Friday) it travels to Plymouth South.

BASKETBALL

"We need to win two more games to make the state tournament," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "We have three games this week. Hopefully, we can do it by Wednesday to get rid of some of the pressure and finish the season."

North Quincy trailed 36-35 against B-R at halftime and was in position to win the game at the end. Down by a point with 12 seconds left, North Quincy brought the ball up the floor but was tied up and the possession arrow gave the ball back to B-R.

After a foul, the Trojans hit both free throws to go up 66-63 with four seconds left. The Red Raiders called a time out to set up a play, but it failed as junior guard Casey Ridge's desperation shot just outside the three-point line came up short.

"If that shot had gone in it would have been a miracle," said MacFarlane, as Ridge had two defenders draped on her for the last attempt. "It was a real good game. It's one of those games where it's a shame to be on the losing end."

Center Sarah Peabody anchored B-R with a game-high 29 points, netting seven baskets in the second half.

"She played really well, especially in the second half," MacFarlane said. "Every time we scored, she answered."

Senior guard Jill Nicholson poured in 19 points, including five 3-pointers and sophomore guard Lauren Sleeth also scored 19.

MacFarlane did not coach in Tuesday's game as assistants Mark Scanlon and John MacFarlane and athletic director Brian Buckley guided the team to the win.

Sleeth led the team with 17 points and Nicholson chipped in 15. Junior forward Jen Conley also came up big, scoring all eight of her points in the second half.

Lake, rival Quincy and non-league foe Norwood, all away from Hancock St.

"We have to go 3-2 in the last five so we can't afford any more slow starts," Stevenson said.

With seven minutes left in the first half, sophomore forward John O'Connell dove for a loose ball and received a technical foul for pushing a B-R player after being trampled by a herd of Trojans.

The play seemed to fire up North Quincy as it outscored B-R 16-8 to pull within 33-26 at the break.

In the second half, North Quincy stayed within striking distance and closed the gap to four when sophomore guard Phil McGillicuddy (11 points) drilled a trey with six minutes left. But that was as close as it got.

B-R went on a game-clinching, 9-0 run, led by senior center Michael Welch's three-point play and jumper, to extend the lead to 13. He finished with 12 points.

"They hit the big shots," Stevenson said. "That's a good team. Good teams will do that. They have a lot of good athletes that play the game well. Their big kid is not the best center in the league, but he is by far not the worst, either. He does his job."

Senior forward Matt McCann paced North Quincy with 15 points and junior guard Adam Woo added 10.

Quincy Girls Cruises Past Falmouth, 64-19

By CHRIS POISSON

In its first home game in nearly a month, the Quincy girls' basketball team showed the Coddington crowd how far it has come since its 0-10 start.

The Presidents (4-13, 4-7) pounded Falmouth (8-7, 6-5), 64-19, in their most convincing win of the season Friday night. Last Tuesday, they finished their seven-game road trip with a 58-46 loss to Silver Lake.

Friday's win improved Quincy's record to 4-3 in the second half with the other wins coming against Plymouth South, North Quincy and Barnstable. It also came up one point short against undefeated Taunton.

Tuesday, Quincy played Plymouth South and tomorrow (Friday) it hosts Bridgewater-Raynham at 7 p.m. Next Friday it closes out the season with a chance to sweep cross-town rival North Quincy at home.

All five starters scored in double figures against Falmouth. Senior guard Kelly Raymer scored a team-high 15 points. Senior forward Colleen Nichol tallied 12 points, 10 rebounds and 4 steals and senior guard Caitlin Nichol added 11 points, 9 rebounds and 6 steals.

Senior forward Kaitlin McLaughlin and junior forward Christina Keenan each chipped in with 10 points.

Audra Lissell scored 22 points and grabbed 16 rebounds and Julia Porter had 16 and 10 to power Silver Lake to its win over Quincy.

North Gets Falmouth Monkey Off Back

By CHRIS POISSON

Finally, the North Quincy hockey team can say it beat Falmouth.

In recent years, it has come oh so close, suffering back-breaking goals in the game's waning seconds. Last year, it was Hunter Greerly who provided the dagger when he scored with 12 seconds left to force a 3-3 tie.

But Saturday night, Falmouth (8-2-3, 8-1-1) lost its magic as North Quincy handed them its first league loss of the season with a 2-1 victory — its first ever win against the Clippers.

North Quincy had dropped a 2-1 decision at Falmouth Jan. 12.

"It proves the kids are finally learning what it takes to come out on top," said coach Bob Doyle. "The team was on a upswing. Knowing how hard we played them the first time around, I knew we would be ready. I told them in the locker room it's the proudest I've ever been as part of the North Quincy hockey team."

It was the Red Raiders' third straight win after they crushed winless Taunton, 7-1, last Wednesday. Monday, however, they suffered a minor setback with a 5-4 loss to New Bedford, a team it whipped, 7-3, a week earlier.

Doyle sees it a small bump in the road.

"I expected us to come out flat," Doyle said. "It's natural after a win like that. It was a non-league game and the kids knew the game had no bearing on postseason play."

It's the Falmouth game that could propel North Quincy (7-10, 4-7) into the state tournament. It needs to win three of its last five games to qualify. Yesterday (Wednesday) it hosted Bridgewater-Raynham (5-9-1, 2-8), which beat them, 6-2, earlier in the year. It travels to Barnstable Saturday.

"I told the kids not to be looking ahead of the schedule," Doyle said. "Just to stay focused down the stretch."

North Quincy fell behind 5-1 after two periods to New Bedford but came alive in the third to almost steal a win. But Matt Holt's bid to tie the game clanked off the cross bar with two seconds left.

Holt, senior Ross O'Driscoll, and sophomores Scott MacDonald and Charlie Sorrento each had a goal and an assist. Sophomore Joe Fitzpatrick picked up two assists and junior Pat Lahar had one. Junior goalie Matt Delorey, his first action in six games, had 19 saves.

In the Falmouth game, MacDonald and junior Joe Cronin staked the Red Raiders to a 2-0 lead. But the Clippers scored at 8:00 of the third period to make it 2-1, and it had the makings of another heartbreaker.

"I was tempted to call a time out and tell them to stay focused but I just yelled from the bench, 'Don't let it happen,'" Doyle said.

With a 1-40 left in the game junior Paul Zenga was whistled for slashing and Falmouth had a 6-on-4 man advantage after pulling its goalie. But North Quincy was able to weather the final storm.

Junior goalie Matt Gregory shined between the pipes, racking up 25 saves. MacDonald and Cronin also had assists as did Holt and senior Bill Griffin.

In the 7-1 win over Taunton, junior John Paquette netted a pair of goals and Zenga, Sorrento, MacDonald and sophomore Ryan Barry also found the cage. Junior goalie Pat O'Donnell made 17 saves.

North Girls' Track Downs Plymouth South

The North Quincy girls' track team recently closed out its regular season league play with a split — a 61-39 win over Plymouth South and a 62-38 loss to Falmouth.

The Red Raiders finished the season with a 4-3 record, same mark as last season. Yesterday (Wednesday) it took part in a league meet at Taunton and Sunday it competes in the Class A states at the Reggie Lewis Center.

Senior Lisa DellaCroce was selected to the Old Colony League All-Star team in shot put.

In the dash, senior Liz Leuchte was the surprise overall winner. Sophomore Laura Wells finished second and freshman Krystle Neves third against both teams in the hurdles.

Junior Linda Nguyen won the mile against Plymouth South and placed second against Falmouth. Amy Lee was third against Plymouth South.

In the 1000 meters, sophomore Natalie Caron grabbed the top spot against Plymouth South and finished third against Falmouth. Sophomore Beth Houghton was third against Plymouth.

Falmouth swept the 600 meters, but freshman Jessica Jacques took second and senior Genevieve O'Brien third against Plymouth. In the 300 meters, juniors Colleen Lahar, Kellyrose O'Brien and Melissa McKenna completed a sweep against Plymouth, but only took second and third against Falmouth.

In the two-mile, seniors Lynda Wilson and Sarah Houghton were 1-2 against Plymouth and 2-3 against Falmouth. Neves and sophomore Kate Markhard were 1-2 against Falmouth and 2-3 against Plymouth in the high jump.

DellaCroce, senior Lena Yuen and junior Jackie Murphy swept both teams in the shot put. In the long jump, Lahar finished second against Plymouth and third against Falmouth. Jacques finished third against Plymouth.

Falmouth won both relays, but North Quincy beat Plymouth in the 4 x 4000 relay.

PRESSURE TACTICS

When gasoline combines with air inside the cylinders of an internal combustion engine and the mixture is ignited by spark plugs, the resultant explosion produces movement that drives the wheels. For a more powerful explosion to make the vehicle go faster, some manufacturers utilize either turbochargers or superchargers. Both are mechanical compressors that force additional air into the engine under positive pressure. (Otherwise, engines rely on negative pressure, or a vacuum, created by the pistons for their air.) The difference between the two rests with the fact that a turbocharger is powered by spent exhaust gases, while a supercharger is driven by an accesssory belt. Neither is a recent development. Both have been around since at least the 1930's. Regularly scheduled maintenance can greatly extend the life of your car, van or truck. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO we want you to be well informed about every system in your vehicle. Our friendly, professional, ASE Certified service staff here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (781-843-1550) will gladly answer all your questions. Give us a try! We'll earn your trust! We are "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

HINT: The additional air that turbochargers and superchargers force into engines under positive pressure is referred to as "boost."

Caitlin & Colleen Nichol: A Hardwood Dynamic Duo

By CHRIS POISSON

If you happened to be at 316 Hancock St. the evening of Jan. 21, then you might have taken a second look at two players on the court and wondered where have they been this season.

For the city's high school followers, the backyard brawl between the girls' basketball teams raised some eyebrows to heights that World Wrestling Federation superstar The Rock can only imagine. Not only did Quincy score the upset in the showdown at North Quincy, two of its girls — Colleen and Caitlin Nichol — brought their A game to the showcase game.

Here's a quick recap:

The Presidents trailed 23-19 at the half and then the Nichols jump-started the offense by engineering a 26-7, slam-the-door-in-your-face run that left North Quincy looking up at the scoreboard in shock after its fourth time out with 5:07 left.

Colleen (17 points, 17 rebounds) and Caitlin (12 points, 5 steals) scored 16 points during that stretch, including eight in the opening 1:13 that left the Red Raiders looking like zombies. Colleen muscled two put-backs off rebounds and Caitlin hit a layup and jump shot.

But there was one play Caitlin made that stood out above all the shining stats: she hit the hardwood to come up with a loose ball. A lot of players dive to the floor, right? Well, this happened under a minute and a half and Quincy sitting on a comfortable 15-point cushion. How many would do that?

"I'm aggressive," Caitlin says. "I want to go after every ball. Usually I'm in foul trouble," she says with a laugh, "but I wasn't in that game."

"I'm the same way," Colleen quickly adds.

If you're still wondering where the Nichol sisters have been this season, they've been turning in that type of performance every day throughout their entire careers. It's just that Quincy hasn't been exactly turning heads with its 4-13 record. It has been competitive in many games but it has been unable to claw out those nail-biters.

"I couldn't have been more happy for them, as for all the kids," says coach Bob Noble. "It's the showcase game and it's the one that everyone shows up to."

"People came up to me and said they played great. But those are their averages. They've been doing that game-in, game-out. It's good they got that notoriety. A lot of people got to see what they've been doing all season."

Colleen has been tallying double-doubles night-in, night-out, averaging 16 points and 12 rebounds. She terrorizes the boards and once she's in position on the block, it's an automatic deuce. Caitlin's game is more wild and untamed. She fills out the entire stat sheet as her 9 points, 7 rebounds and 5 steals per game reveal.

The two receive most of the attention on the team and deservedly so. Check out where they stack up in the school's history.

Colleen is on pace to become the No. 2 all-time scorer, a position held by Gayle Morrell (585 points, 1985-88). She's also on track to break the single season (193) and career (410) rebound records.

Caitlin already holds the career steals record with over 100, breaking the mark set by her volleyball coach, Christine Barrett. And she also set the single season record with five thefts against Taunton Jan. 24 to give her 61.

"Colleen does the majority of the scoring and rebounding that most people see," Noble says. "Caitlin does the intangible things that people don't necessarily see. Nothing spectacular. But she's consistent."

Being sisters, you would think there would be some sort of sibling rivalry. But besides the occasional heated practices, the two often encourage and help one another.

"We fight every once in a while, but five minutes later we'll be fine," Caitlin says. "It usually doesn't affect how we play with each other. We play together all the time."

"I love playing with her because you have someone there for you to give you support all the time," Colleen says. "It makes it a lot easier. And she's there always getting my back."

"They're extremely supportive of each other," Noble says. "But they don't back away from each other. They're competitive in terms of who's going to play the hardest. I don't think you'll find more competitive individuals and that seems to be a family trait because I had the pleasure of coaching their brother [Danny, in football]."

Danny is now a starting defensive tackle for Springfield, one of the top Division 3 programs in the country. Their other brothers also played football and captained their college teams: Kevin at Stonehill and Chris at Holy Cross.

"They come from the same mold," Noble says. "Highly competitive. They're certainly not wallflowers when it comes to playing sports. They're not afraid to step in there and do what they have to do."

On the court, they're both vocal. Colleen talks to herself for self-motivation while Caitlin doesn't back away from voicing her opinions to her teammates. But off the court it's Jekyle and Hyde.

"They're quiet and don't have a lot to say," Noble says. "If you see them on the street, they're actually quite shy, Caitlin in particular. When she talks to you she'll say hi but she'll have her head down. But get them in a competitive situation and they're aggressive."

Although they more than likely won't be playing basketball in March, Colleen (middle) and Caitlin (outside hitter) did play on the volleyball team, which reached the second round of the tournament last fall.

This spring, they'll have their last shot at a postseason appearance in softball. And then it's on to the collegiate level where they would like to continue their basketball careers. Even though they're looking at different majors and many different schools, they wouldn't mind teaming up again if the opportunity presents itself.

"I love playing with her. Another four years would be great," Colleen says.

Whether they're on the same team remains to be seen. But one thing is for sure; they'll quietly make some noise wherever they wind up.

the Quincy Kiwanis Tournament. "We're looking forward to it. We know Boston has some good hockey and this will be a chance for the kids to compete with some really good teams," Melrose said. "I really like minor hockey."

He says he and his family love the Boston area. In fact, Tyrell has aspirations to play Division I hockey — in Boston. His older son is also a big Red Sox fan and the Melrose family takes annual trips to — you guessed it — Boston's Fenway Park.

Melrose is also close friends with Bay State resident Cap Raeder. Raeder, a former University of New Hampshire star goalie, was an assistant coach with Melrose in Los Angeles. Raeder, who is a hockey broadcaster with Fox Sports Net and can be seen regularly on Hockey East telecasts, lives in Needham.

The Adirondack Bantams are tentatively scheduled to play Charlestown Thursday, Feb. 24 at 9 p.m. at Quincy Youth Arena. However, due to ESPN duties, Melrose isn't expected to join his team until Saturday, Feb. 26 when Adirondack faces Hingham at 12:50 p.m.

"We're looking forward to (the Quincy Kiwanis Hockey Tournament). We know Boston has some good hockey and this will be a chance for the kids to compete with some really good teams."

Youth Hockey Coach Barry Melrose

Quincy Youth Hockey Manager Michelle Stenberg, who is chairman of the Kiwanis Hockey Tournament, says Melrose will generate some excitement for local hockey fans.

"We're delighted Barry Melrose and the Adirondack Bantams are participating this year. The event is the Quincy Kiwanis Club's major fundraiser and we hope more people will turn out this year to watch not only Melrose and Adirondack but all of the teams," Stenberg said. "The kids really play their hearts out."

Other teams participating include entries from California, Rhode Island, Maine as well as the Greater Boston and South Shore areas. Quincy will be represented in all four divisions. Proceeds are used to provide scholarships, camps and other needs for underprivileged children in the local community.

Melrose admits this season may be his last as a coach — at any level — forever.

"This is my second year coaching the Adirondack Bantams with my son Adrian on the team. When he leaves, I leave. Right now, we're looking at prep school. I'll be just a spectator next year. This might be my swan song."

Melrose is certainly enjoying all aspects as a youth hockey coach, including the attention he brings to the rinks. "When I shake hands with some of the kids who come up to me, they start humming the ESPN theme song. It's really been a lot of fun."

Some local hockey people believe Adirondack is the Bantam team to beat.

"I don't know about that," Melrose says. "But we'll play our best."

Exactly what any coach — celebrity or not — wants from his team.

Delahunt Urges NQHS Students To Get Involved

tween campaign financing and the actual crafting of public policy, and John McCain is helping them to make that connection."

Delahunt said the spiraling costs of campaigns are preventing some citizens from seeking office. In 1969, Delahunt said, he ran for the Ward 5 Quincy City Council seat in a field of 12 candidates. When that same seat opened recently, he said, there were only two.

Delahunt went so far as to urge the students to do online research and obtain the Federal Election Commission's lists of campaign contributors, calling it a "wonderful exercise in democracy."

Delahunt, who grew up in Wollaston, spoke to the students about their various neighborhoods and made no bones about his love for the city. He pointed out that the last Quincy resident to represent the district in the House was none less than John Quincy Adams, making Delahunt a direct political descendant of the former president. "I have a particular pride about this city," Delahunt said. "This is really a special place."

Delahunt shared these opinions with the North Quincy High students:

- Social Security: "Don't panic. Social Security will be there for you and me. Do we have to tweak the system a little? Yes, but it's not a crisis." Delahunt also said he intends to file legislation allowing those ages 65-70 to continue working without losing Social Security benefits.

- Election 2000: "I have endorsed Al Gore but, truthfully, the differences between Gore and Bradley are more subtle than they are stark."

- Elian Gonzales: "It's a disgrace. Elian Gonzales has been made a political pawn. I think eventually he will be returned to his father and I think that's the correct answer."

- President Clinton: "No one will condone his conduct, but was it an impeachable offense? No, it was not. The president has done some really great things (Delahunt pointed to the economy, the environment, education, the Middle East, and Northern Ireland) but, in many respects, his personal behavior has tarnished his legacy, and that's unfortunate."

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Abraham Lincoln was a great man and patriot. Three factors stood out in Lincoln's life and contributed to his greatness.

The first was his moral character. Lincoln believed that he lived in a universe controlled by moral law. To him it was stupid and hideous that men should attempt to break that moral law. He believed that he, the nation of which he was a part, and all the individuals in the world were under the control of moral forces which they could defy only at their peril.

The second factor in his makeup was his sound common sense. Lincoln believed that the principles and policies which worked in the management of a grocery store at New Salem, the post office over which he had presided, and the little farm his father owned, could be made to work in Washington in handling of a nation.

The third outstanding factor of his life was his unusual spiritual insight. He could see straight into the hearts of men. He had a childlike dependence upon God. Every situation, no matter how secular it might appear, was to him a spiritual situation.

Lincoln was a man of great ability, but his overpowering genius lay in his penetrating insight into spiritual truth.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You find yourself making sheep eyes at someone who seems receptive. While the situation looks promising, you might not be ready for a long-term commitment.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The delay in getting your task done leaves you pawing the ground in frustration. Be patient. The reason for the holdup will soon become apparent. An opportunity to travel comes from an unexpected source.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your usually sharp instincts about people should be right on the cutting edge regarding a major decision. You might want to hold off on a commitment until (or unless) you feel both the person and the project are trustworthy.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Resist the impulse to tell tales about a co-worker. Even if your motives are sincere, they'll be seen as self-serving. A personal situation remains unstable. Wait for things to settle down.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You love to lap up compliments, but be wary of someone at work who is drowning you in an outpouring of praise. In your personal life, pay more attention to your spouse or partner.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A perplexing romantic situation turns out to be less complex than you thought. A simple explanation soon clears up all misunderstandings.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Try to remain balanced as you cope with two emotional people. They want your advice, but at a price to your equilibrium.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Avoid being goaded into making stinging remarks that you could later regret. Best advice: Walk, don't talk. There'll be time, later, to deal with the situation in a way that makes you look good.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A family matter becomes too demanding as it overflows into several areas. Try to narrow your focus to where it will do the most good with the least drain on your time and energy.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's fix-up time. Make plans to get things repaired and repainted around your home. A relationship could also stand some patching up before the damage is beyond repair. Also, schedule a physical checkup.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A job that seems to offer everything you've always wanted might require moving to a new city. Your family offers support no matter what you decide to do. Other options will also require some hard decision-making.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Get back into the social swim. Enjoy some fun time with old friends, and be open to making new ones. A previous health problem recurs, but prompt attention makes everything all right.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a deep reservoir of strength that you can draw from to help you get through difficult times. Your compassionate nature allows you to offer support and comfort to others. You are artistically gifted in many areas.

Ward 1 Democratic Caucus Feb. 12

The Quincy Ward 1 Registered Democrats will hold a caucus Saturday, Feb. 12, at 2 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

Its purpose will be to elect 11 delegates and four alternates to the 2000 Massachusetts Democratic Convention which will be held Saturday, June 3, at the Tsongas Arena in Lowell.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Ward 1. Those registered Democrats unable to attend may be considered for delegate and alternate by a 2/3 vote of those present. Candidates for delegate and alternate must consent to nomination in writing. All ballots will be written and secret.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, ethnic identity, or economic status in the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Those not elected as delegate or alternate may apply to be add-on delegates in the following categories: youth, minority, and disabled.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed with the Massachusetts Democratic Party, 129 Portland St., Boston, MA, no later than 10 days after the caucus date.

For more information, contact Michael Berry at 479-2787 or the Democratic State Committee at (617) 742-6770.

Ariente also described an 800 PSI steam system which, if there were a leak, "Would cut a person in half." The steam leak, he said, creates a noise comparable to a jet engine, making it impossible to hear exactly where the leak is coming from. To find the leak, Ariente said workers must walk with a raised broom stick and, when the broom snaps, they've located the leak. "And if they don't find it,"

Ariente said, "they'd better take the exact same steps back."

Lastly, the union president said Twin Rivers uses hydrogen which is extremely flammable and can actually be made worse with water.

Ariente was not without some praise for Twin Rivers, applauding their recent improvements, such as the hiring of a fire protection engineer, and their willingness to discuss the issue. However, he disagreed with

Twin Rivers officials who said the letter to Chief Gorman was sent for political purposes. "This is a safety issue only," Ariente said. "Contrary to the comments of Mr. Ricci (president of Twin Rivers), the firefighters' union has no political agenda."

Chief Gorman, who also spoke on the matter, said he had "the highest respect" for those firefighters who wrote the letter but disagreed with its content. "Every fire is dangerous," said Gorman. "I worry about every firefighter, whether they go to Twin Rivers, a sludge plant, or a house fire."

Gorman emphasized Twin Rivers was not allowed to go on-line until it had hired its fire protection expert and made other necessary improvements.

Some councillors objected to Raymondi asking Gorman and Ariente to speak before the council, arguing that detailed discussions of issues were traditionally done in committee hearings first. "The Public Safety Committee is more appropriate," Council President Paul Harold told the council. "Our fear is that we'll have the Public Safety Committee hearing now."

Councillor Frank McCauley agreed that the matter was best handled in committee but urged his fellow councillors to let Gorman and Ariente speak since they were already in attendance.

Procedural questions arose when Councillor Hanley, co-sponsor of the resolve and chair of the Public Safety Committee, was recognized for a point of order but instead asked to move the question from discussion. Raymondi disagreed strongly, saying that he had yielded the floor for a point of order only, not a motion to end debate. Raymondi eventually challenged the ruling of Harold, who sided with Hanley, but his challenge was defeated in a 5-4 vote.

The motion to move the question then passed 8-1, with Raymondi the sole opposition vote, and the resolve was then referred to committee with an oral vote.

Raymondi took exception to the motion to move the question when he had the floor. "This is a great weapon to deny debate," Raymondi said. "It's the most anti-public thing I think I've seen in 25 years."

The Twin Rivers Plant, located at the former Procter & Gamble site, has been troubled with numerous safety incidents, including a flash fire last March which killed 32-year old worker Joseph Conti. Twin Rivers recently made headlines again with a Jan. 21 fire which injured no one but caused $200,000 in damage.

A Swan In Need And Friends Indeed

A SWAN FOUND injured on busy Furnace Brook Parkway Monday is placed in a Boston Animal Rescue ambulance to be taken to the hospital for treatment. Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood Community Life Center, spotted the swan and called 911. It brought Quincy police, Quincy Emergency Management and the Boston Animal Rescue ambulance.

A FENCE OF traffic cones was placed around an injured swan on busy Furnace Brook Parkway at Quincy Shore Drive Monday night to protect it from heavy traffic. The cones were placed by Quincy Emergency Management. Here Quincy Patrolman Thomas Corliss and Ryan Lynch, 14, of the Community Emergency Response Team keep an eye on the swan to make sure it doesn't try to wander away.

Sheets, Friends On Way To Galapagos Islands

Mayor James Sheets was scheduled to leave Wednesday for a week-long vacation to the Galapagos Islands off the coast of South America.

Council President Paul Harold will serve as acting mayor during Sheets' absence.

Sheets will be accompanied by Quincy businessmen Robert Curry, Bruce McGilligan, Donald Uvanitte, Edward Keohane, and Richard Kurtzman of Hingham, the same group who traveled with the mayor on a journey two years ago to the Amazon River.

"This trip has been scheduled for a long time," Sheets said. "It should prove to be very educational."

The islands, the mayor said, were made famous by Charles Darwin, who studied the island's unique wildlife to prove his theories on evolution.

"The islands are tremendously unique," said the mayor. "There are many animals not found anywhere else. There are huge turtles and land and marine iguanas said to be the direct descendants of the dinosaurs. There are volcanoes and hot springs."

Sheets said he plans to bring back photos of his trip to show various elementary school classes in the city.

Present 180 Public Units Would Be Replaced Funds Sought For 'New Germantown' Housing Face-Lift

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets will lead a Quincy delegation to Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 27 on a mission that could change the face of public housing in Germantown.

The delegation will attend the Hope VI Conference in their quest for approval of as much as $35 million in federal funds for the wide-ranging facelift.

"Hope VI represents a major plan for changing the whole Germantown landscape in terms of public housing," Sheets told The Sun Tuesday.

New Ward 1 Councillor Greg Hanley said the goal of the Hope VI project would be to replace Germantown's existing affordable housing units with mixed use development including affordable housing, market value housing, commercial development, and assisted living facilities.

The Atlanta conference runs from Feb. 27 to March 1.

Hope VI is a federal program run by the department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The Quincy Housing Authority, led by executive director Jack Mather, is in the process of writing a Hope VI application for funds to transform Germantown's 180 units of low-to-middle income housing into the large, mixed-use development.

The mayor will attend opening meetings in Atlanta. He said he wanted to show local support and meet valuable HUD contacts to ensure the application's success.

Hanley, who will also attend the conference, is chairman of the council's newly formed Housing Committee. Hanley said others planning to attend include Mather, Planning Director Richard Meade,

Lock In Now For Next Winter Local Oil Dealer Urges Consumers To Plan Ahead

By CRAIG SALTERS

Although this week saw some respite from the spiraling cost of home heating oil, winter prices have skyrocketed to over $2 per gallon at times and placed an enormous strain on consumers.

Loretta DeGrazia, president of East Coast Petroleum on Atlantic St., wants consumers to know that oil retailers are getting hit with the same high prices as they are.

She also wants more

LORETTA DeGRAZIA

consumers to take advantage of what she calls a proactive solution to the ever volatile oil market: fixed-price contracts for next year's heating season.

DeGrazia's East Coast Petroleum is offering customers oil rates of $1.05 per gallon to those who secure pre-payment before April 1.

The agreement includes automatic delivery and an extended line of credit for customers. A membership fee of $25 per year is required as is a $50 down-payment. The $50 down-payment will be used toward the purchase of the oil. The pre-payment plan, DeGrazia says, is East Coast's attempt to help consumers avoid the ups and downs of the oil market. "This is protection for next year," DeGrazia said. "It's a proactive effort on behalf of the consumer. We're suggesting the consumer pre-pay and get into this program for next year."

Last year, DeGrazia said, East Coast offered a similar program called Price Advantage Lock (PAL) to customers. About 400 customers signed up for the program, which locked them into buying oil at the price of 78.9 cents per gallon.

"And those contracts are being honored," DeGrazia said, meaning that those lucky 400 have been paying less than half the going rate for oil this heating season.

According to DeGrazia, East Coast Petroleum will itself be buying fixed-price oil futures, but it will be buying them from The New York MERC on a much larger scale. This is what allows East Coast to offer the discounted prices yet still remain competitive in the market. "If the price falls, I lose," DeGrazia said.

DeGrazia attributed the dramatic increase in oil prices to a production cut-back by the OPEC countries and a lack of inventory in the Northeast Region. She understands why many consumers are angry but says that her company is in the same position, facing higher prices at the terminal and a decrease, not increase, in profit margin.

"People think the oil companies are gouging," DeGrazia said. "We're not. People have to understand that we're not making any money on this (the price increase) and I'm just as mad as they are."

The price hikes, DeGrazia said, have increased labor costs, added wear and tear to her fleet of trucks, and added to the amount of money the company needs to borrow.

And, given that dramatic price changes are occurring three or four times a day, DeGrazia said it was not uncommon for her to quote a price to a customer and have the price increase by 20 cents by the time her truck refuels at the terminal, meaning that she must eat the difference.

The only solution, DeGrazia said, was for both company and consumer to look ahead with fixed-price contracts. "This program allows us to make a good business decision and remain customer-friendly," said DeGrazia.

As of Tuesday, East Coast Petroleum was charging $1.50 per gallon for oil delivered in Quincy.

Public Safety Meeting On Twin Rivers Reset For March 2

The City Council's Public Safety Committee meeting concerning the Twin Rivers plant has been rescheduled for Thursday, March 2.

The meeting had originally been scheduled for Feb. 28.

Councillor Gregory Hanley, chair of the Public Safety Committee, said the purpose of the meeting is to address, point by point, concerns raised by Quincy firefighters in a letter sent to QFD Chief Thomas Gorman January 25.

The letter stated that, with respect to equipment, training, and the unique conditions found in the fatty acid plant, the Quincy Fire Department was not ready to handle incidents at Twin Rivers.

Hanley said the meeting will be attended by Paul Angelico, senior vice president of Twin Rivers, as well as Twin Rivers' on-site engineer, QFD Chief Thomas Gorman, QPD Chief Thomas Frane, Director of Inspectional Services Walter White, and Health Commissioner M. Jane Callahue.

Hanley has also invited the state secretary of Public Safety as well as State Fire Marshal and HazMat representatives.

Many of the issues, Hanley said, appear to have been addressed privately by both Twin Rivers and the QFD, but he emphasized it was important to publicly discuss each issue and determine what course of action the committee should take.

Four Stages For Furnace Brook Flood Control

The state's flood control project for the Furnace Brook will be broken down into four separate stages, said Mayor James Sheets.

That will make funding for the $16-20 million dollar project easier to obtain, said the mayor, who added he's hopeful the first phase will be included in the state's FY2001 budget.

Sheets said he spoke to William Clark of the state's Metropolitan Area Planning Council who informed him the project would include four segments of roughly one year each.

"That's a substantial amount of progress for us because $16-20 million is a lot of money to get at one time," Sheets said.

Sheets said work on the project would begin at Black's Creek.

McCain Opens State Headquarters Here

The John McCain For President Campaign has selected Quincy to be its state headquarters.

The headquarters, located at 1550 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opened Sunday and will be open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The Massachusetts presidential primary is Tuesday, March 7.

The office will contain a phone bank as well as literature, signs, and bumper stickers about the candidate. Buzz Jacobs, state director of the McCain Campaign, and Jean Inman, state chairwoman, will run the office with the help of volunteer staff.

Besides the Quincy office, Jacobs said there will be many phone banks and several satellite offices set up across the state.

JOHN MCCAIN

The decision to choose Quincy, Jacobs said, was both practical and political.

On the practical side, Jacobs said Quincy offers access to Boston and the entire state yet is less expensive than Boston. Quincy also offers parking and is MBTA accessible.

On the political side, he said, the choice of Quincy sends a message about what the Arizona senator stands for. "The McCain Campaign is not about money or special interests," Jacobs said. "It's about working-class issues, and Quincy is a good, working-class city."

Jacobs added the office was very focused on a McCain victory in Massachusetts and was encouraged by the number of not only Republicans but Democrats and Independents who have expressed support for McCain.

"John McCain's message of reform and bringing integrity back to the presidency is connecting with people," Jacobs said.

For more information to volunteer, contact 479-2888.

Bradley Supporters Meet Wednesday

Local supporters for Democratic Presidential candidate Bill Bradley were scheduled to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the NAGE Hall, 159 Burgin Parkway, Quincy. Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Bruce Ayers are leading the Bradley supporters who were to discuss plans for the local campaign at the meeting.

For more information on the Bradley campaign, call Elizabeth Behan or Susan Connolly at (617) 773-5109.

Permit Problems For

'Dream Machines' Used Cars

The License Board said Tuesday that "Dream Machines" Used Cars, 222 Willard St., cannot conduct business until it obtains a valid occupancy permit from the city.

The company's occupancy permit is not valid because it has not obtained a required building permit.

A letter detailing the violations was sent to the company Feb. 10 by Walter White, director of Inspectional Services. A letter was also sent from License Board Chairman Joseph Shea asking them to cease operations.

"Dream Machines" has been asked to remedy the situation and appear before the license board at its next meeting Feb. 29.

A Bounce Or Two For McCain

John McCain's big win in the New Hampshire primary has given him a voter bounce here in Quincy.

The City Election Department has been doing a pretty brisk business in party changes as a result.

Going into last night's (Wednesday) deadline for registering for the March 7 Massachusetts primary an estimated 200--or more--indicated their intentions to change their party affiliation.

They called the election office requesting they be sent a party change card or walked in to make the change in person.

Most of them said they wanted to vote in the Republican primary and the name they mentioned mostly was McCain.

Some supporters of George W. Bush see a little political "cloak and dagger" in it. They contend that Democrats switching to vote for McCain are doing so for a different reason.

Their theory is that those Democrats want to help get McCain nominated because he would be easier to beat than Bush in the November finale.

To be eligible to vote the Republican ballot, Democrats have to either switch to Republican or unenrolled status.

Unenrolled voters can vote in the primary by taking either a Democrat or Republican ballot on primary day.

At that moment they become either a Democrat or Republican but they can return to unenrolled status by simply filling out a registration card available at the polling place.

McCain should get some more bounce here with the selection of Quincy as his Massachusetts campaign headquarters.

The office, at 1550 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., (formerly occupied by Colpitt's Travel) opened Sunday and will be manned seven days a week 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

It probably won't be in full swing until after the South Carolina primary Saturday.

No one knows at this time whether McCain himself will visit the office before the Massachusetts March 7 primary.

But it has good visibility and enthusiastic staffers and should help his candidacy.

They hope the fact that it was once a travel office might be a good omen. Like in travel to the White House.

YOU WOULD HAVE to say that Mike D'Amico believes in keeping in touch.

D'AMICO

We've had President Clinton's "State of the Union Address" and Gov. Cellucci's "State of the State Address."

is the first ever, says D'Amico. With the purpose to update constituents on past, present and future accomplishments, goals, and issues in the ward.

Including such matters as the Quarry Hills Golf Course, the coming Marriott Hotel at Crown Colony, community policing, a new fire department ladder, traffic plans and problems including banning commercial vehicles on Copeland St.

To be sure constituents got the word on when and where his "State of the Ward 4 Address" was to be given, D'Amico mailed 6,000 "Dear Neighbor" letters out of City Hall. And another 150 to Drohan and Bauer House facility residents.

He couldn't have missed anyone.

Reason for the progress in Ward 4 he said in the letter "is because we have opened the lines of communication at City Hall in ways never before imagined." (He won't get much of an argument there.)

He points with pride to "regularly held neighborhood meetings, task forces and newsletters."

But as Al Jolson used to say, "You ain't heard nothing yet."

D'Amico is now inviting constituents to join a "Ward 4 E-Mail Bank."

He's urging them to "sign up for the service so that my office can send you notices of public meetings and events instantly as well as a weekly Ward 4 update."

CHARLES SWEENEY, former school committeeman and a member of the Quincy Board of Voter Registrars, is a patient at Quincy Medical Center.

Charlie suffered injuries -- including two fractured ribs -- in a fall on stairs at his home Feb. 6.

"I feel pretty good," he says. "And I am getting excellent care. I have nothing but praise for Quincy Medical Center. Thank God we didn't lose our hospital."

JOHN NOONAN, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, who has had a life-long love affair with his beloved Quincy, turns 80 Saturday.

Arline, his wife of 57 years and family (three children, nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren) celebrated the milestone early at a get together last Saturday.

John, who was born at Quincy Hospital and has lived here all his life, was the first commander of the Houghs Neck Legion Post. He was an Army Air Force communications sergeant in World War II.

He has been long active in the community, especially as a strong senior advocate and at St. John's Church and with the St. Vincent dePaul Society. He was editor of St. John's News for 18 years.

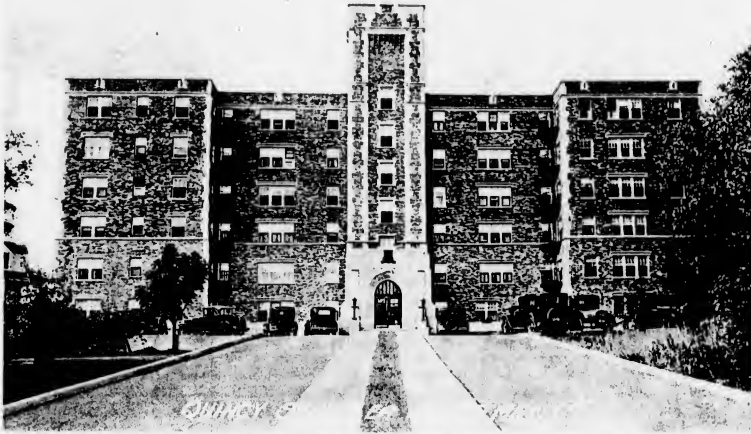

He worked at the old Quincy Patriot Ledger and the Quincy Journal weekly before becoming Director of Governmental Affairs for the Massachusetts Medical Society a post he held 20 years before retiring in 1981.

John, who has had a medical problem or two in recent years, says: "I feel good. Everyday is a good day. Thanks to my 24-hour live-in nurse (Arline) who takes good care of me."

John, who will now be in the Octogenarian Ranks Saturday, has been in the Nice People Ranks all his life.

Happy birthday, kid.

Strike Vote At Shipyard

By PAUL HAROLD

An estimated 2,500 members of Local Five, CIO, met at Quincy High School auditorium to authorize a strike vote at the Fore River yard.

Feb. 17 - 23

49 Years Ago

Quincy was the last of Bethlehem Steel's five East Coast yards to authorize a strike, rejecting the 11 1/2 percent wage increase proposed by management. The current contract was scheduled to expire at the end of the month.

Immediately following the vote, Fred Burgess, president of Local Five and James McGonnigal, executive secretary, left by plane for New York where contract negotiations were underway.

There were 4,800 workers at the Quincy yard, with a combined East Coast workforce of 17,000 in the Bethlehem Steel yards.

GRANITE CUTTERS SEEK 47 CENT RAISE

The 300 granite workers in the Quincy area, represented by the Granite Cutters International Association, AFL, sought a 47 cents an hour raise from the Granite Manufacturers Association, to bring their hourly rate up to $2.25. Their contract was scheduled to expire on May 17.

The union sought an hourly increase of 32 cents for laborers and an additional 39 cents for blacksmiths.

Negotiations on the new contract were slated for next week.

LYDON RETIRES AS COURT CLERK

Lawrence Lyons retired as clerk of the Quincy District Court after 40 years, generating speculation as to his successor. The front-runner for the post was young Atty. Dennis Ryan, a member of the school committee and chairman of the Democratic City Committee. Others mentioned for the post were Lawrence Lyons, Jr. and Kathryn Sullivan, assistant clerks.

Lyons, a graduate of Adams Academy and Harvard College, served as assistant clerk of the court under John Churchill and assumed the clerk's post on Church's death in 1910. His first appointment was from Governor Eben Draper. His subsequent five year re-appointments became routine, under both Democratic and Republican administrations. In 1933 court clerks in the state were given tenure.

Presiding Judge Kenneth Nash led the public tributes to Lyons.

Be Alert Regarding 'Free To Good Home' Pet Ads

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Recently my dog passed away at age 15. As I read pet ads to adopt another dog I became concerned about ads which said "Free To Good Home." In my position I learn a great deal from the many publications I receive.

Following is an important piece of information. Well-intentioned and trusting owners who give up their pets should know that in our society there are unscrupulous people who answer these ads to get animals which they then sell to labs for experimentation.

If for any reason you must give up your animal, charge some price to discourage these predators, find out something about the prospective owner, and personally check in a few weeks to find out the whereabouts and condition of the animal. You may not be able to keep your pet, but surely you don't want it

He Is Still Searching For Sgt. Boston Corbett's Grave

Editor, The Quincy Sun: What are the sources in literature for the two "opposite premise" sayings on each of the two arch entrances to Hancock Cemetery on Hancock Street in Quincy Center? While one saying reads, "Unto Dust Thou Shalt Return," the other saying reads, "This Mortal Shall Put On Immortality." Are both opposite sayings from the Scriptures, I ask you? While one saying denotes a terminal conclusion, the other saying denotes a beginning conclusion.

I have been searching in this cemetery for the grave of Sgt. Boston Corbett, whom I have been informed was secretly buried here in the mid

1890's. While I have never identified his gravestone in said cemetery, I have been further informed that he may have been laid to rest in an unmarked grave with no gravestone on it. Can readers of the Quincy Sun provide any information on the precise whereabouts of Sgt. Boston Corbett's grave in Hancock Cemetery in Quincy Center?

Corbett was the Union Cavalry Sgt. who shot President Lincoln's assassin (John Wilkes Booth) in a northern Virginia tobacco drying shed on 26 April 1865, 12 days after Booth shot President Lincoln in DC's Ford's Theater on 14 April 1865, but his precise role in the death of Booth remains a matter of sharp controversy, even among knowledgeable Civil War historians and military analysts.

Any information from interested readers is welcome. David J. Morrissey-Payne While one saying reads, "Unto Dust Thou Shalt Return," the other saying reads, "This Mortal Shall Put On Immortality." Are both opposite sayings from the Scriptures, I ask you? While one saying denotes a terminal conclusion, the other saying denotes a beginning conclusion.

I have been searching in this cemetery for the grave of Sgt. Boston Corbett, whom I have been informed was secretly buried here in the mid

1890's. While I have never identified his gravestone in said cemetery, I have been further informed that he may have been laid to rest in an unmarked grave with no gravestone on it. Can readers of the Quincy Sun provide any information on the precise whereabouts of Sgt. Boston Corbett's grave in Hancock Cemetery in Quincy Center?

Corbett was the Union Cavalry Sgt. who shot President Lincoln's assassin (John Wilkes Booth) in a northern Virginia tobacco drying shed on 26 April 1865, 12 days after Booth shot President Lincoln in DC's Ford's Theater on 14 April 1865, but his precise role in the death of Booth remains a matter of sharp controversy, even among knowledgeable Civil War historians and military analysts.

Any information from interested readers is welcome.

Quincy Partnership St. Patrick's Day Luncheon March 17

The Quincy Partnership will hold its fourth annual St. Patrick's Day Luncheon on Friday, March 17th at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry St.

The luncheon will begin at 11:45 a.m. Tickets are $30 and can be purchased by contacting Joseph Shea at 376-1131 or Tom Koch at 376-1251.

Proceeds will benefit the Quincy Partnership's effort to purchase a decorative water fountain as the centerpiece of the Formal Garden at Upper Merrymount. The garden project is currently under construction at Hancock St. and Merrymount Parkway. The design for the garden was created by Frederick Law Olmsted's firm and is being incorporated by the Quincy Park Department in conjunction with other historical renovations throughout Merrymount Park.

The luncheon will feature a traditional St. Patrick's Day meal of corned beef and cabbage. Comedian Paul O'Donnell will be the featured guest, but amateur comedians from the business and political community have been invited to try their hand at the microphone.

The Quincy Partnership is a benevolent organization comprised of members from Quincy's business and civic community. It has raised funds for a series of local improvement projects including; up-lighting for Quincy's historic buildings, the "Welcome to Quincy" signs, and the Abigail Adams statue in Quincy Center.

Tickets will be sold on a first-come, first-serve basis. Traditionally the luncheon sells out, so interested parties are encouraged to order their tickets as soon as possible.

"Over the past decade, the Quincy Partnership's mission has been to make Quincy a better place to live, work, and do business" said Edward Keohane, Chairman. "We are now moving closer toward our goal of raising $100,000 to implement the ideas of Frederick Law Olmsted and park benefactor Charles Francis Adams II for Merrymount Park. We appreciate the support of all those who will join us at the St. Patrick's Day luncheon for a great meal and a lot of laughs."

USS Salem Scheduled To Return Feb. 23

The USS Salem is expected to return to the Fore River Shipyard Wednesday, Feb. 23, after the completion of extensive dry dock work by Boston Ship Repair, Inc., in South Boston.

Tugboats will bring the ship home on that date, contingent upon favorable weather conditions.

The Salem is owned and operated by The United States Shipbuilding Museum. The museum will reopen to the public March 4 and will offer a discount on admission to all visitors, $4 for adults and $2 for children/seniors, on Saturday and Sunday, March 4 and 5.

The regular price of admission is $6 for adults and $4 for children and seniors, which includes a tour of the ship's decks and exhibit galleries featuring artifacts, ordnance, photographs, original documents/records, and model ships.

Opening hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. every weekend until the spring. In May, during the spring season, the museum will open 7 days a week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The USNSM's largest and most valuable artifact is the Salem itself, which serves as the centerpiece to the museum's collection, weighing 17,000 tons and 716 ft. Long. The ship's main mission, when commissioned in 1949, was to protect United States' interests on the seas. She served as the Flagship to the Sixth Fleet, responding to international crises and performing rescue missions across the Atlantic Ocean, Mediterranean, and Caribbean Seas.

Moreover, the USNSM maintains a permanent collection of all classes of navy vessels, all conflicts from the Revolutionary War to the Persian Gulf, and all military services. The collection tells the story of America's maritime and military history during peace and war.

Boston Towing and Transportation Co. towed the Salem on Dec. 7, 1999. Under the leadership of Captain James Quinn, USNSM's project manager, while in drydock the ship's underwater hull was inspected, cleaned, and four coats of paint were applied. Additional preservation of the infrastructure entailed manufacturing and installing propeller shaft enclosures and the replacement of all sea chest covers.

This preservation work cost a total of $2.05 million. The Commonwealth of Massachusetts provided funding for the restoration and preservation project, which was the most extensive overall refurbishment of the Salem since she was originally built in the late 1940's.

"Because of the extreme cold and the snow, the yard period proved to be a difficult time for completing the restoration work," said Captain Robert Deutsch, the USNSM's executive director. "When the Salem returns to Quincy, we will have a ship with a water tight and sound hull and freshly painted. While not everything on our list was completed, we now have a ship that looks 100 percent better, and will float for the next 30 to 40 years."

"The museum can now work to complete the remaining projects planned to enhance the quality of the ship. I encourage everyone to come and see the ship and the museum over the next year as we continue to improve the facility and enhance the exhibits and programs."

Visitors to the restored Salem can see the newly painted warship and have an opportunity to come on board and discover navy life and the tradition of shipbuilding, from the late 1800's to the turn of the century, aboard one of America's exclusive club of memorialized warships.

The USS Salem is the last in her class of heavy cruiser in the world.

SENIOR LIVING

by Laura Andrus, Director of Marketing

OLDER AND HAPPIER

If you think old age fosters a grumpy disposition and a lingering desire to live in the past, shed those stereotypical images. When researchers at Fordham University analyzed surveys of 2,727 people between the ages 25 and 74, they found that people over the age of 57 were slightly more likely to report feeling happy. Similarly, a professor at Stanford University has found that older people are more likely to live in the present than younger people.

Older individuals were found to focus on the here and now and to direct their energies toward those activities that would nourish them emotionally. They spent more time with family and friends in an effort to increase the quality of their existing relationships. Focusing on what you love and those whom you love always supports the heart and having ease of well-being can do wonders for the body as well. At MARINA PLACE, a senior living residence, we offer both assisted and independent living as well as a special program, for those with dementia and early-stage Alzheimer's. For more information, call 617-770-3264. Stop in and see us at Four Sea-port Drive. Marina Place presents "You Look Mahvelous" Fashion Seminar and Tea on Thursday, February 24 from 1:00pm to 3:00pm. Please call 617-770-3264 to reserve your seat.

P.S. The emerging research about the positive aspects of aging should give us all a sense of optimism about getting old.

Is Stress Stressing You Out?

By TAMARA ERDLEY
Quincy Medical Center

Stress is a fact of life. We all have stress in our lives and some stress can even be good for us. But too much stress can be very harmful to our health if we don't find ways to manage it. In fact, stress is one of the greatest contributors to illness in the United States.

What Is Stress?

Stress is the body's natural reaction to a threatening or disturbing event. When we are under stress, our body reacts through increased heart rate and respiration as well as elevated blood pressure. When these reactions occur for a long period of time or when there is no outlet for this stress, it takes a toll on our bodies and can even affect our health and well being.

Some warning signs that you may be under too much stress include feelings of anger, anxiety, excessive worry, irritability, fatigue, headache, insomnia, indigestion, and nausea. Prolonged periods of stress can produce more serious physical consequences, such as high blood pressure, hardened arteries, or even a heart attack.

What Causes Stress?

Stress is due, in part, to our modern lifestyles. Our fast-paced, over-stimulated, and overloaded lives produce daily challenges from which we often have little time to recover. The body's natural reaction to stress is a phenomenon called the "fight or flight" response, which served a distinct purpose in the lives of early man whose survival was dependent upon it. Today, our bodies still react to stress with the fight and flight response, but it is largely an inappropriate reaction to modern day stress. The everyday stress we face in the 21st century is not related to things that force us to fight or run for our lives, such as an attacking wild animal. In fact, the fight or flight response to stress, which once saved a man's life, now can have negative effects on our health and well being.

What Can I Do To Manage Stress?

Don't let stress stress you out! There are ways to relieve some of the stress in your life. One way is to get moving. Exercise helps release built up stress through the production of natural painkillers called endorphins.

Another way to fight the stress symptoms is to eat right. Choose foods that are rich in Vitamin C, Vitamin B, calcium and protein, such as citrus fruits, dairy or meat products. It is also helpful to avoid alcohol, caffeine, salt, and sugar to reduce stress symptoms. Getting enough sleep, cutting out nicotine and other drugs, learning relaxation techniques, performing deep breathing exercises, and initiating positive self talk are some other way to help you manage the stress you experience in your life.

If you have tried some or all of these methods and you find you still can't get relief from stress, you may want to consider seeking help from a health professional in your area. Also, check out local support groups, such as the Stress Reduction/Relaxation Response Group that meets regularly at Quincy Medical Center. The number to call for more information about this group is (617) 471-2595.

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
Surgeon-Podiatrist

THE FOOT EXAM

To correctly diagnose and treat a foot problem, the podiatrist will ask if the patient is experiencing pain and swelling and if these symptoms limit normal activities. The feet will be examined for any skin changes or signs of injury. The podiatrist feels for displaced bones or swollen soft tissue and tests for strength, reflexes and sensations. To determine range of motion, the podiatrist may see how far and how smoothly the foot's joints move. Depending on the patient's symptoms, hip and toe joints may also be tested. To learn if the heel swings too much, the doctor will watch the patient walk in bare feet. The soles of your shoes may be checked for any unusual patterns of wear. Foot problems come from many sources - physical stress, improper shoes, muscular imbalances, disease, neglect, trauma, etc. If your feet are cramping your lifestyle, professional care is in order. We know that good foot health can enhance your daily existence and improve your quality of life. For compassionate foot care for everyone in your family, we welcome your call at 617-472-3466. Our office is located at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy.

P.S. If the heel swings excessively, the foot may flatten too much, a potential cause of foot problems.

New Middle School After School Program

Quincy Public Schools have a new after-school program for middle school students: Prep for Success.

Prep for Success, provides both academic and enrichment programs - at no charge to parents or students. The goal is to provide a safe, fun after school experience for middle-school students who are generally too old for traditional after-school programs - but may be too young to be home alone every afternoon.

Linda Stice, member of the Quincy School Committee, said after-school programs, such as this increase quality opportunities for children and youth.

Students can choose from a wide variety of programs such as Homework and Tutorial Centers, academics, athletics, and arts programs such as theatre and music. One of the unique aspects of the program is that principals have the freedom to design a program that best serves the needs of their students. This allows principals to combine the talent and resources of their schools to meet the specific needs of their community of students.

"It's a great opportunity for both parents and children," said Frank Santoro, Principal at Central Middle School.

Recognizing that MCAS tests are proving to be an increasingly important part of children's educational future, one of the highlights of Prep for Success will be MCAS preparation and remediation, which will be available at all schools. The program is one of the many remedial help and test preparation MCAS courses available to middle and high-school students in Quincy to help students get their best possible score.

The program provides a unique opportunity for students to get both academic and enrichment programs in a fun, friendly atmosphere.

"We recognize the importance of preparing our students for success - but we also recognize the need to provide a safe alternative to leaving middle-schoolers home alone," said School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

Registration for Prep for Success which runs 12 weeks is now underway every day that the program is in session. Program days, times, and courses vary by school. For more information, contact your child's school and ask for the Site Coordinator for the program or call Keith Segalla, Program Director, at 984-8888.

How To Be A Friend To A Victim Of Teen Dating Violence

Most teens talk to other teens about their problems. If a friend tells you he or she is being victimized, here are some suggestions on how you can help.

- If you notice a friend is in an abusive relationship, don't ignore signs of abuse. Talk to your friend.
- Express your concerns. Tell your friend you're worried. Support, don't judge.
- Point out your friend's strengths -- many people in abusive relationships are no longer capable of seeing their own abilities and gifts.
- Encourage them to confide in a trusted adult. Talk to a trusted adult if you believe the situation is getting worse. Offer to go with them for help.
- Never put yourself in a dangerous situation with the victim's partner. Don't be a mediator.
- Call the police if you witness an assault. Tell an adult -- a school principal, parent, guidance counselor.

What You Can Do:

- Start a peer education program on teen dating violence.
- Ask your school library to purchase books about living without violence and the cycle of domestic abuse.
- Create bulletin boards in the school cafeteria or classroom to raise awareness.
- Perform a play about teen dating violence.
- If you are in an abusive situation and need help: Call 911.

Project Impact Offers Tips To Winterize Your Home

Becoming a disaster resistant community starts at home.

Project Impact recommends you take some time to help prevent winter damage. Cracked pipes, leaking roofs, and other problems caused by winter weather can be prevented with a few simple actions.

Here are some simple steps homeowners can take to help prevent damage and loss from winter weather:

- Hire a contractor to check the structural ability of the roof to sustain unusually heavy weight from the accumulation of snow.
- Remove ice and snow from tree limbs, roofs, and other structures.

- Cut away tree branches that could fall on a house or other structures during a storm.

- Repair roof leaks.
- Insulate pipes with insulation or newspapers and plastic to keep them from freezing and let faucets drip a little during cold weather to avoid freezing.

- Keep heaters at least three feet from flammable objects and refuel kerosene heaters outside.

- Learn how to shut off water valves.

- Install storm windows or cover windows with plastic from the inside.

- Install and check smoke detectors.

In addition to the damage prevention tips, Project Impact recommends that homeowners should prepare supply kits for both their home and car.

Supply kits should include drinking water, a flashlight, a battery operated radio, extra batteries, first aid supplies, a non-electric can opener, a supply of food that does not need to be refrigerated, extra blankets, and a fire extinguisher.

Since its inception in 1997, Project Impact: Building Disaster Resistant Communities has been embraced by nearly 200 communities and more than 1,100 business partners.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) and communities in your area have implemented this nationwide initiative whose goal is to change the way America deals with disasters.

Instead of waiting for disasters to strike, Project Impact encourages people, communities, and businesses to take preventative measures to reduce the potentially devastating effects of a disaster.

Prevention works. For every dollar spent on prevention, at least two dollars are saved in federal disaster recovery costs.

For additional information about winter weather or other potential natural disasters, contact FEMA Project Impact Publications at 1-800-480-2520 and request the Project Impact prevention brochures or videos.

Also, check with your local officials, building officials, building inspectors, or emergency managers on how you can reduce your risk to winter threats.

Century 21 Annex Realty Big Awards Winner

Century 21 Annex Realty, 49 Beale St., Wollaston took home all the awards at the regional Gold Ball in Boston. That event honors Century 21 agents from the Cape to the New Hampshire border.

Gus Confalone was awarded the Centurion award for sales over $5 million. Mary Collins received an award for $3 million in sales. John Tronca and Art Foley received plaques for sales over $3 million each.

The Million Dollar Club also recognized Jody Walsh, Mary O'Brien, Ita Lynch, Ron Dawson, Scott Radwan, Steve Downing, Marie Peroni, Judy McDonough and Maureen Mansfield. All of these agents produced sales just under $3 million.

Art Foley, Mary Dawson and Phyllis Rudnick were congratulated by Larry Rideout, the regional representative from Century 21 as their office received the Gold Medallion Award for the second year.

As pacesetters in the Quincy community, the Century 21 Annex team continues to provide professional and caring service to all of their customers and clients. This has been their focus for over twenty years.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Children's Eating Disorders

Our oh-so-perfect society has children believing thin bodies are better and more appealing.

This attitude encourages young people to go on strict diets to achieve an "ideal" figure. Researchers have found that stringent dieting can play an important role in triggering eating disorders.

Teenagers who place too much emphasis on weight loss may try extreme methods to lose weight. This can lead to a dangerous condition called anorexia nervosa, in which they can literally starve themselves to death. They are also at risk of developing bulimia nervosa, a destructive pattern of excessive overeating followed by vomiting or other "purging" behaviors to control their weight.

Blue Cross and Blue

Shield of Massachusetts' Prevention and Wellness Program lists a few warnings to watch for. If you child displays some of these symptoms, call his/her pediatrician for medical advice.

Bulimia

- Secretive eating
- Eating too much
- Bathroom visits after eating
- Vomiting
- Fear of not being able to stop eating
- Mood swings, depression

Tooth decay

Muscle weakness

Anorexia

- Noticeable weight loss
- Excessive exercise
- Difficulty eating in public
- Pale complexion
- Fainting spells and dizziness
- Unusual eating habits

Talk To Your Children About Healthy Foods

Whether your child is petite, obese or medium build, they're all beautiful. If they have a desire to lose weight, provide them with a well-balanced diet and encourage them to be more active. When a well-balanced diet and exercise are combined, they lead to a healthy body that looks good too. Proper nutrition and physical activity are the best ways to teach your children how to reach "their" ideal body image.

Women Just As Vulnerable As Men To Heart Disease

Identifying Risk Factors & Prevention

Every 33 seconds in America, a heart problem strikes. Every minute, someone dies from coronary heart disease.

This year, the deaths of about 500,000 women will be caused by heart disease. That's about 10 times the number of women will die from breast cancer, and more than twice the number of women who will die from all forms of cancer combined.

Why the dramatic misconception?

Part of the reason, according to William P. Castelli, M.D., medical director of the Cardiovascular Institute at MetroWest Medical Center, is that heart disease appears later in life in women than in men — as much as 10 years later.

Dr. Castelli notes heart disease is the leading killer of men 45 years old and over. "Among women," he says, "heart disease becomes the leading cause of death after 55 years of age." Researchers believe that estrogen keeps cholesterol levels low before menopause. As estrogen levels decrease during the course of menopause, this a natural protection disappears.

During this decade of relatively good cardiac health for most women, other diseases come to the fore. Women who are fighting diabetes, hypertension, cancer or other diseases tend to focus on their existing health problems and give a back seat to cardiac health. This is another factor that leads most of society to believe that heart disease is for men only.

And women do not feel heart attacks in the same way that men do. Most often, women do not experience the severe, crushing chest pain or pain down the left arm that are the hallmarks of heart attacks in men. For many women, the symptoms of heart disease are vague and inexact, such as heartburn, generalized fatigue, and nausea. A heart attack for women might be signaled by dizziness, mild chest discomfort, nausea, and other indistinct symptoms, sometimes called "painless" heart attacks and easily misinterpreted as many other ailments.

The good news is that women who survive an initial heart attack have a much better long-term survival rate compared to men. Properly diagnosed and treated, women who suffer a heart attack live as long as male heart patients. In addition, women who have cardiac surgery enjoy the same survival rate and outlook for a normal life as men.

According to Dr. Castelli, it's important for a woman to know her risk factors for heart disease (the inherited and lifestyle traits that make a person more likely to develop heart disease) and to discuss them with her doctor.

Risk factors for heart disease include a woman's age, whether she smokes, family history of heart disease, high blood pressure and high blood cholesterol, her weight, physical inactivity, and whether she has diabetes.

Dr. Castelli has these suggestions for women to prevent heart disease:

- Be sure to talk with your doctor about risk factors. Heart disease can be diagnosed and treated early and successfully.

- If you are post-menopausal, talk with your doctor about estrogen replacement therapy. In many women, estrogen replacement can reduce the risk of heart disease by as much as 50 percent.

- Quit smoking.
- An aspirin a day can add years to a woman's life. Discuss this with your doctor.

- Consider taking vitamins. Vitamin E, Vitamin C, Vitamins B6 and B12 and folic acid can be beneficial.

- Check and monitor your cholesterol, blood pressure and blood sugar.

- If you're overweight, shed some pounds.

- Begin an exercise program.

- Exercise regularly.

"In short," Dr. Castelli says, "if we could control cholesterol, blood pressure, smoking and blood sugar, we could eliminate up to 80 percent of cardiac-caused death in America."

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias" When do I need a hearing aid?

This question is debatable, but there are several things to ask yourself. Are you turning up the TV louder than others can tolerate? Do you avoid social situations that often prove embarrassing? How often do you ask people to repeat themselves? All these symptoms point to a hearing loss that is affecting your lifestyle. A hearing loss is a frustrating experience. You should always have a loss examined in case of underlying medical conditions. If you choose to try a hearing aid, it is because you want to live life to its fullest. It's a mentally tough person that says "I want to hear better; I don't care what it takes." Years ago vanity was an issue; now with completely in-the-canal models it isn't. Background noise also has been greatly reduced with the advent of digital and programmable products. The human brain wants to hear; it is more difficult to recover from a hearing loss when you wait too long. Hearing is a learned process and the brain needs continuous practice processing information sent from the inner ear. We offer a sixty day trial, so "what are you waiting for?" Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

Quincy Hockey Tuning Up For State Tournament

By CHRIS POISSON
Quincy coach Bob Sylvia is concerned about his hockey team.

Forget that it clinched a spot in the state tournament last week. Forget that it had a five-game winning streak not so long ago. Forget that it didn't lose a game last week.

Sylvia is concerned because the Presidents are 0-1-2 in their last three outings. They tied Plymouth South, 4-4, Saturday night at home and last Wednesday they battled to a 2-2 stalemate against Falmouth. On Feb. 5, they fell to Old Colony League front-runner Silver Lake, 5-3.

"I just hope we didn't peak then," said Sylvia referring to the five-game winning streak. "This is not the time you want to go into a dip." You got that right. When Sylvia looks out his window, he sees neighboring North Quincy peaking at the right time, winning five of its last six games. He sees the league's top teams holding their ground.

But Quincy (8-5-2, 6-4-2) has a chance to regroup this week with the final three games of the regular season against teams it has already beaten this year. A sweep would cure any late-season hangover. Oh yeah, it has outscored the opponents in these games, 21-4.

The Presidents played Rockland Tuesday, which it beat 6-1 in the season opener. Yesterday (Wednesday) they hosted Bridgewater-Raynham, a team it whipped 11-1 earlier in the season. And tomorrow (Friday) is Act II of the Quincy-North rivalry, with Quincy taking the opener, 4-2.

"If we can win a couple games this week, we might have a chance to face a team similar to us and not a top team in the first round of the tournament," Sylvia said. "At this time of the year, teams that aren't mentally sharp will lose early in the tournament."

The loss to Silver Lake sent Quincy into its current tailspin as it snapped its win streak. A win would have given Quincy the confidence that it belongs in the upper echelon of the OCL. Instead, it was a wake-up call.

"That was a huge game," Sylvia said. "We had a chance to go to the top. We realized we're not a championship team."

In the two ties, Quincy suffered defensive breakdowns late in the game which enabled its opponents to come back. Falmouth scored the equalizer with five minutes left, and Plymouth South tallied twice late in the game to earn the point.

Junior Scott Mattson netted both goals against Falmouth, and senior Brian Nolan, McKeon, Campbell and Mattson scored against Plymouth South.

"We're not playing good hockey right now," Sylvia said. "We're lethargic. Maybe the kids don't want it that much. We're looking for leadership and we're not getting it."

Supervised Gym Programs During School Vacation

Supervised gym programs of the Quincy Recreation Department will be open on an expanded schedule during the upcoming school vacation week.

Nine school gyms will be utilized in all neighborhoods of the city. The activities are free to Quincy residents age 8 through high school. Gym games, basketball, floor hockey, and others are supervised by leaders on the Recreation Department staff.

Gyms will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Boys and girls age 8 through 5th grade will be from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Middle school and high school grades from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. To accommodate differences in attendance by age group some slight changes may occur depending upon locations.

Regularly scheduled night gym programs will also be offered Tuesday-Thursday from 5-9 p.m.

The regular schedule of open gym programs will also be conducted from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on both Saturdays, Feb. 19 and Feb. 26, rounding out a full week of free gym activities.

The schedule for vacation week is as follows:

• Tuesday, Feb. 22: 9 a.m.

to 1 p.m., Atherton Hough, Bernazzani, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Marshall; 5-9 p.m., Atherton Hough, Merrymount, Snug Harbor and Squantum.

• Wednesday, Feb. 23: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Beechwood, Merrymount, Snug Harbor, Squantum and Atlantic; 5-9 p.m., Beechwood, Bernazzani, Montclair, Parker and Sterling.

• Thursday, Feb. 24: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Atherton Hough, Bernazzani, Montclair, Snug Harbor, Marshall and Atlantic; 5-9 p.m., Bernazzani, Montclair, Squantum and Point Webster.

• Friday, Feb. 25: 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Atherton Hough, Beechwood, Merrymount, Montclair, Squantum and Atlantic.

North Takes Steps Toward Tourney Seed

The North Quincy hockey team came two steps closer last week to what many thought was nearly impossible at the beginning of the season — a state tournament berth.

The no-name Red Raiders bumped off Barnstable, 3-2, Saturday night on the road, their first win on the Cape in the nine years coach Bob Doyle has been at the helm. Last year they suffered a 10-1 humiliating loss down there. Last Wednesday, they blew past Bridgewater-Raynham, 7-3, at home.

With three games left in the season, North Quincy needs to win one more to reach the postseason for the third straight year. And what makes this season so surprising is that the team doesn't have the star-studded power of year ago.

"On paper, we have lunch pail kids," Doyle said. "We don't have the talent on paper like the other teams do."

No problem. North Quincy has reeled off five wins in its last six games to catapult itself to the brink of a postseason appearance.

Last season, the Red Raiders beat Plymouth South to secure a tournament spot. Yesterday (Wednesday) they traveled to Plymouth South with the same deal on the line. Saturday night they face off against Quincy in a rematch for city bragging rights.

"We're concentrating solely on Plymouth South," Doyle said. "We want to duplicate the same feat last year when we beat them to get into the state tournament. I'm telling the kids not to get tunnel vision, that way Saturday can be a fun game. We'll have less pressure."

North Quincy knocked off Plymouth South, 6-4, earlier in the season in what proved to be their breakout game offensively. But in this game the playoffs are also at stake for Plymouth South.

"Plymouth South is always tough the second time around," Doyle said. "They need to win three of four to make the tournament."

In the Barnstable game, North Quincy went up 1-0 when sophomore forward Ryan Barry scored on the power play with assists from seniors Ross O'Driscoll and Graham McShane. But Barnstable tied the game at 1-1 with a late goal in the period.

In the third, O'Driscoll made it 2-1, which Joe Cronin set up with a nice forecheck along left boards. At 11:00, sophomore forward Scott MacDonald gave North Quincy a 3-1 cushion when he took a feed from sophomore forward Charlie Sorrento at center ice and broke in alone to beat the goalie far side.

Barnstable closed within 3-2 when it scored with 1:08 left in the game on a scramble in front of junior goalie Matt Gregory.

Gregory, a transfer from Xaverian, has taken over the starting duties in net in what was a three-man platoon at the beginning of the season. Juniors Pat O'Donnell and Matt Delorey are the backups.

"Gregory has been the back-bone of the turnaround this season," Doyle said. "It's unfortunate for the other two guys. They're a little disgruntled with their playing time. But at the beginning of the year, I said once we pull things together I'm going to ride with the hot goalie."

Since its 7-3 win over New Bedford Jan. 31, North

Quincy has been burning more red light bulbs than an electrical outage. The offense has blossomed from a conservative, opportunistic group into a potent, strike-at-will unit. Just ask B-R.

Seven different players scored for the Red Raiders against in that game. O'Driscoll, Sorrento, juniors Pat Lahar, Matt Holt, Jon Paquette, Rob Rice and senior captain Ryan Murray all tallied. Even Tim Duggan picked up an assist in his varsity debut. Gregory recorded 24 saves.

"It's definitely coming around," Doyle said. "I'm pleased with it, especially the wide-spread scoring."

"The kids are playing with a new found confidence. They're starting to believe they're capable of winning those close, tight games."

North Girls' Tourney Ticket Punched Friday

By CHRIS POISSON

The North Quincy girls' basketball team will have something to look forward to next Friday afternoon.

That became official when the Red Raiders hit for the trifecta last week, winning all three of its games for a spot in the coveted state tournament. The pairing will be announced next Friday at noon.

Last Wednesday's 59-28 slapping of Ursuline Academy proved to be the tourney-clincher. The day before, they held on to a 54-41 win over Barnstable after almost blowing an 18-point lead. And Friday they scored the hat trick with a 48-29 win over Plymouth South.

"Our first goal of the season was to make the tournament and we've done that," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "Once we got to 8-7, our goal was to go 5-0 in our last five games. If we finish 13-7 or 12-8, maybe we can get a home game in the tournament."

North Quincy (11-7, 7-5) has a chance to fulfill its latest goal by winning its final two games of the regular season this week. Tuesday it hosted Silver Lake in a game that was originally scheduled for Jan. 28. Tomorrow (Friday) at 6 p.m. is the season finale at Quincy.

North Quincy caught a bit of a break Friday when Plymouth South's Karen Murray, the team's best all-around player, went down with an ankle injury six minutes into the game and never returned.

"Once she went down it really wasn't much of a game," MacFarlane said. "We had 10 out of 12 kids score. Everyone played a lot."

Sophomore guard Lauren Sleeth, who has picked up her game the past few weeks, scored a game-high 10 points. Senior guard Jill Nicholson chipped in 9 and senior center Caitlin Powers added 8 and 9 rebounds.

"[Sleeth] is doing everything," MacFarlane said. "She's playing a great all-around floor game. She's taking some pressure off Jill."

The game was never in doubt against the inexperienced Ursuline squad as MacFarlane was able to give his bench players — senior center Shauna Burns, junior guard Nicole Grazioso and sophomore guard Allison Lacey — some playing time.

"It's nice to have a game like that," MacFarlane said. "They played the last 10 minutes of the first half and the last 10 minutes of the second half. It's nice to get them a lot of playing time. They work hard all season."

Sleeth led the team with 14 points. Freshman center April Suprey added 9, and junior guard Casey Ridge turned in an all-around game with 8 points, 5 assists and a solid job defensively.

Against Barnstable, North Quincy held an 18-point advantage in the first half and MacFarlane summoned his reserves, which almost backfired as Barnstable cut the deficit to 30-21 at halftime.

"My assistants were a little mad that I stayed with the reserves for that long in the first half," MacFarlane said. "But you like to get them in there when you get a chance."

After a sluggish start to the second half that allowed Barnstable to hang within five points for awhile, North Quincy was able to seal the win with free throws down the stretch.

"I'm proud of the kids," MacFarlane said. "The Barnstable game was a key game for us in making the run to the tournament. Like my assistants said, we probably would've lost that game last year. But we held together."

Ridge scored a team-high 11 points and also dished out 8 assists. Nicholson and sophomore center Kahli Dearani each chipped in with 10.

Quincy Girls Bow In Another Heart-Breaker

In a different world, the Quincy girls' basketball team would be heading to the state tournament.

Reality, however, has them nine games under .500 as it has been victimized by a boundless amount of buzzer-beaters, bad bounces and baneful breaks.

Friday night was another heartbreaker. Bridgewater-Raynham (11-7, 10-3) nailed a 3-pointer at the buzzer to send the game into overtime where it prevailed, 67-63. Quincy has never beaten B-R.

Last Tuesday, the Presidents (5-14, 5-8) knocked off Plymouth South (4-14, 2-13), 52-44, for the second time this season.

"We've been competitive in all of our games this season," said coach Bob Noble. "I'm very pleased with the second half of the season. Our record in no way or shape indicates the type of season we've had."

Quincy, which is 5-4 in the second half, has lost two games in overtime and four games by six points or less. If those six games go the other way, Quincy is 11-8 and in the postseason. Instead, it has one game left in the season — a rendezvous with city comrade North Quincy with a chance for a season sweep.

"I'm looking forward to the game," said Noble, in anticipation of the 6 p.m. showdown at home. "In a way it's our tournament. It would be great to sweep them at home. It would end the season on a positive note."

Indeed. A win would salvage what has been a frustrating season and give Quincy those certain bragging rights. And Noble knows about that (see Thanksgiving Day win, Dec. 2, 1999 issue).

B-R freshman Karen Morost is the one who hit the game-tying trey with 15 seconds left Friday night. Despite a season-high 21 points from senior guard Kelly Raymer, who received the OCL Sportsmanship Award Monday night, Quincy couldn't pull it out in the extra session.

"It was a great game,"

Noble said. "We just couldn't sustain it in OT. We were in position to win the game at the end but they made the shot."

Senior forward Colleen Nichol scored 12 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to become the single season (216) and career (437) rebounding king. And she needs 16 points against North Quincy to become the second leading scorer in school history.

Senior guard Caitlin Nichol tallied 12 points, 8 rebounds and 2 steals, and senior forward Kaitlin McLaughlin added 14 points and 6 rebounds.

The Nichol sisters were also named to OCL All-Star team Monday night.

In the Plymouth South game, Colleen led the way with 18 points and 10 rebounds. Caitlin had 14 points, 6 rebounds and 6 steals. Raymer chipped in 13 points.

entertain throughout the day. Chain-saw artist Ken Dudley will perform a wood sculpture demonstration. Free hay rides will circle Quincy Center all day. There will be face-painting or children of all ages. Presidential ice sculptures will be placed around the celebration area. A variety of other activities will also be available.

"The City of Quincy is happy to celebrate Presidents' Day with a family-oriented afternoon of fun and entertainment. This event will allow families to come out during school vacation week and enjoy the event while learning about their local history. It is a unique opportunity that I encourage people to enjoy," said Rhonda Merrill, director of Special Events and Tourism for the City of Quincy.

There will also be entertainment at inside venues. The City Council Chambers will feature Uncle Sam's BELINDA WEST as Dorothy Quincy, wife of patriot John Hancock, and Lewis Dub'e as Abraham Lincoln will perform at the Winter Festival.

Patriotic Jazz Band (noon and 1 p.m.) playing New-Orleans style interpretations of America's favorite patriotic tunes.

The Made in the Shade Dixieland Band will follow (2:30 and 3:30) with a blend of jazz, swing, ethnic styles and modern tunes.

Appearing in the new City Hall Atrium, will be the Dan Foley Juggling Show (12, 1:30 and 3) and Peter Panic (12:45, 2:15, and 3:45).

In the second floor Conference Room at new City Hall, the Quincy Art Association will conduct their "Works of Art" show. Presidential Camera will sponsor a photography show in conjunction with the art show.

Photographer Bill Torra will have his antique photo gallery located in the Conference Room. People can dress in Victorian-era costume and have their picture taken for a keepsake.

At the First Parish Church, visitors can see the historic burial places of President John Adams, First Lady Abigail Adams, President John Quincy Adams, and First Lady Louisa Catherine Adams.

Visitors to the First Parish Church will also see President Abraham Lincoln (12 and 1) and President Calvin Coolidge (12 and 1) portrayed by actors Lewis Dub'e and Jim Cooke. Actor Belinda West will also offer a dramatic portrayal of Dorothy Quincy (2 and 3 p.m.), wife of John Hancock.

At the National Park Service Visitors' Center at Presidents' Place, the Park Service will show the C-SPAN films on the lives of John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

For more information on the Quincy Presidents' Day Winter Festival, call the Office of Special Events and Tourism at (617)376-1296.

Morrissey Urges Governor To Investigate Oil Prices

Sen. Michael W. Morrissey is urging Gov. Cellucci to marshal the state's energy department to investigate the reasons for the dramatic increase in heating oil prices.

Morrissey has asked the governor to focus his administration's investigation on the causes of the price spikes and also legislation or other programs the state might implement to shield consumers from extraordinary and rapid oil price increases in the future.

"There are concerns that price gouging, artificial market tampering, and low inventories in the heating oil market are partly to blame for the jump in oil prices. Regardless of the causes, too many households are now faced with extremely high oil bills that they cannot afford without giving up other necessities," Morrissey said.

Attorney General Tom Reilly has already begun an investigation into possible illegal market activities causing oil price increases. Morrissey has requested that the Attorney General also make policy recommendations that will prevent future price spikes in the heating oil market.

In addition, Morrissey formally co-sponsored a resolution in the state Senate urging Congress and the Governor to investigate oil price increases.

"I am grateful that President Clinton has authorized additional federal money for a program of fuel assistance to low-income households in New England. However, Congress and the state Legislature must do more to prevent oil prices from skyrocketing like this again," said Morrissey.

In order to find out whether you or someone you know might qualify for fuel assistance, call the state's fuel assistance program at 1-800-632-8175.

Group Appeals Court's Decision On Marina Bay Development

A group calling itself the 10 Citizen Group has appealed a Jan. 14 Norfolk Superior Court ruling on the proposed development on Lot 23 at Marina Bay.

The Jan. 14 ruling upheld the Department of Environmental Protection's (DEP) decision to sign off on the construction of an eight-story, 136-unit development on six acres of the 66-acre wetlands parcel.

Developer Peter O'Connell owns the property and has permits to build on the site.

Jens Thornton, spokesperson for the 10 Citizen group, said that both the DEP and the Superior Court were ignoring the issue of groundwater "because that would kill the entire project."

A separate but similar suit had been filed previously by the Neponset River Watershed Association.

The appeal was filed Feb. 11, beating the Feb. 14 deadline.

SENSING TROUBLE

A modern vehicle's computer system makes use of sensors at various locations, which detect operating conditions of the car. The computer uses these "senses" (voltage signals) to control actuators, which are the "hands and arms" of the computer. They allow it to do work and alter the operation of other components. With all this in mind, a bad coolant sensor can affect air/fuel ratio and ignition timing by not accurately informing the computer of the engine operating temperature. The coolant sensor acts similarly to a carburetor choke. It enriches the mixture when cold and leans the mixture when warm. If opened, the coolant sensor might affect cold engine driveability. If shorted, it might affect warm engine driveability.

HINT: A Control (or power) module is a smaller computer that works with a larger, more powerful one to amplify or process output signals from sensors and the main computer.

Don't hesitate to ask any questions.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Every February, American celebrates the birthday of one of her most outstanding Presidents, George Washington, the father of our country. Washington was that rarity in the life of nations - a military hero and also an able and wise political leader.

One of the virtues which stands out so prominently in Washington was his implicit honesty. "I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles, the character of an honest man." - Washington quote.

Sadly, today, it seems the world has degenerated into a lapse of honesty. Oppressive, dictatorial governments espouse their causes with total disregard to honesty. And, yes, at times, members of our own government are not exempt. Neither business nor the work force are blameless. Dishonesty in advertising seems to be a flair with some companies. Likewise, dishonesty by some workers increases the cost of the product to the consumer.

Some thoughts to think upon on his birthday... for a better world, the return to truth and honesty is necessary... it is time for all to reaffirm the old maxim, "Honesty is the best policy."

Let us all celebrate the birthday of Washington this by duplicating his virtue of honesty...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A long-forgotten promise is recalled. It's not too late to follow up on it. You might find a pleasant surprise waiting. See a doctor about that pesky eye problem.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The best way to get over a personal disappointment is to get out, meet old friends and make new ones. One of those new friends could very well become a new VSP (Very Special Person) in your life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A chance to invest comes with some strings attached that could cause economic problems later on. Be careful. Cupid favors romantic possibilities with a loving Libra or a passionate Pisces.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A simple problem threatens to turn into a legal showdown, unless it's cleared up soon. Wishing it away won't help. A telephone call could lead to a change in travel plans.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A close friend who suddenly becomes remote is in need of your warm reassurance. Give it generously. A misunderstanding on the job creates the potential for future problems. Settle it quickly.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Career advancement involves the need for added training. The investment of your time and effort will pay off. Some stormy personal situations begin to calm down.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Scale back on those grandiose schemes for a while. Neither the time nor the circumstances are right to make the huge financial investment needed to see the matter through. A Gemini has romance in mind.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You could soon face a fascinating dilemma: Do you continue seeing this Very Special Person currently in your life, or renew a relationship with another VSP who will suddenly return from your past?

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Financial problems need your attention. It's a good idea to cut back on unnecessary expenses until these money matters are under control. Then go out and have a great time.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) What you may now see as a good reason to end a relationship could turn out to be based more on supposition than substance.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Change is the watchword for this week. Some Aquarians will be moving to new places while others will be taking new career paths. Steer clear of a family dispute.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be prepared for that romantic disappointment to become a fading memory with the arrival of a new love, possibly a Gemini. Talk to someone you trust about developing your idea into a marketable product.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You have a high regard for loyalty. You give it freely, and you expect it to be returned. You never flinch from making a decision, even if it involves much agitation and soul-searching.

Lydon Funeral Home Renews Affiliation With Lofty Oaks Assn.

Lydon Funeral Home of Quincy has renewed its affiliation with Lofty Oaks Association, a New Hampshire organization dedicated to reforestation and conservation efforts in Massachusetts.

The firm arranges to have a tree planted for each service that they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to renew the forest life of Massachusetts.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. This program is part of a large endeavor to restore the landscape and our environment with the eternal beauty of living trees.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by Michelle and John J. Lydon, Jr. of the Lydon Funeral Home. When a certified nurseryman has planted the tree, the designated people will receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

Multicultural Awareness Event Today At Eastern Nazarene College

The Multicultural Affairs office at Eastern Nazarene College will hold a multicultural awareness event today (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m.

Festivities will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m. in the Mann Student Center Lobby. Students are preparing a variety of traditional meals for taste-testing as guests mingle and enjoy Spanish music.

At 7 p.m., the group will move upstairs to the Student Center Auditorium. Among the program's offerings will be music performances, dance routines and a time of worship and singing.

Keynote speaker will be Dr. Sandra Mangual-Rodriguez, a counselor at El Cent Cardenal Agency in Boston's South End. She has an extensive background in bilingual education, psychological consulting, program directorship of community organizations, and academic professorship.

Rodriguez will speak on the topic of a historical perspective on the Puerto Rican experience and the challenges of this reality for the Christian people.

The event is free and open to the public.

Social Security Seminar Feb. 28 At Allerton House

Allerton House at Hancock Park, 164 Parkway, Quincy, will hold an informational session on Social Security and Long Term Care Insurance on Monday, Feb. 28 from 2 to 3:30 p.m. in the Allerton House Library.

Margo Jones, a representative from the Social Security Administration, will discuss new policies regarding Social Security. Long Term Care insurance specialist Noreen Carey-Neville, CLU, ChFC, will speak on longer term care insurance and consumer financial options when additional personal care services are necessary at home, in an assisted living community, or in a skilled nursing facility.

The seminar will also include a "question and answer" discussion period. It is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

To reserve a seat, call Peter Neville at (617) 471-2600.

Funds Sought For 'New Germantown' Housing

and Deborah Morse of ABT Associates, a consulting firm hired by the city to help in the application process. "This program is near and dear to my heart," Hanley said. "I lived in public housing for 13 years and I know the good and the bad of it. It's unique that, as a public official, I can talk the talk and walk the walk.

"Hope VI is basically a source of funding that the Quincy Housing Authority has identified as a way to revitalize an aging inventory of affordable housing."

The project, he said, would help create a real community and counteract the ill effects of "clustering," the old system where subsidized housing was isolated from the community, creating both a stigma and a feeling of hopelessness. With the Hope VI project, Hanley said, "The doctor and the lawyer will live next to the welfare mother."

Hanley said the purpose of attending the conference was to learn more about the process, study past successful applications, and find out the exact application deadline, which will be announced at the conference.

Under the Hope VI plan, Hanley said, the federal government can contribute a maximum of $35 million to a project with the stipulation that every federal dollar be matched by $2.38 from a combination of private, city, and state funds.

Hanley said that, if realized, the Hope VI project would accomplish two goals. First, it would increase both the quantity and quality of much needed affordable housing in the city. Second, it would help to raise the city over the state's 10 percent threshold of affordable housing to protect it from comprehensive building permits. "That (being over 10 percent) was what the city didn't have when the developer for Highpoint came around," Hanley said.

Hanley credited Jack Mather for his "vision" on the Hope VI application process, saying the housing director had been working for over two years on the project.

The first meeting of the Hope VI Citizens Advisory Committee, a partnership of public, private, and institutional parties concerned in the project, met Tuesday in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Quincy Receives $39,000 State Recycling Grant

Quincy's legislative delegation announce the city will receive a $39,000 state grant for recycling projects.

"The grant will be used to increase consumer awareness, purchase home and multi-family composting brochures and funding for a permanent Household Hazardous Waste Products Center," said Rep. Bruce Ayers.

"The city will use the funding to construct a center that will provide a place for residents to bring their old paint, pesticides and hazardous chemicals," Rep. Steve Tobin added.

"This year's application process was extremely competitive and the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) awarded $1.25 million in grants while receiving $7.6 million in grant requests," said Rep. Ron Mariano. The DEP and the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) have granted over $17 million since 1990 for recycling equipment, household hazardous waste equipment, educational materials and technical assistance throughout the state.

"These grants help make recycling more cost effective for municipalities and help with reducing the environmental and health impacts of waste management," said Sen. Michael Morrissey. In addition, the DEP will have up to $3 million available for municipalities through the Municipal Recycling Incentive Program in Fiscal Year 2000, which is funded by the Clean Environmental Fund.

RIDE & RELAX AT A RANCH SPA

If the idea of mixing vigorous outdoor adventures with luxurious pampering sounds intriguing, make your way to a ranch spa. Because of the growing interest in adventure travel and increasing numbers of health-conscious travelers, the ranch spa is a booming vacation concept in North America. Some spas are former cattle ranches, while others are still in the cattle business. Guests can ride horses, hike and mountain bike. Canoeing, kayaking and fishing are also popular activities. After working their bodies, guest can completely relax while they enjoy aromatherapy wraps, massages and facials. Many spas offer wellness workshops to address topics such as stress management and wilderness fitness. Families are welcome at some locations, while others cater strictly to adults. You'll have the benefit of our entire staff's experiences here at PRIME TRAVEL, whether you need information about heading out to a ranch spa or what cruise specials are currently being offered. Our services are complete and based on the knowledge and experiences of our well-traveled, skilled team of travel agents. We are fully computerized and can help with vacations and cruises, both domestic and international. Ready for an adventure? Says If MHI Fails EDIC Would Expedite Future Use Harold Seeks Local Control At Shipyard

By CRAIG SALTERS

City Council President Paul Harold wants the city to form an Economic Development and Industrial Corporation (EDIC) to take local control of the Fore River Shipyard in the event Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI) fails.

The goal: give the city a voice in the fate of the property and avoid possible delays associated with federal ownership.

Harold introduced a Home Rule Petition on the matter at Tuesday night's council meeting.

"We have to anticipate that MARAD is going to step in," said Harold. "If there are developmental delays, we will miss the opportunity to take advantage of the current South Shore real estate boom."

Meanwhile MHI, saying it had received a $15 million dollar "bridge loan" commitment from an undisclosed New York financial group but asking for a further extension of its Fleet loan payment, released a statement Tuesday saying it had laid off its workforce.

The EDIC, Harold said, would be a quasi-governmental corporation whose sole mission would be the possession and industrial development of the shipyard, helping to hasten the development process should MHI default on its loans and the federal Maritime Administration (MARAD) assume ownership of the property.

MHI was recently granted an extension on a $3.1 million overdue loan payment to Fleet Bank. If a payment is not made Friday, Fleet could ask MARAD to pay off the entire $55 million dollar loan, essentially giving MARAD control of the shipyard.

"MARAD is not a development agency," Harold said, noting that MARAD would be required to ask all federal, state, and city agencies, in that order, if they had any use for the property. "We could see a development delay of 18 months or longer.

"If we have the EDIC in place, it would protect Quincy in that there would be a locally based development agency. We can control it locally and possibly speed up the development process."

Harold pointed to the Squantum Gardens senior housing project as an example of potential delays involved in obtaining control of a federal property.

Another benefit of the EDIC, Harold said, was that it would be seen as a favorable alternative by several

MHI Lays Off Workforce

Massachusetts Heavy Industries, owners of the Fore River Shipyard, announced Tuesday that it had laid off its workforce.

In a prepared statement MHI said it had been using its own workers to install machinery and prepare facilities at the yard since it terminated O. Ahlberg & Sons as general contractor August 30 after a contract dispute.

"That work," MHI said, "has been carried as far as it can go without the release of funds still held in escrow by the Maritime Administration for that purpose."

MHI also mentioned the $15 million "bridge loan" it has been seeking from private lenders while it pursues legal action against O. Ahlberg & Sons and awaits a proposed $146 million in private refinancing.

"Until the release of escrowed funds and the closing on additional financing," the company said, "MHI will be temporarily laying off its workforce."

MHI also said it had received a commitment on its bridge loan from an unnamed financial group based in New York City but that the process could take until early next month. As a result, MHI said it would seek a further extension on loan payments originally scheduled for Dec. 1, 1999.

The current extension on those loans ends Friday. According to MHI, the $15 million bridge loan coupled with the release of funds now in escrow would "enable the Quincy Shipyard project to be substantially completed by the end of this year."

A Notice To Our Readers

The price of The Quincy Sun will be slightly increased effective with the Thursday, March 2 issue.

At that time, the newsstand and by carrier home delivery price of The Sun will be 40 cents—an increase of five cents.

The yearly mail subscriptions were increased in January and are not affected by the new rate.

At 40 cents the price of The Sun will still be lower than that of most weekly newspapers in the South Shore and New England areas.

We regret the increase, our first in several years, but rising production and other increased costs, force us to make the adjustment.

We are most grateful to our loyal readers many of whom have been with us since our very first issue in September, 1968 and have encouraged and supported us down through the years in our role as Historic Quincy's Hometown Weekly Newspaper.

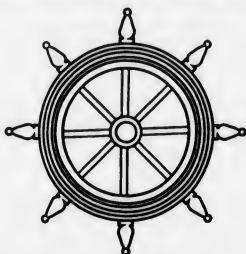

We hope you understand the adjustment in price that we will be making effective, March 2.

Thank you.

USS Salem Back Home Today

The USS Salem is Fore River Shipyard today scheduled to return to the — a day later than originally planned. Last Friday's snowstorm was given as reason for the delay as it halted ground-work necessary before the heavy cruiser could leave drydock in South Boston.

The vessel underwent a $2 million overhaul at Boston Ship Repair from where it is scheduled to leave today at 12 noon.

Four tugboats will tow the ship back to Quincy — an approximate four-hour trip — where it is scheduled to arrive at its berth at approximately 4 p.m.

At 3 a.m. today, the sluice gate valve, which holds the harbor water out of the drydock, was to commence and begin flooding the area. Once the water level between the drydock and harbor equalizes, the caisson door will open allowing the harbor water to completely fill the drydock area. A tugboat will enter and align itself with the ship.

Over 60 volunteers of the USS Salem Volunteer Association — some of whom are former Salem crewmembers — are scheduled to handle the ship towlines. The Fore River Bridge will open between 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. The Salem will pass through and berth at Pier 1 in the shipyard.

Aboard the Salem and being taken to sea for the second time ever will be the largest U.S. Navy Flag in the world, a giant banner measuring 45 feet by 90 feet, 9 stories high, the size of a basketball court. Based on the Boston National Historical Park, "The Freedom Trail" flag is part of an official historic collection of 90 flags and depictions and eagle astride an anchor with rope and sailing ships; the official symbol of the United States Navy. The flag was first taken to seas aboard the U.S. Constitution and carried to Marblehead as part of Old Ironside's historic first sail.

The flag is only unfurled and raised at Official Affairs of the State and navy ceremonies. It will be carried on board the USS Salem by former crew members in Boston and unfurled in Quincy as part of the official welcoming home ceremonies, dockside at the shipyard. Although the flag has toured Navy bases and installations around the country, this will only be the second time the flag has been taken to sea.

The United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum, a non-profit educational institution, located on board the Salem, will officially reopen to the public March

4. The museum is offering a discount on admission during its reopening weekend on March 4 and 5. At $2 off the regular price of admissions, which is $6 for adults and $4 for children/seniors year round, visitors will have an opportunity to tour the ship decks and exhibits galleries.

The USNSM has four permanent exhibits on board, featuring artifacts, ordnance, photographs, original documents and records, and displays of ship models on all vessels. These exhibits tell an important story about the history of United States military activity, covering all wars, conflicts and services between the Revolutionary War and Persian Gulf.

The Salem is the centerpiece of the Museum's collection, 17,000 tons and 716 feet long. The ship's main mission, when commissioned in 1949, was to protect United States interests on the seas. She served as the Flagship to the Sixth Fleet, majestically responding to international crisis and performing rescue missions across the Atlantic Ocean, Mediterranean and Caribbean Seas.

At the beginning of May to October, the museum will be open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information contact Valerie Wiggins, Director of Marketing and Business Development. New exhibits are scheduled for the spring and summer.

SENIOR LIVING

by Laura Andrus, Director of Marketing

SEEING IS BELIEVING

A recent study lent credence to the idea that older people may care. At Marina Place, we understand the changing needs of seniors. In this case, unconscious exposure to words conveying a positive image of the physical well-being of the elderly. In the study, researchers first measured the walking speeds of healthy individuals between ages 63 and 82. Then, half of the subjects saw positive words ("wise" and "accomplished") flashed in subliminal messages, while the other half saw negative ("senile") subliminal reinforcement. The group shown the positive words walked significantly faster than before the study, while the other group's pace remained unchanged. Self-image, it seems, is important to quality of life as well as to physical function.

Marina Place will host a "Leap into Health" Fair on Tuesday, February 29, 2000 from 11:00am to 3:00pm. Come and experience alternative ways to heal and beat the stress. Many screenings will be offered including Bone Density, Refreshments will be served in our Tea Room. "Leap into Health" Fair is free and open to the public. Four Seaport Drive, Marina Bay, Quincy - 617-770-3264.

P.S. Everyone, not just the elderly, likes to be seen in a positive light.

Harold Proposes New JFK Memorial For City

DPW Seeks $54,000 For Flood Study In Wollaston

Quincy no longer has a public memorial to President John F. Kennedy but City Council President Paul Harold hopes to change that.

Harold introduced a resolve at Tuesday night's city council meeting calling for creation of a President Kennedy Memorial Committee "to identify an appropriate building, park, or city landmark to bear the name of the late president."

Quincy long had such a memorial: the John F. Kennedy Health Center at 1120 Hancock St. But the building was sold recently and thus no longer is a Kennedy public memorial.

The Quincy Health Center was renamed in Kennedy's honor shortly after his assassination in Dallas in November, 1963.

The idea to honor Kennedy was that of the late Richard Koch, a friend and local coordinator of Kennedy's campaigns for the U.S. senate and president.

Koch was executive secretary of the Park Department which was located at that time in the health center building. He proposed that it be renamed in Kennedy's honor. And, it was.

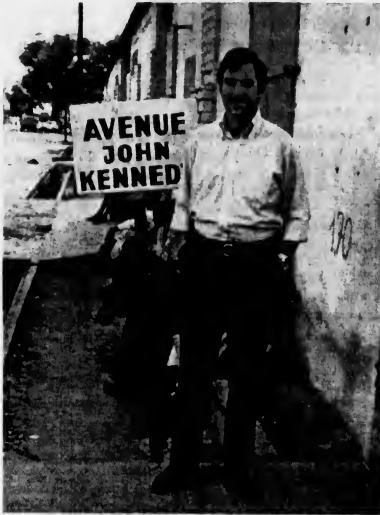

Now that the health center has been sold, Harold thinks the city should find a new site -- another public building, park, or other landmark -- "to perpetuate the name and career of President Kennedy."

His resolve calls for a nine-member committee, seven to be appointed by Mayor James Sheets and two by Harold as council president. Sheets and Harold would serve as ex-officio members.

Harold stipulates that one of the nine committee members be a member of the Koch family.

The committee would report back to the city council by June 30.

Harold, who for a number of years has traveled overseas for the U.S. Information Agency says: "Almost everywhere I go there is a street or a public square named after President Kennedy."

PAUL HAROLD on John Kennedy Avenue in Senegal, West Africa in 1978.

He says he comes across many people who don't know there is a Boston. And many who know very little about Massachusetts except the song "Massachusetts" by the Bee-Gees.

"But everybody knows about President Kennedy," he says. "Even those in the former Communist countries know about him."

He notes that every community in Massachusetts and most in the U.S.

have a memorial to Kennedy.

And, he recalls visiting Senegal, a desolate country in West Africa back in 1978 and finding a John Kennedy Avenue there.

"If they remember John Kennedy there and elsewhere overseas, we should certainly remember him here," says Harold.

The department of Public Works is requesting funds for a drainage design study to alleviate flooding in the Sachem St. and Elm Ave. area of Wollaston.

The $54,000 appropriation was scheduled for discussion at Tuesday night's city council meeting. If approved, funds would be allocated from the sewer rehabilitation fund.

David Colton, commissioner of the DPW, said the matter would most likely be referred to committee but that he foresaw no difficulties in obtaining the necessary funds. "The council has always been very supportive when it comes to flooding problems," Colton said.

According to Colton, the Sachem St. and Elm Ave.

area experienced "significant and serious flooding" in the fall of 1999.

The purpose of the design study, he said, would be to "model, map, and analyze each of the alternatives" for solving the flooding problem.

Data collection would include a survey questionnaire of approximately 50 area residents, an examination of city aerial mapping and drainage plans, a capacity evaluation of the Strand storm water pump station, capacity evaluations of Black's Creek and Sailor's Pond, and three on-site observations of actual storm events.

The computer modeling of the stormwater drainage system, Colton said, would account for a significant portion of the design study cost.

Potential solutions to the flooding include: diverting stormwater runoff to the Strand stormwater pump station; diverting overflow from Outfall 7 to the Strand stormwater pump station; diverting high area runoff to Black's Creek; using Sailor's Pond as a detention basin; or "a combination of the two best alternatives" from those mentioned.

If everything goes well, Colton said, the data collection should be finished by this summer and the design phase finished by this winter. The construction phase, he said, could begin as early as 2001.

Jean Kennedy Named To QHA Board Of Directors

Mayor James A. Sheets announced Tuesday the appointment of F. Jean Kennedy to a five-year term as a member of the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Directors.

Kennedy replaces Mary Kay Bamford, who completed her five-year term and also filled a temporary vacancy on the board.

Kennedy, who is retired, is a lifelong resident of Quincy and currently resides in Germantown.

Kennedy has been very active in the Germantown neighborhood for many years and has given of her time to countless community events and organizations such as: the St. Boniface Carnival; the Germantown 4th of July Parade committee; The Girls Scouts of America; Germantown Neighborhood Council; Germantown Food Pantry; and the Harborview Residents Committee, among others.

Kennedy's appointment was scheduled to go before the City Council for final approval Tuesday night and was expected to be sworn in on Wednesday.

Earned Income Tax Credit Advice From The IRS

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) wants eligible taxpayers to claim the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC) and is offering extended walk-in hours for residents to learn more about the credit.

"The EITC is a tax credit for people who work but don't have high incomes," said IRS Director Steve Daigle. "Claiming the credit can mean paying less tax -- no tax -- or even getting a refund."

The amount of the EITC is based on earned income and the number of children in the household. Those who do not have children may still qualify for a limited EITC. To claim the credit, taxpayers must have earned income of less than:

- $10,200 in 1999 and have no qualifying children,
- $26,928 in 1999 and have one qualifying child, or

• $30,580 in 1999 and have two or more qualifying children.

Several IRS offices in Massachusetts have extended walk-in hours including Wednesday evening and Saturday morning service when taxpayers can obtain free tax help and learn more about EITC.

For answers to EITC questions, taxpayers can call the IRS toll-free form number, 1-800-829-3676. The IRS website -- www.irs.gov -- provides answers to frequently asked EITC questions and taxpayers can download Publication 596 directly from the site.

Effective through April 18, the Quincy office, 1250 Hancock St., Suite 503 S, will be open Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Don Gohl: Someone Special

Those of us who were fortunate to have had him come into our lives are deeply saddened by the sudden death of Don Gohl, a legend in local banking circles for more than a half century.

If there was such a thing as a "Very Special Person Award," my vote would have gone to him. And, I'm sure, those of anyone who knew him.

He was truly someone special. Always with that big smile. Always upbeat. Always ready to help. And always honest in everything he did.

Don, who loved to sing and dance, would have really made a great song and dance man.

But, he chose a banking career instead, starting with the Quincy Savings Bank in 1946 after serving with the Marines in the Pacific in World War II.

He saw more than his share of action including the crucial battle for Guadalcanal, a turning point in the war. He never talked about it though.

But he'd give you his impression of Al Jolson's "April Showers" or "Mammy" at the drop of a hat.

In fact, while he was in the Pacific he entertained his buddies and on one island shared the stage with Gary Cooper. Cooper wanted him to join his USO troupe but there was still a war to be won.

But the USO was in his future.

He was stationed at the Hingham Ammunition Depot in 1945 after his Pacific service and met pretty Helen Davidson of Quincy, a USO volunteer, at a USO dance here.

Don was called up on the stage to sing a song and do a little dance. When he was through, he bounded off the stage and plunked himself down beside Helen, sitting at a table.

"I saw you from the stage," he said.

"It was fate," Helen says. "I wasn't even going to go to the dance that night but my girlfriend talked me into it."

It was love at first sight. She went home that night and told her parents, "I've just met the man I am going to marry."

And, they were married three months later.

Don was with Quincy Savings Bank 32 years and 20 with Quincy Cooperative. At age 80, he was still going strong as an assistant vice president for customer service at Bank of Canton's Quincy's office when he died last week.

And, whichever bank he was with down through the years was considered the lucky bank in town.

He was a walking definition of personalized customer service. His trademark was making housecalls to senior citizens who would otherwise have difficulty getting to the bank.

He would not only see to their banking needs right there in their homes but help them in personal matters. And thought nothing of driving them to the store or the doctor's or dentist's offices and on various other errands.

He even mowed their lawns until he stopped mowing his own just a few years ago.

And, typically, on the very day he was taken to the hospital last week he had spent the morning carrying heavy containers of coins to the bank for an elderly couple.

That night, when he was being admitted to South Shore Hospital, the girl taking the information looked at him and said excitedly: "Oh, you gave me my very first mortgage."

Don, ever dedicated to his work, pulled out his business card and handed it to her. "If you're ever unhappy with your present bank, give me a call," he told her.

He was known as "the happy banker" and banking's "ambassador of goodwill." And he sure took the stuffiness out of the word banker.

But he was also part song and dance man at heart. He entertained at nursing homes and helped raise funds for such worthy causes as the Boy Scouts, Cancer Society, UNICEF, the Salvation Army, etc.

Whenever you bumped into him he always had that big, wide, friendly smile that just made your day a much better one.

Don was really someone special.

This old world would be a lot better with more like him.

Ayers Receives Top Ranking From Audubon Society

State Rep. Bruce Ayers received a 100% rating from the Massachusetts Audubon Society based on his voting record in support of critical environmental issues during the recently concluded 1999 session of the Massachusetts Legislature.

Since 1985, the Society has compiled the environmental voting records of the Massachusetts Legislature to inform citizens about the performance and accountability of their elected officials.

"If legislators don't advocate for the protection of the environment now, the natural character of Massachusetts will be jeopardized," said Jack Clarke, the Massachusetts Audubon's director of advocacy. Of 160 Representatives, Ayers was one of only 34 members who voted on all matters with a perfect score.

"Over the last year, I was pleased to support a number of important initiatives like the Community Preservation Act and by working to defeat bills that would have weakened the voter-approved Wildlife Protection Act," Ayers said. "Over the months to come I look forward to working on other important proposals along with the Audubon Society to protect our precious natural resources and preserve our environmental heritage."

The Massachusetts Audubon Society is recognized for their objective compilation of data concerning legislator performance and public policy issues concerning the environment. They are the largest conservation organization in New England and currently protect more than 28,000 acres of conservation land in Massachusetts alone and maintain 40 wildlife sanctuaries that are open to public.

In addition, the Society conducts educational programs for 150,000 school children each year and also advocates for sound environmental policies at the federal and local level.

THIS 1906 POSTCARD is an advertising card used by the Baker Yacht Basin, Inc. located at the end of Washington Court on the Town River in Quincy Point. Lorenzo Baker owned most of the waterfront and several piers and railways on the river south of the playground. Baker's and several other yacht building companies in Quincy prospered until the general demise of wooden boats. Then, in the early thirties, the Quincy Dry Dock and Yacht Company that specialized in boat storage and repairs purchased the Baker site. Not a small operation, they once employed over 350 men, but they too went out of business shortly after the Korean War. Today the site is used by a restaurant and other business at the Bay Pointe Marina.

Police Approve Rock 'n Roll Show

By PAUL HAROLD

The License Board sent Quincy police to preview New York's "Hottest Rock N Roll Show" at the Strand Theater. There was concern expressed that the show might not be "proper."

City Manager Donald Blatt said it was unfortunate that it was being shown during school vacation week.

Captain Joseph Flaherty and Lt. Charles Hinchon, who previewed the show, saw nothing wrong. Flaherty said it was a "good show." However, it was noted that the theater manager eliminated one act when he heard the police were previewing the production.

DUMP PICKERS APPEAL TO COUNCIL

Following a ban on dump pickers at the city's Merrymount Quarry dump, an appeal was made to the city council. The ban was imposed by DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert, at the request of Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, following a fire at the quarry set by one of the pickers.

In testimony before the city council, it was noted that the pickers were too proud to apply for public welfare and should be allowed to continue their picking.

QUINCY WINS VICTORY OVER SAUGUS

The city won a victory of sorts when the legislature gave approval to a plan for the city to take over Hall Cemetery to protect the West Quincy blast furnace site.

Under the plan, the city would be given the cemetery for one dollar with the promise of providing perpetual care. The city's ownership would allow for the preservation of the recently excavated blast furnace site.

Rep. Belden Bly of Saugus opposed Rep. Amelio Della Chiesa's transfer plan because Saugus was challenging Quincy as the site of the nation's first blast furnace to smelt iron.

Wonders If Concourse Is Quincy's Big Dig

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
When will the rescheduled groundbreaking for the Quincy Center Concourse take place?

As a member of the Citizens Advisory committee, I received an invitation for a groundbreaking ceremony to take place on Friday, Feb. 11 at 1:30 p.m.

Suddenly, the day before the event I received a hand delivered letter from a Public Works employee stating the groundbreaking was "postponed due to unforeseen reasons" and no other date was set.

The work has begun. The contractor, SPS New England of Salisbury, has been working along with a Quincy Police detail for about three weeks. A few orange "construction ahead" signs are nearby, but no groundbreaking has taken place. Why? First we were told that Quincy was waiting for the Governor.

Now, as we read about the Big Dig and the financial problems it has created, are the funds available for the concourse or will the taxpayers of Quincy have to foot the bill? I hope the concourse is not the Quincy version of the Big Dig.

The Citizens Advisory Committee is not being informed. We were not informed that the construction had begun. Answers are not forthcoming when we ask questions.

So again, when will the "official groundbreaking" take place? It is time for the taxpayers of Quincy to wake up and to ask questions now, rather than later!

Memories Of Don Gohl Sought For Planned Book

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
The recent passing of my Dad, Don Gohl, has saddened all of us.

As his son, I want to remember my father for all the things he did for people, the many songs he sang and how he loved to entertain all of you.

I am compiling a book of memories about my father and I need your help. In the next several days please take some time to write down your memories of Don Gohl. Happy, funny, tender helpful memories that you can recall will be put together in a book entitled, Remembering Don Gohl.

This book will be made available to all who want it with donations to the Boy Scouts of America, his favorite group.

Don Gohl: A Man For All People

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Don Gohl was a man for all people.

He did not care if you were on the first rung or the top rung of the social ladder or if you walked "under" the ladder. He always had time for you.

His banking clientele were his friends. Don Gohl, a good man. Don was in life and is now, a child of the "King."

Scrabble Rousers Fundraiser At Marshall School March 16

Literacy Volunteers of America-Quincy at the Thomas Crane Library and literacy partner Altrusa International of Quincy will sponsor the second annual LVA Scrabble Rousers fundraiser Wednesday, March 16, from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Marshall School, 200 Moody St.

Registration fee is $10 per person and proceeds benefit the Literacy Project at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Refreshments, games, prizes, and surprises will be part of the night's events.

The Thomas Crane Public Library literacy program serves the South Shore community. Volunteers are trained and matched through LVA-Quincy and have provided free tutoring to adults in basic reading and writing since 1986. LVA-Quincy is a full affiliate of the national network of Literacy Volunteers and is one of 12 LVA programs statewide.

Altrusa International of Quincy is an international association of business executives and professionals who volunteer their energies and expertise in projects dedicated to community betterment. Assistance is given to projects emphasizing literacy through the Altrusa International Foundation, Inc.

The library has a long standing relationship with Altrusa. The organization has donated funds, equipment, and materials to the Literacy Project; assisted at library fundraisers; provided volunteer tutors; and most recently initiated an annual story telling event at the Snug Harbor School.

Space is limited. For more information or for a registration form, contact Elaine Kline at (617) 376-1314.

Quincy High Students Win Art Awards

Quincy High School students Ilana Saxe and Kladja Agolli won Honorable Mention in the Boston Globe Scholastic Art Awards Program.

Saxe's winning entry was a machine-quilted fantasy landscape. Agolli's winning entry was a mythological sculpture.

QHS art teachers Janet Meade and Dr. Sheehan said they were thrilled to have their students' work selected for this honor. They were the only students in Quincy to receive this recognition.

The New England Art Education Conference, in cooperation with the Massachusetts Art Education Association, administers the program which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. Students in grades 7 through 12 enrolled in public and private schools submit their entries through their schools. Each piece of artwork is judged on the basis of skill, style, observation, and artistic and imaginative content.

This year there were over 3500 submissions from across the state.

Art Association Painting Demonstration March 14

The Quincy Art Association will sponsor a painting demonstration Tuesday, March 14 at its center, 26 High School Ave., Quincy, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The event is free and open to the public.

Anet Paglierani, a well-known local artist, will present a demonstration of floral painting in oil. Active with the arts community for 30 years, Paglierani is well known as one of the founders of the Quincy Art Association which was established in 1965.

Paglierani received an award in 1943 to attend the Museum Scholarship classes at the Museum of Fine Arts for four years and received her diploma in fine art in 1947. She went on to receive a certificate in illustration after a three-year program of studies with the School of Practical Arts in Boston in 1951.

For eight years, Paglierani worked as a designer with Rust Craft Greeting Cards. During this period Anet was strongly influenced by Polly Nordell of Fenway Studios, where she studied floral painting for five years. Other influences include instruction received at workshops taught by noted artists Helen VanWyk, Rudy Calao, Roger Curtis, Charles Movali, Pamela Fox and T.M. Nicholas.

Her early teaching career began in 1969 with Evening Adult Education for the Quincy Public Schools and the Woodward School for Girls. In 1969, Paglierani opened her own studio in Quincy Square, continuing there until 1981. She later moved class instruction to her home studio.

Anet's works are included and have been on display in various collections, including The Quincy Historical Society and Quincy City Hall.

New Fence First Step In Montclair Bog Restoration

The city's recent replacement of a half-mile stretch of fence around the bog in Montclair represents a major victory for The Friends of the Bog and its founder Gregory Newton.

But Newton, who is also president of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association, wants people to remember that the fence is only the first step in restoring the 16-acre site that borders Harvard, Sherman, Hobart, and Belmont Sts.

"We're just thrilled," said Newton of the new, $30,000 fence which replaced what Newton termed an "eyesore" of a dilapidated fence covered in rust and riddled with holes. "But we've only just begun."

The Friends of the Bog,

Newton said, will now focus on three primary goals for the future: proper drainage to keep Montclair backyards from flooding; mosquito control; and the overall appearance of the bog itself.

To accomplish those goals, Newton has formed a 10-resident bog committee to meet twice yearly with Councillor Patrick McDermott, the DPW, and the Parks Department to create and maintain a bog restoration timetable.

Newton praised McDermott, William Repoff of the DPW, and Dave Murphy of the Parks Department for their efforts at the bog. Besides the fence, Newton said there is a commitment to clear the channels and clean trash from the bog's perimeter by the end of the year.

The FOTB, Newton said, has conducted its own trash pickup the last few years during Quincy's "Cleaner, Greener Days" and will do so again this year. Last year, he said, the group picked up more than 1,000 cans and bottles from the bog.

even some homes. They also create stagnant water which allows mosquitoes to breed."

Newton, who said he walks the bog every day, founded the FOTB in 1996, when he called a meeting one Saturday to discuss bog concerns and about 40 neighbors showed up. The group, he said, is a less formal organization than the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association, of which he has been president the last two years. "The Neighborhood Association has been extremely supportive in our efforts to restore the bog," Newton said.

"We want to protect the small wildlife -- the raccoons, the skunks, the birds -- that are abundant in that bog," said Newton. "The bog is a jewel in the middle of a densely populated area and should be preserved."

For Newton, the goals of drainage, mosquito control, and aesthetics are very much connected. "The bog looked like a dump so people treated it like a dump," Newton explained. "Now the channels (of the bog) are clogged with paint cans, bags of trash, bottles and cans, fallen trees, debris, growth, and shopping carts. There's even a car in there from the 1960's."

"The clogged channels create floods in backyards,

Eastern Nazarene College Receives $80,000 Gift

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) recently received a gift of $80,000 from the Grimshaw-Gudewicz Charitable Foundation.

This is the fifth such gift to the college since the foundation was organized in 1995, following the death of George E. Grimshaw. Total contributions from the Foundation now total over $350,000.

Dr. Tom Barnard, Assistant to the President for Church Relations, and former Vice President for Institutional Advancement, noted that the college's association with Grimshaw and his late wife, Irene Gudewicz, grew over the years.

"He started sending small gifts to the college in the mid-1980s," said Barnard. "In 1991 his increased generosity helped us to renovate the old Nease library building and in appreciation, the college named the renovated building in honor of his great-grandfather, Robert Bower, a former Massachusetts congressman and Lawrence publisher. His final personal gift to the college was received just weeks before his death in 1995. We appreciate the foundation's continued support of Mr. Grimshaw's desire to support ENC."

Total contributions to the college from both personal and foundation support currently total over $750,000.

Grimshaw amassed his fortune in the manufacturing industry, through the specialized development and production of stainless steel fasteners. He never considered himself a philanthropist, but he annually supported nearly 45 charities, and gave substantial gifts to Brown University (Rhode Island) and Franklin Pierce College (New Hampshire) in addition to ENC. At his death in 1995 he left his entire estate to the Grimshaw-Gudewicz Charitable Foundation with a charge to continue his philanthropic efforts.

Dr. Kent Hill, president of ENC, said: "The faithful and steady support of George Grimshaw, and now the Grimshaw-Gudewicz Charitable Foundation, has been extraordinarily important to ENC as it seeks the funds necessary to improve its facilities. We are deeply grateful."

keep working on.

"I always look forward to the campaign season as an opportunity to let my constituents know how grateful I am for the opportunity I have had to represent them," Morrissey said.

Constituents interested in helping his re-election campaign are invited to attend the meeting.

Dean Nicastro President National Medical Association Counsel

Atty. Dean P. Nicastro, general counsel of the Massachusetts Medical Society (MMS) in Waltham, was recently elected president of the American Society of Medical Association Counsel (ASMAC).

ASMAC is a national organization of lawyers who represent and advise organized medicine. ASMAC members are employed as in-house or outside counsel to various national, state and local general medical associations or specialty medical societies.

ASMAC serves as a networking and educational resource for its members. Nicastro, a member of MMS legal department since 1985, practices corporate and health law for the medical society. He will serve as ASMAC's president for the year 2000.

Nicastro, who lives in Quincy and Chatham, is a former Quincy city solicitor and a former Massachusetts assistant attorney general. A graduate of both Harvard

Keating To Speak At Beechwood Center March 1

Norfolk County District Attorney William Keating will be the guest speaker at Beechwood Community Life Center's Breakfast Meeting Wednesday, March 1, at 8 a.m.

The monthly breakfasts focus on topics of current interest and concern and provide seniors regular and direct access to community leaders. Many in the community donate professional time and expertise.

"Issues of concern to seniors are addressed regularly at Beechwood on the Bay through programming, workshops, seminars, and access to professionals," said Sharron Beals, the center's executive director.

In addition to the breakfasts, Beechwood promotes senior advocacy with senior advisory councils, weekly legal counseling with the help of Attorney Dan DeBenedictis of the Attorney General's Office, and weekly insurance counseling through the SHINE Program and Counselor Marjorie Crowley.

Crowley joins seniors at the center Wednesdays and DeBenedictis is available Thursdays.

For more information

REAL ESTATE

Flexible Mortgages Help Realize The 'American Dream'

By CAROL BULMAN, President
Conway Financial Services
First-time home buyers comprise as much as 50 percent of today's potential real estate customers. The following mortgage products are available to first-time buyers who want to end their days of rental receipts and start building equity in their own homes.

• MHFA Loans. The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency offers low-interest loan programs for first-time buyers that have flexible qualifying standards and generous allowances for how much the buyers can spend on a new home.

In the Boston area and most of the South Shore, single people and couples qualify for the program if their annual income is less than $60,000; for families of three or more, the income limit is $69,000. In certain communities, such as Bridgewater, Whitman, and Brockton, the ceilings are $54,200 for singles and couples $62,300.

The maximum purchase price of new single-family homes in Greater Boston and most of the South Shore is $148,000; in Boston and its neighborhoods, the limit is $181,000, while in some southeastern Massachusetts towns, the maximum is $143,000.

Existing one-unit houses have a limit of up to $151,000 on the South Shore; $184,000 within the Boston city limits and $121,000 in southeastern Massachusetts. For multiple-unit properties, the limits increase proportionally, with a maximum of $239,000 for a four-family home on the South Shore, $291,000 in the city, and $191,000 in the southern suburbs. In some cases, a newly built home may allow a higher or lower maximum purchase price in any of these areas.

Conway Financial Services was the first mortgage broker in the state to complete an MHFA loan, which has a downpayment requirement of only 3 percent. Your CFS representatives can show you the correct loan limit for the town in which you are considering buying a home.

• Fannie 97 Program. Fannie Mae, the secondary mortgage market giant, offers this program, which requires only a 3 percent downpayment on a home mortgage. Most mortgages require downpayments of 5 to 10 percent of the amount of the loan. For example, to purchase a $100,000 house, the Fannie 97 program would require you to have only 3,000 as a downpayment, where traditional lenders may require between $5,000 and $10,000. Fannie Mae's program, Flex 97, allows the entire downpayment to be a gift.

• 100-Percent No Downpayment Financing. Today's industry offers a variety of financing options that allow borrowers to purchase a home without making a downpayment. Such programs often require that the borrower be a first-time buyer, although mortgage options are available to those who are not first-time buyers. These programs may be limited to certain towns or cities and may have stringent credit criteria.

However, there are programs that do not have such restrictions and may even allow you to finance closing costs, increasing your loan to more than 100 percent of the purchase price.

To ensure that you located the correct program for your circumstances, it is important to meet with a mortgage specialist, who will review program eligibility requirements and advise you about which of these options best suits your needs.

• Freddie Mac's 40/40 Gold Program. Freddie Mac, another national lending source, offers this program, which allows first-time buy-

Take Advantage of Our Cultivated Real Estate Sense

This Is New England... Winterize Your Building (Well Into the Spring!)

By James B. McLean, Vice President
Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc.

Don't be fooled by warm spells in February. If you've lived in New England for even just one winter, you know that cold weather can extend well into the spring. Usually these are the times when we are most inconvenienced. Bearing in mind that we are not out of the woods yet as far as sub-freezing temperatures go, here is a checklist of tips to help you conquer any seasonal disasters that may launch a late winter sneak attack on you and your properties.

1. Know the important telephone numbers. In case of an emergency, you will need to get in touch with your utility providers at a moment's notice. Keep the names and numbers of key contacts handy. Key contacts include the water and fire department, the electric company, your plumber, your electrician, and a clean-up crew, among others.

2. Keep tenants and staff in the loop. Make sure that everyone who needs to be on the same page is on the same page. Making sure tenants are aware of your progress will alleviate some of their frustration. If you have a maintenance or security staff, be sure they have access to emergency telephone numbers and supplies.

3. Protect your pipes. Your biggest concern during extreme cold is the danger of a burst water line. Be especially conscious of pipes that are exposed or located in exterior walls. Walls and pipes should be well insulated to protect against the elements. Keep exterior areas, such as foyers, heated by keeping interior doors open for as long as possible.

4. Understand your insurance coverage. When facing even minor repair costs, knowing your deductible can cut back on the impact on your wallet. Be sure to have your insurance agent's number handy.

5. Take pictures. Photo records can be crucial when submitting insurance claims, and are very useful for your own use when attempting to pinpoint the problematic nuances of your property.

6. Pay attention to your invoices. Don't assume that just because your contractor is trustworthy you won't be overcharged. Mistakes happen. Be sure the work you've been charged for coincides with the work that has been completed.

7. Keep supplies on hand. Don't be caught without a mop and bucket when the pipes burst. A flashlight, a shovel, sand or some other de-icer and a water vacuum will also make life easier.

8. Protect your inventory. In case of flooding, never keep your inventory on the concrete floor. Even the slightest flooding will cause unnecessary damage to your stock. Keep inventory up off the floor and on to pallets, or better yet, shelving.

Your mission is to avoid interrupting your tenants' ability to conduct business while you straighten out the hiccups. Think prevention and be prepared for the winter well into the spring.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Psoriasis: Affecting People From The Inside Out

More than seven million Americans suffer from psoriasis, yet the general public is not fully aware of the physical and emotional effects of this serious skin condition.

Most Americans often mistake psoriasis with a simple skin disturbance, such as a severe rash or a bad case of dandruff, rather than a chronic immune disorder that is painful and, in some cases, debilitating.

"Psoriasis is not a cosmetic skin problem," states Dr. James A. Krueger of Rockefeller University in New York City. "It is a serious dysfunction of the organ—the skin breaks down and stops providing a barrier for infection and fluid loss."

Psoriasis most commonly appears as inflamed raised lesions covered with a silvery white scale. These painful lesions are caused by skin cells that migrate to the skin's surface six times faster—every three to four days—than the normal 28-30 day cycle.

When functionally different psoriatic skin cells "die," it leads to an operational failure of the skin, as well as an abnormal buildup of dead skin cells that create irritating lesions. Blood vessels then develop at the surface to support these additional layers of skin, causing redness and inflammation.

Psoriasis can appear on any part of the body but is most common the scalp, knees, elbows, hands and feet. In addition to skin le-sions, 10-30 percent of psoriasis sufferers may also develop psoriatic arthritis. Psoriatic arthritis is a chronic inflammatory immune disease of the joints and can have disabling effects if left untreated.

Understanding Psoriasis

Psoriasis is now generally accepted as a T-cell regulated immune disease. This means that like other immune diseases, psoriasis may be caused by a centralized immunological imbalance. Whether a person actually develops psoriasis may depend on something "triggering" its appearance. Examples of "trigger factors" include systemic infections, such as strep throat, injury to the skin, certain medications, vaccinations or oral steroids.

"The reaction inside a psoriatic's skin is similar to the healing of a wound caused by an outside force, such as a burn: the body responds with inflammation and skin redness. With psoriasis, it is an inside force or immune regulator that has done away—causing the inflammation and pain," explains Dr. Krueger.

Treating Psoriasis From The Inside Out

While researchers have developed new and more successful treatments—including oral prescription medications effective against very severe psoriasis—a "cure" may be many years away. Scientists are exploring the genetic markers in the immune system below the skin, looking inside the skin's makeup to discover why a psoriatic patient's genes trigger these painful lesions. In the last 10 years, there have been significant breakthroughs in decoding the immunological switch that turns psoriasis on or off in people.

However, the bottom line for people with psoriasis: a dermatologist or family doctor is your first resource for treating and managing the skin disorder. While a permanent solution is not imminent, treatments are available to temporary relieve symptoms of psoriasis for a few weeks to several months.

To learn more about psoriasis, contact the National Psoriasis Foundation at (800) 723-9166.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
Is there help for background noise?

The greatest hurdle for the hearing impaired, is understanding speech in the presence of noise. In a normal working ear, the brain can process complex sounds easier than in a hearing impaired ear. Traditional hearing aids (analog) amplify all sounds equally, even the ones that you don't want, making it difficult to carry on a conversation in the presence of noise.

Today's state-of-the-art in hearing aids is digital. A digital hearing aid can make 40 million calculations in one second! These are programmed for your hearing loss and designed to work more like normal hearing in the presence of noise. The volume adjusts automatically to adapt to noisy as well as quiet situations. Annoying feedback or "whistling" is also controlled by the digital circuitry. As impressive as these products have shown to be in the past 2-3 years, there is nothing better than normal natural hearing. Take care of what you have and protect your hearing from loud noises. Call or write for brochures on digital products. Now you go and spread the news! -Steve Stephen Tobias Hearing Center

Quincy Completes Season Sweep Over North

By CHRIS POISSON
Three weeks ago the North Quincy boys' basketball team was flying high. It had won two games in a row and needed to win three of its last six to reach the state tournament.

But someone must have pushed the red eject button because the Red Raiders have fallen.

February Fizzle. February Fold. February Fiasco. Whatever you want to call it, North Quincy has crashed in the final lap much like the way the Patriots did last season.

Quincy (6-12, 6-8) handed its city counterpart its fifth straight loss Saturday night with a thrilling 49-47 victory at home to complete the season sweep of the Red Raiders (7-12, 5-9).

Quincy Girls Win Silver Medals In Figure Skating

Jolene Dooley, a junior at North Quincy High School, and Kristina Pan, an eighth grade student at Woodward School for Girls, recently won silver medals in figure skating at the 2000 Bay State Winter Games at Williamstown.

Both have qualified to compete in the State Games

"To be very honest, when listening as I was looking, I thought it was a good call," said Quincy coach John Franceschini about the questionable call at the end of the game. "I thought the officials did a very good job. They conversed with each other. They went to the table which they're supposed to do and the vote was unanimous amongst the three."

Quincy carried its play into the opening round of the Quincy Invitational Monday night with a 70-52 win over Falmouth. Senior guard Dan Kelly scored 20 points and needed just two to reach the 1,000-point plateau in Tuesday's final against Stoughton. North Quincy closed out its season against Norwood yesterday (Wednesday).

The game was a tale of two halves. After a pathetic first half, the Presidents stormed back in the second frame.

"We went in at halftime and it was just the kids talking to each other," Franceschini said. "And the tri-captains simply said, 'Hey guys, we've come a long way together. We have 16 minutes left.'"

And those final 16 minutes belonged to the Presidents as everyone contributed in some way to the comeback.

In what was a sea-saw battle down the stretch, it was Kelly (13 points) and senior center Fitzpatrick (10) who came up big to propel Quincy to the top.

After junior guard Adam Woo (8 second-half points) drained a beautiful fallaway jumper to give North Quincy a 45-42 lead, Quincy called timeout to regroup with 1:44 left in the game. And it had the answers.

Kelly drilled a bomb from the right corner with two defenders in his face to tie the game at 45-all. Sophomore guard Phil McGillicuddy (15 points) put North Quincy up two, but Fitzpatrick came up with a huge tip off his own miss to even the score once again.

"That tip was huge," Franceschini said. "It was a tip off his own miss. He shot it, curled around and he got his big paw up there and it went in. He made some big shots for us."

With the game tied at 47-all, Kelly came out of a timeout, held the ball at the top of the key, checked the clock and then sliced his way through the lane for the game-winning layup with seven seconds left.

Senior guards Chase Clarke (11 points) and Larry Antonellis (8) also came through with some timely buckets in the second half.

Antonellis was the unsung hero. He seemed to make every difficult shot and he came up with the offensive rebound, the steal, the block, the loose ball — and all the other things that go unnoticed in the boxscore.

"Larry Antonellis played a huge game for us," Franceschini said. "If I had to pick a hero, it would've been Larry. Larry did the little things that we try to teach everyday all night long."

North Quincy dominated the first frame as it built a 28-14 advantage at the break. Quincy went on an eight-minute scoring drought, while the Red Raiders looked like it was taking pregame layups, scoring at ease.

"We were very disappointed in our first half play," Franceschini said. We went out and corrected the little mistakes. We boxed out better. We took better shots and we played better defense. We caused them to take some shots they didn't want to take in the second half.

"And I know Teddy's frustration because we've both had similar struggles offensively. I think it just turned. They were falling for us in the second half and they fell for Teddy in the first half."

North Girls Red Hot Heading Into Tournament

By CHRIS POISSON

Cupid is still hanging around after Valentine's Day, much to the chagrin of the Quincy girls' basketball team.

Twice in a span of eight days he has broken the Presidents' hearts. His latest act of cruelty came Saturday afternoon when Quincy met North Quincy, one more time, with city bragging rights at stake.

Coming off an overtime loss to Bridgewater-Raynham, which had hit a game-tying 3-pointer at the buzzer, Quincy found itself crossing its fingers again as North Quincy's April Suprey stepped up to the line with the game on the line.

With three seconds showing on the clock and the score deadlocked, she became the improbable hero in the 44-43 triumph by hitting one of two free throws. Freshmen just aren't supposed to do that, especially when they miss their first three freebies.

"I told them after the game I don't know what we've done wrong in our lives," said coach Bob Noble. "We've lost three that way. It's heart-breaking for them. If those games turn around, we're a tournament team."

North Quincy (13-7, 9-5), on the other hand, is a red-hot tournament team. It struts into the postseason with a five-game winning streak and a chance for a possible home game in the first round. The pairings will be announced tomorrow (Friday) afternoon.

44-43 Win Over Quincy Fifth Straight Victory

"It's a big win for us because we now go into the state tournament 13-7 and I think we can get a home game out of this," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "I think we can get as high as a No. 8 seed."

The Presidents (5-15, 5-9) are perhaps the best 5-15 team you'll ever see. They've been victims of bad breaks all season long, and Saturday was no different. Even at Trailing 41-37, tri-captain Ashley Murphy scored a 3-point play to pull North Quincy within one with 1:11 on the clock. But the clock didn't start running again until after Quincy's possession, in which about 20 seconds elapsed.

"I did not see it," said Noble, who found out about it after the game. "I was concentrating on the game. That's a huge factor in the game because the game runs out otherwise. But you have to give credit to North. We were up four and they battled back to take it at the end."

When the clock started again North Quincy had possession and junior forward Jen Conley (6 points) delivered a dagger, her second 3-pointer of the game for 43-41 lead.

"The last couple of games she's come up with some big threes," MacFarlane said. "She's a good shooter. We were hoping she would break out this year. And she has."

Quincy's Colleen Nichol tied the game with 25 seconds left, but the Red Raiders had the ball last and Suprey was able to draw the foul.

"It was just an awesome game to watch," MacFarlane said. "I feel bad for Quincy. They've been playing great all year and they have a 5-15 record. They're not a 5-15 team. They're not at all."

Nichol finished her stellar career with 21 points and 18 rebounds. She almost single-handedly won the game down the stretch by scoring nine straight points in a minute and a half.

"She had a tremendous game," Noble said. "She's been our go-to player. We really weren't doing a good job in the first half of getting her the ball inside. We did a much better job in the second half."

"The girl is awesome," MacFarlane said. "This year has been her year. She was unstoppable. I switched girls on her. We couldn't stop her. We just couldn't stop her. It was like she was going to take that game over by herself. And she almost did. I have a lot of respect for the girl as a player."

Quincy held a 16-14 lead at the break in what was a sluggish first half. But both teams picked it up over the final 16 minutes. Quincy started it off with a mini 6-0 run and North Quincy answered with a 9-0 spurt for a 23-22 lead. After that, it was a back-and-forth fight until the end.

Junior guard Casey Ridge led North Quincy with 14 points, including 13 big ones in the second half. Sophomore guard Lauren Sleeth added 8.

Senior forward Kaitlin McLaughlin turned in one of her better games of the year with a timely 8 points and 6 rebounds for Quincy.

Senior guard Caitlin Nichol was a defensive standout, holding North Quincy sharpshooter Jill Nicholson to 7 points, all in the first 10 minutes of the game.

A MEASURE OF SAFETY

Drivers should not sit closer than ten inches to their vehicle's airbag. Sitting any closer increases the risk of injury should the airbag inflate. Even if they know to keep this safe distance, many drivers do not correctly gauge how close they actually sit to their steering wheels. In fact, one study involving 1,000 drivers showed that people often misjudge this distance. Rather than trust their perceptions, drivers are being asked to measure the distance from the center of their chests to the center of their steering wheels with a tape measure. Most drivers will have little trouble sitting far enough away to prevent potential injury. Otherwise, drivers are encouraged to recline the backs of their seats slightly.

HINT: Driver's seating position is an important factor to take into consideration when purchasing a vehicle.

Sacred Heart Boys Win CYO Title

The Sacred Heart boys' basketball team recently won the Boston area CYO title for the second year in row.

Composed of 7th and 8th grade players, it finished the regular season with an 11-2 record despite playing in an older division (9th grade and under).

Sacred Heart started its playoff run last weekend. Last season it made it to the EMass semifinals.

Highlights of the season included a 51-48 upset over league power Holy Name of West Roxbury. Daryl Costa exploded for a season-high 24 points and Dave Jaehnig scored 10 points to spark the victory.

Steve Williams, Tim Watson and Costa dominated the boards against the bigger Holy Name club. Dean Sandomato and Steve Graham played a solid game at the point guard positions.

Sacred Heart knocked off rival Gate of Heaven of South Boston, 33-27. Point guard Jimmy Burke ran a controlled, slow down offense which frustrated the high-flying Southie club.

Costa had 12 points and Jaehnig 9. Watson, Ryan McHugh and Brian Donovan played well defensively.

Sacred Heart also had two nice wins over the run-and-gun St. Vincents from the D Street area of South Boston.

In the first meeting, Williams registered a double-double with 15 points and 12 rebounds. Costa (13 points) and Jaehnig (10) also contributed offensively in the 53-50 triumph.

Sacred Heart pulled out a come-from-behind 45-38 win the second time around. Williams (17) and Jaehnig (12) led the team offensively.

The Sacred Heart 5th grade boys also had an outstanding season with an 8-2 record in the South Shore Prep league.

Saturday it played Duxbury at the Atlantic Middle School in the first round of the playoffs.

Sacred Heart avenged two blowouts last year when it knocked off a powerful Braintree team, 40-22, and Westwood, 55-31, as every player scored in the game.

The team has received contributions from each of the 10 players. Point guards Chris Boyd and Derek Cox run the offense and play aggressive defense. Steve Connolly and Matt Jaehnig have been the best passers, while Jared Tucker, Nick Al Khatib and Matt Edgerly are strong rebounders.

Patrick Austin has loosened up opposing defenses with a fine outside shot. The hard-driving Brian Mahoney and big Jake O'Brien have also shined on the offensive side.

Raiders Down Quincy; Tourney Bound

By CHRIS POISSON

North Quincy coach Bob Doyle can thank James Flaherty of the Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division for parting with one of the Red Raiders' prized possessions — a team puck.

It's no ordinary puck. It's a puck with the Yakoo on it that has been in the program for about 10 years. And Doyle wanted it in the locker room before the biggest game of the season.

"I gave it to him as a gift, and he's eventually going to play for the Red Raiders some day," Doyle said with a laugh. "I called him up the other night and asked for it back. And sure enough he was here [Saturday night] to give me the puck. I passed it around the locker room and said it was a lucky puck. The kids looked at me like I was soft, but you rub that little Yakoo and it brings good things."

Indeed it does. North Quincy (10-11-1, 7-7) earned an improbable berth in the state tournament Saturday night by up-ending city chum Quincy (10-6-2, 7-5-2), 3-1, in front of a full house at Quincy Youth Arena. For Doyle, it was his first win against the rival Presidents.

North Quincy closed out the regular season with a 5-5 tie against Newton North Monday afternoon.

After stumbling to a 2-6 start, it seemed like the Red Raiders were headed towards the bottom of the Old Colony League. There were too many questions for the young, inexperienced squad. Who was going to score? Who was going to be the goalie? How far would the defense carry them?

"To start off the season 2-6 and be able to come back and contend for the tournament is a tribute to the guys not giving up," Doyle said. "This is my first real challenge. I've had some gifted players in my first two years and we made the tournament. This year here is an effort from everybody."

"Are we a tournament team? I think we are because of the way we've played in the second half of the season."

The past three Saturdays North Quincy had to face the OCL's premier teams, and each time it came out on top. It picked up its first ever win over Falmouth and its first win at Barnstable in nine years. The win over Quincy completed the hat trick.

"They went against the top 3 teams of the OCL and answered the challenge," Doyle said. "To have a young team respond the way they have is a tribute to their work ethic."

The Red Raiders got off to another slow start in the first period against Quincy. They didn't look like they were playing against their rival with the postseason on the line.

GOALIE RYAN KRUEGAR looks on as his teammate clears the puck after a North Quincy shot. Kruegar and the Presidents fell to the Red Raiders, 3-1, Saturday night at Quincy Youth Arena. (Quincy Sun Photos/Tom Gorman)

SENIOR ROSS O'DRISCOLL skates past a President as he heads toward the net.

Quincy got on the board first with a power-play goal late in period. Sophomore sniper Bill McKeon beat junior goalie Matt Gregory (14 saves) for his 18 goal of the season at 14:59.

"One of our problems this season has been giving up goals late in the period," Doyle said. "It just takes the momentum right out of you. I really wanted to come out like gangbusters, to let them know we weren't going to go softly."

Doyle blasted his team between periods, questioning his team's desire to want to reach the tournament and also not to let Quincy earn city bragging rights.

"I screamed at them, still with a lot of belief and trust that they could answer the challenge," Doyle said. "They needed a wake-up call."

And the alarm clock went off as North Quincy controlled play in the second and third periods. At 14:01 of the second, junior forward Rob Rice evened the score at 1-1 when he beat senior goalie Ryan Kruegar (18 saves) far side.

"Matt Gregory has made the most of his opportunity here," Doyle said. "It has been a real difficult task juggling three junior goalies. Matt is a little bit of a step above them and he's played big in the big games."

In the third, sophomore forward Scott MacDonald, who has emerged as the team's marquee offensive player, netted the game-winner when he stole a pass, put a nice move on McKeon and broke in alone to beat Kruegar top shelf at 1:37.

A few minutes later, Gregory came up big again when he turned away a Scott Mattson rush and the subsequent follow-up shots.

Junior forward Joe Cronin sealed the win at 14:17 when he batted home a rebound from the left doorstep.

Two Quincy Wrestlers Qualify For State Tourney

Quincy sophomores Joe Hern (145 pounds) and Mike Murphy (112) finished third and fourth, respectively, at the recent wrestling sectional tournament at Weymouth.

Their performances earned them a trip to the Division I State tournament held last weekend at Lowell High School.

Hern, 19-3 in dual meets this season, finished an impressive fifth place and will serve as an alternate to the All-State tournament this weekend. Murphy, also 19-3 in dual meets, won two matches at the states to finish in the top 8 in his weight class.

"To do this well as sophomores is a great accomplishment, especially considering the work ethic of these two," said coach Lou Venturelli. "I expect that we'll be seeing these two dominate next season."

Quincy (9-14, 1-3) wrapped up its subpar season on a strong note, taking three of its final four matches.

The Presidents finished the season with a 52-12 triumph over North Quincy (2-16, 0-4).

"We're young, but the key is going to be the off-season training, both in the weight room and on the mat," Venturelli said. "I think we have the commitment from this group."

In its eighth straight win over North Quincy, Quincy received wins from captains Ismail Aydogan (152) and Dan Dorsey, juniors Scott Kelley (160), Rory Lydon (heavyweight) and John Alves (171), sophomores Andrew Smith (140), Andrew Cantelli (189) and Murphy, and freshman Jason Chase (103 pounds).

Aydogan (11-1 in dual meets), Kelley (9-6) and Lydon (15-6) contributed to Quincy's success.

Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament Underway

QUINCY KIWANIS (from left) John Nicolson, Aldo Saluti, Win Bettinson and Bob Noble are ready to sell souvenir programs to the club's 27th annual Youth Hockey Tournament which began Monday at Quincy Youth Arena. The week-long tournament features competition in the Mite, Pee Wee, Squirt and Bantam divisions. Proceeds from the souvenir program book, and a prize drawing, benefit Quincy Kiwanis youth charities, including needy and underprivileged children in the local area. The 34-team tournament climaxes with championships in all four divisions Sunday morning and afternoon. Quincy is represented in all four divisions. There are also teams from the South Shore and Greater Boston regions, California, New York, Rhode Island and Maine participating. For more information, call Quincy Youth Arena at 617-479-8371.

Eastern Mass. Soccer Awards Have North Quincy Flavor

There was a distinct North Quincy flavor to the recent Eastern Massachusetts Soccer Coaches Association Awards.

Steven Rochon, a senior striker at North Quincy High School, was named an EMass All-Star for the second straight year. Coach Robert Dano took home the EMass Division I South Coach of the Year honor. John Murphy, originally from Quincy, was named College

Coach of the Year at Assumption.

Rochon finished third in the Old Colony League in scoring and was selected as an OCL All-Star as well as a Ledger All-Scholastic. His 31 career goals is one of the highest in the program.

Dano, coach the last four years, guided the Red Raiders to an 11-6-3 overall record, the best in 15 years, and to their second consecutive tournament appearance, advancing to the South Sectional quarterfinal.

Murphy played at North Quincy and went on to play and coach at Massasoit College before becoming coach of Assumption's men's soccer team. Last season, Assumption had its first winning season since 1978 (10-7-2). Murphy was just recently named the goalkeeper coach for the New England Revolution professional soccer team.

Win, Tie For Mite A Travel Team

The Quincy Mite A travel team picked up a win and a tie in recent Greater Boston Youth Hockey League action.

Quincy bested Charlestown, 7-4, at the Neponset Rink in Dorchester and then skated to a 2-2 tie against Belmont the following day.

Charlestown led Quincy 2-1 after the first period. Andrew Bythrow scored for Quincy. In the second, Quincy continued to press in the offensive zone and received goals from Scott Richardson and Patrick Young. Charlestown also scored to tie the game at 3-3.

Quincy pulled away from Charlestown in the third with four goals. Matt Bridgeman, Brandon Gilmore, Richardson and Doug Haskins tallied. Goalie Steve Baressi and the defense came up big in the final stanza.

Against Belmont, Richardson scored for Quincy in the first as the score was knotted at 1-1. Both teams skated to a scoreless second period.

Chris Brown put Quincy ahead, 2-1, with six minutes left in the third. But Belmont responded quickly and evened the score with less than four minutes left in the game.

Quincy Wrestlers Win Final Three Matches

The Quincy wrestling team wrapped up its subpar season by taking three of its final four matches, including a convincing win over its backyard buddy.

In a quad meet Feb. 5, the Presidents (9-14, 1-3) scored a 37-33 win over St. John's Shrewsbury and a 48-30 win over Duxbury, but missed the sweep with a 54-21 loss to host Haverhill. Three days earlier they crushed the rival Red Raiders, 54-12, led by their upper weight class.

North Quincy (2-16, 0-4) lost to Ashland and host Sharon in a tri-meet to finish its campaign.

In the quad meet, Murphy, Hern and Aydugan had three wins each, and Kelley and Dorsey had two pins to lead the way.

Murphy led Quincy with 26 wins this season, followed by Joe Hern's 25. Lydon was third with 19, and Aydugan finished with an impressive 11-2 record, the team's highest winning percentage.

Foot Notes

Surgeon-Podiatrist

COLD FEET

Whether you enjoy skiing, sledding, ice skating, or simply walking in the snow, your feet need protection during winter activities. Cold weather creates the potential for frostbite, a serious and painful condition that can lead to a loss of toes or fingers. Insulated, waterproof boots or shoes are a key part of outdoor winter attire. Wear socks made of acrylic fibers or an acrylic blend to repel moisture caused by perspiration. Impact and stress can affect feet during winter sports. Skiing's high speeds and the force of gravity place extreme levels of impact trauma on lower extremities. Skating stresses the ankles due to quick turns and stops. Properly fitting ski boots and skates are critical for safe skiing and skating.

Although frostbite is not necessarily a sports injury, it is a condition that can occur to those who participate in outdoor activities. And, one of the best ways to avoid all injuries is to practice preventative care. Don't be sidelined by foot injuries, call us instead at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy. You can't afford to play games with the health of your feet - after all, they are the foundation for your body's mobility. Call us at 617-472-3466 for an appointment.

P.S. A podiatrist can evaluate the fit of ski boots or skates and make recommendations to enhance comfort and performance.

Maddalena DiCesare, 92

Seamstress At Former Mildred's Dress Shop

A funeral Mass for Maddalena DiCesare, 92, of Quincy, a seamstress at the former Mildred's Dress Shop in Quincy for many years, was celebrated Feb. 18 at St. John the Baptist Church, 44 School St.

She died Feb. 15 at home after a long illness.

Born in Harrisburg, Pa., she returned to her family's home in Anversa, Italy, at the age of two and was educated there.

She came back to the United States in 1955 and settled in Quincy where she has lived for the past 44 years.

Wife of the late Francesco DiCesare, she is survived by two daughters, Filomena M. DiPaolo of Quincy and Delia N. Rupp of Braintree; two granddaughters and five great-grandsons.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 1 Kendall Square, Building 600, Cambridge 02139.

Rita M. Paquin, 89

Longtime Member Of Quincy Catholic Club

A funeral Mass for Rita M. (St. Louis) Paquin, 89, of South Yarmouth, formerly of Quincy, was celebrated Feb. 19 at St. John the Baptist Church.

She died Feb. 16.

Mrs. Paquin was active in the Girl Scouts at St. John the Baptist Church; Archbishop Williams High School guild, Braintree; Fontbonne Academy, Milton; and Aquinas Junior College, Milton.

She was a longtime member of the Quincy Catholic Club and a past prefect of St. John the Baptist Church Sodality. She was a Red Cross volunteer driver in the 1950s. While living in South Yarmouth, she was a member of St. Pius the Tenth Church and its guild. She was also a volunteer aide for Christian doctrine at the church.

Born in Brockton, she lived in Quincy for 35 years. She moved to South Yarmouth in 1973.

Wife of the late Henry F. Paquin, she is survived by three sons, Paul H. Paquin of Braintree, John A. Paquin of South Yarmouth and Thomas C. Paquin of Yarmouth Port; two daughters, Elizabeth A. Paquin Smyth of Glenwood, Md., and Celeste Paquin DeVincentis of Chesterfield, Mo.; a brother, Paul St. Louis of West Yarmouth; two sisters, Lilian Ross of Nashua, N.H., and Madeleine Murray of Northampton; 14 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by Dennis Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Edward R. Querzoli, 68

Former Patriot Ledger Managing Editor

A funeral Mass for Edward R. Querzoli of Bridgewater, former managing editor of The Patriot Ledger, will be celebrated Friday at 11 a.m. at St. Thomas Aquinas Church on Center Street.

Mr. Querzoli died Monday at home. He had been ill in recent years with heart disease and cancer.

Well respected by readers, reporters, local officials and fellow editors, Mr. Querzoli was managing editor of The Patriot Ledger from 1974 to 1985.

A native of Bridgewater and the son of first-generation Italian immigrants, he graduated from Bridgewater High School in 1949 and from Boston University in 1953.

Mr. Querzoli began his journalism career as a reporter with the Taunton Gazette and editor of the weekly Bridgewater Keynote. In 1962 he joined the Ledger staff and worked his way up through the ranks of reporter, night editor and city editor before becoming managing editor in 1974.

He was a very religious man who became a eucharistic minister.

A heart condition forced Mr. Querzoli to retire in 1985 as manager editor. That same year, he became the Ledger's first reader representative, listening to questions, complaints and comments about the paper's coverage, and monitoring the newspaper's fairness. He retired a year later.

In his leisure, he enjoyed spending time with his wife and children, and later his 24 grandchildren.

He is survived by his wife, Miriam; five sons, Stephen Querzoli of North Andover, Francis Querzoli of Rockland, Martin Querzoli of Rockland, Edward R. Querzoli Jr. of Quincy and David Querzoli of Bridgewater; eight daughters, Monica Querzoli of Bridgewater, Judith Freymuth of Bridgewater, Christina Chuckran of New Hampshire, Maryclare Querzoli of Charlestown, Miriam Fahey of Halifax, Ellen Gasson of Bridgewater, Joan Querzoli of Bridgewater and Paula Smith of Norton; a sister, Nancy Querzoli of Bridgewater; and 24 grandchildren.

Visiting hours are today (Thursday) from 2 to 4 and 7 p.m. in Prophet Funeral Home, 98 Bedford St. (Routes 18 and 28).

Donations may be made to Hospice of Greater Brockton, 500 Belmont St., Suite 215, Brockton 02301.

O. Donald Gohl, 80

Banking's 'Ambassador Of Goodwill'

A memorial service for O. Donald Gohl, 80, an "ambassador of goodwill" in a banking career spanning 54 years, was held Feb. 19 at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

Mr. Gohl, who lived in Weymouth, died of a heart stoppage Feb. 16 at South Shore Hospital.

At the time of his death he was vice president for customer service at the Bank of Canton Quincy office.

A veteran of World War II, he saw action with the U.S. Marines in the Pacific, including the famed battle for Guadalcanal.

The memorial service, conducted by Rev. William D. Harding, Bethany minister and a close friend of the family, was attended by more than 300 community leaders, banking colleagues, clients and friends.

Mr. Gohl, originally from New Jersey, settled here after he and Helen Davidson of Quincy were married in 1945.

While still in the Marines, he met her at a USO dance here in Quincy where she was a USO volunteer.

He began his banking career in 1946 as a teller at Quincy Savings Bank, remaining there 32 years and advancing to branch manager and vice president.

He then served 20 years with the Quincy Cooperative Bank where he became branch administrator and vice president. In two years under him, the branch grew from a $2 million to $10 million operation. That bank eventually became part of US Trust. In 1998, Mr. Gohl joined Bank of Canton.

O. DONALD GOHL

His famed trademark was making house calls to elderly clients which he started in the 1950s. He often balanced their checkbooks, gave them financial advice and performed other tasks like taking their grocery shopping or to medical or dentist appointments.

A native of Wilmington, Del., he attended Wake Forest University and was a graduate of the American Institute of Banking where he later taught, and a graduate of the Rutgers University School of Banking.

A singer and dancer, he entertained at nursing homes and raised funds for the Boy Scouts, and other civic and charitable causes. He was also active in the Quincy Rotary Club.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a son, Robert Gohl of Plymouth; a daughter, Diane Dumont of South Weymouth; a sister, June Gohl of New Jersey; and three grandchildren.

Burial was in the National Cemetery at Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations may be made to Boy Scouts of America, Old Colony Council, 2438 Washington St., Canton, MA 02021.

WE'RE FIGHTING FOR YOUR LIFE

A Thought For The Week

WHAT IS MATURITY? Many quotes come to mind... "When you can sense your concern for others outweighing your concern for yourself." "A frank acceptance of barren realities." "Implies otherness... the art of living with."... One of the best we have come across is by Dr. William C. Menninger. He said that the criteria of emotional maturity are:

- Having the ability to deal constructively with reality.
- Having the capacity to adapt to change.
- Having a relative freedom from symptoms that are produced by tensions and anxieties.
- Having the capacity to relate to other people in a consistent manner with mutual satisfaction and helpfulness.
- Having the capacity to sublimate, to direct one's instinctive hostile energy into creative and constructive outlets.
- Having the capacity to love.
- Having the capacity to find more satisfaction in giving than in receiving.

We at Deware would like to thank the many readers who have taken the time to phone us or write us about these articles. It is most appreciated...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) People seem to be dragging their feet in making a decision involving a loan, a job, a house or another current event in your life. Be patient.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Someone may call you stubborn, but your bullish determination to stick with your instinct is right on the mark. Stick with your decision.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Get up. Get out. Get going. This is the time you've been waiting for to put some of your plans in motion. Positive action also benefits your sometimes-neglected relationships with family and friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A piece of property becomes the center of a distressing dispute with a loved one. An outsider offers advice on a compromise that could prevent a painful breakup. Be flexible in making your decision.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might have to choose between repaying a loan that's long-overdue or losing a friend who's been close to you for many years. Someone else is watching to see what you decide to do.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A longtime relationship will wind up on the endangered species list unless you're willing to work hard to save it. Those who insist it's not worth your time have their own agendas in mind.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A change in your work status leaves you feeling unappreciated. Your inclination is to exit rather than accept it. But it would be wiser to see how things develop before taking drastic action.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Stop hibernating and get out more if you hope to shed those late-winter blues. Being with people you like brings light and warmth back into your life.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Playing games with someone else's emotions isn't appreciated. What you see as playful teasing is perceived as painful evasion.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone brings painful reminders of a tragic loss. It'll be difficult, but you need to face him to help yourself come to terms with still-unresolved questions about the past.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) The time is favorable for doing things that you've put off for too long. A message carries the promise of new or renewed romance. A health report brings good news about a loved one.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) There's a tendency to spread yourself too thin when trying to meet all the demands on your good nature. Focus on a few worthy efforts instead of dissipating your energy on trying to please everyone.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: Your loving nature often impels you to look out for others before you consider your own needs. You have a gift for teaching and a deep appreciation of nature. You love to garden, even if space limits you to tending plants on a window ledge.

Flexible Mortgages Realize The 'American Dream'

ers to obtain a higher loan amount.

The 40/40 Gold Program allows borrowers to apply as much as 40 percent (instead of the customary 36 percent) of their income toward their total indebtedness. Total indebtedness includes the proposed housing payment (principal, interest, property taxes, homeowner's insurance, and mortgage insurance, if applicable) and all other consumer debt. If the borrowers have no other debt, such as credit cards or auto loan payments, they can apply this same 40 percent of their gross income to their housing payment alone. Normally, borrowers can spend only up to 28 percent of their gross income for their housing payment.

• VA Loans. The federal government allows any buyer who is a qualified veteran to obtain a mortgage of up to $203,000 with zero downpayment. The Veterans Administration loan is the only mortgage available that requires no money down and can be assumed by another party once the property is sold. It also allows the veteran to dedicate a larger portion of his or her income toward indebtedness.

• FHA Loans. The Federal Housing Administration offers a federally insured mortgage with as little as 3 percent for a downpayment, and allows a portion of the closing costs to be financed into the loan. Although you need not be a first-time home buyer to apply for a loan through the FHA, many first-time home buyers use this program because of the low costs involved in obtaining the loan, and the leniency offered when reviewing credit and indebtedness.

• FHA 203(k) Renovation Loan. The FHA offers a terrific program for buyers who want to renovate a home to suit their needs or tastes. Once again, the borrower need not be a first-time home buyer to apply for this loan, but many customers who utilize the benefits of this program are, in fact, buying their first home.

The reason for this is that the program allows the borrower to buy a property that may need renovation and to add the cost of the work into the loan amount, all while observing the same leniency offered with other FHA loans.

Very often, the borrowers find that by financing with the 203(k) Renovation Loan, the cost of purchasing and renovating the property is less than had they purchased a similar property already improved. The scope of the work can range from major rehab to minor improvements, such as updating a kitchen, finishing a basement or modernizing a home's systems.

These are just a few examples of how the mortgage industry has become sensitive to the needs of the first-time home buyer on the national level. Conway Financial Services can also offer our customers a variety of first-time buyer programs made available through local portfolio lenders. Let one of our mortgage specialists prequalify you for one of these great programs in person, or sometimes right over the telephone, free of charge.

Harold Seeks Local Control At Shipyard

competing interests involved in the shipyard—federal, state, city, and private lenders—who would be looking to get back some of the money lent. "The EDIC would be seen as an independent developer with the sole mission of industrial development for profit," said Harold. "That would be an attraction for creditors who otherwise might want to sell off the pieces."

Harold said the EDIC would have seven directors named by Mayor James Sheets and approved by the council. The mayor and the council would also be necessary to approve the EDIC's economic development plan or exercise any eminent domain powers.

As an entity separate from the city, the EDIC would have the authority to borrow money and issue revenue bonds and could apply for and receive state and federal grants. The corporation would not pay taxes, but would pay, in lieu of taxes, an amount agreed upon with the city.

According to Harold, the EDIC option has been used successfully in both Boston and Lynn.

Said Harold:

"This is the best strategy based upon conversations I've had at the state and federal level and also with local banking institutions. Hopefully, we can answer some questions before they're asked."

As a Home Rule Petition, the measure would require both city and state approval.

Quincy Resident Rescued After Fishing Boat Sinks

The U.S. Coast Guard rescued five fishermen, one a Quincy resident and ship captain, Sunday morning after their 90-foot trawler sank off the coast of Maine.

Zenon Gogola of Quincy, the owner and captain of the Jessica Anne, was rescued along with four crewmates after his boat struck an object under the water.

The crew donned their survival suits and abandoned ship after the boat began taking on water at approximately 4 a.m. They lit rescue flares which were spotted on both sea and land.

The crew floated in their life raft for two hours before the Coast Guard rescue.

There were no injuries. Gogola could not be reached for comment as of press time.

Interfaith Social Services Expanding Counseling Program

Interfaith Social Services (ISS) is expanding its New Directions Counseling program to include therapeutic support groups.

This type of therapy provides education, support and a group process where individuals can grow emotionally and begin to resolve issues. Support groups presently being developed will focus on the following issues: Despair of Infertility, Miscarriage and Grief, Emotional Barriers to Weight Loss, Parents of Adolescents, Life After Divorce, and Adoption — Waiting for Your Child.

Claire Hagan, R.N., M.Ed., a support group facilitator for more than 10 years will lead the groups at ISS. As a mental health professional and registered nurse, Hagan says "the understanding and support of group members having gone through similar experiences can be therapeutic; the sharing of ideas, philosophies and coping skills has proven benefits in dealing with change." Based on interest, the support groups will meet once a week for eight weeks, will be open to both men and women and offered at a modest fee.

Interfaith Social Services is a private, non-profit, non-sectarian agency located at 776 Hancock St., Quincy. For more than 50 years, it has provided services to children, adults, and seniors living on the South Shore. New Directions Counseling, a program of ISS, has been offering individual and family therapy since 1982.

For more information or to inquire about a support group call 617-773-6203.

TRAVELING TOUR-STYLE

Traveling with a tour group no longer means sitting on a bus for hours and being restricted by a tight schedule. Tours can provide a flexible, interesting and cost-effective way to travel. Fly/drive tours, designed for the traveler who seeks flexibility, include round-trip airfare, a rental car and a coupon book to use for lodging during your trip. For the traveler who wants to totally relax, escorted package tours include transportation, lodging, meals and sightseeing trips. In between these two types of tours are several variations. Travel agents generally do not get involved with details of the tour after booking it for you, but they can help lead you to a tour operator that will fit your needs.

If you've never taken a group tour, you don't know what you're missing. Group tours are a great way to first experience foreign places. This method of travel can then pave the way for future visits with more in-depth itineraries. At PRIME TRAVEL, we have built our reputations in the travel business handling group programs, from small family reunions to large corporate incentive trips. You can feel confident entrusting your group travel program to our capable staff at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay, PH: 617-472-3697.

Who Will Do What, When And How? Foreclosure Puts Shipyard's Future High In The Air

By CRAIG SALTERS

In the wake of Friday's takeover by the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD), local officials are again trying to answer the question: What will become of the Fore River Shipyard?

Mayor James Sheets, who admitted disappointment at Massachusetts Heavy Industries' (MHI) inability to complete financing on the project, remained upbeat and said the 135-acre site was still an attractive shipyard and that, regardless of use, it could be on the tax rolls as early as next year.

Council President Paul Harold said MHI's default on its $55 million loan was not much of a surprise and urged the creation of a local redevelopment authority and possible mixed-use for the site.

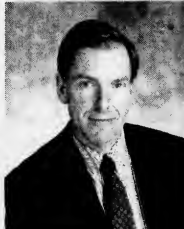

The mayor favors the use of Quincy 2000 for the same purpose.

iel Raymondi, in whose ward the shipyard is located, expressed disappointment as well but emphasized the very tangible improvements made not only to the shipyard but to the surrounding community.

Whatever use or plan is finally adopted for the yard, it must now be approved by MARAD, who paid in-full Fleet National Bank's loan to MHI Friday and foreclosed on MHI in the process. The foreclosure ended MHI's five-year ownership of the shipyard, a tenure marked with delays, cost overruns, contract disputes, and defaults on several loan payments.

Sheets said two reasons for his optimism were the substantial value added to the shipyard in the last five years and MARAD's incentive to develop the property. "All MARAD wants is their money back," Sheets explained. "So either MARAD will sell the assets and the yard or they will sell the machinery and then the real estate. If that were to happen, the yard could then be developed commercially for the first time since 1987.

"I will speak to the MARAD officials and indicate to them that we very much want to be a part of whatever decision they

Shea Expects Over 52% Turnout March 7 Heavy Vote Seen For Primaries

A heavy vote reminiscent of 1980 when Quincy helped send Ronald Reagan to the White House, is seen here for next Tuesday's Presidential Primaries.

City Clerk Joseph Shea is forecasting a 52-54 percent turnout of the city's now 51,775 registered voters.

She is basing his prediction of local interest in the election in general, and in Arizona Senator John McCain in particular as evidenced by voters of party affiliations.

Since the city election last November, some 855 registered voters have crossed political lines, most of them Democrats to unenrolled status (554) and to Republican (91).

The name being mentioned most often by those switching is McCain's.

This year's Republican ballot has six candidates: listed but only three are still running: George W. Bush, Alan Keyes and McCain.

Sample Ballots, Polling Places
Pages 12-13

Gary Bauer, Steve Roberts and Orrin Hatch have dropped out but there names remain on the ballot.

On the Democrat ballot are Vice President Al Gore, former Senator Bill Bradley and Lyndon LaRouche, Jr.

Quincy's 30 voting precincts will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Shea doesn't expect the final results until after 10 p.m.

This year's Democrat and Republican ballot line-ups are not as dynamic as back in 1980.

But Shea says, that same

Quincy Sun Price Is Now 40 Cents

As announced last week, the price of The Quincy Sun is 40 cents beginning with this March 2 issue.

The five-cent increase is for copies of The Sun sold at newsstands and delivered to homes by news carriers.

The yearly mail subscriptions were increased in January and are not affected by this new rate.

At 40 cents, the price of The Sun is still lower than that of most weekly newspapers in the South Shore and New England areas.

As we noted last week, we regret the increase, which is our first in several years.

But rising production and other increased costs force us to make this adjustment.

Again we want to say we are most grateful to our loyal readers and advertisers, many of whom have been with us since our very first issue in September, 1968, encouraging and supporting us these nearly 32 years in our proud role as "Historic Quincy's Hometown Weekly Newspaper."

We hope you understand the adjustment from 35 to 40 cents that is effective with this issue.

Thank you, sincerely,

Backs Raymondi Home Rule Petition Sheets Declares 'Aggressive' Open Space Initiative

By CRAIG SALTERS

Mayor James Sheets is endorsing a proposed motel/hotel tax as part of Project Prosper, the mayor's new initiative for "aggressive open space acquisition."

Under the plan, the mayor hopes to "begin significant acquisition proceedings as soon as June 1" of this year.

"For the first time, we have available to us a revenue stream that can be committed to the acquisition of open space and also the improvement of our beaches and shoreline," Sheets told The Sun Tuesday.

At ceremonies Tuesday afternoon at Pageant Field in Merrymount Park, the mayor proposed a timeline for Project Prosper, which stands for "Protection of Open Space Parcels and the Enhancement of Recreational areas."

The timeline calls for the city council and the state Legislature to pass by late Spring a Home Rule Petition proposed earlier this year by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

That Home Rule Petition would create a local occupancy tax on all city motels and hotels for the creation of an Open Space Fund, 90 percent of which would go to the preservation of open space and public beaches and 10 percent of which would go towards assisting tourism.

Raymondi, who attended the ceremonies and received special thanks from the mayor, said he was pleased the mayor was supportive of his proposal.

If passed, a one percent occupancy tax would go into effect in 2001 and gradually increase to the maximum four percent by 2004.

With those anticipated funds in mind, Sheets has requested the Open Space Committee to submit by May 1 an inventory of all parcels of land the city

Foot Notes

by Dr. Richard A. Hacker
 Surgeon-Podiatrist

PREGNANCY & YOUR FEET

A woman's body goes through tremendous change during pregnancy, and the feet do not escape the transformation. The feet can grow by a half size or more during pregnancy. Hormones that are released to relax the pelvic area also loosen the foot ligaments. In addition, the extra weight a woman carries lowers her arches, adding further to foot length and width. Many women do not notice the gradual changes, while others resist them because they perceive that a smaller shoe size is better. But wearing too-tight shoes weakens the muscles in the ball of the foot and the ligaments that keep the toes straight. These conditions can lead to various foot problems, including corns, ingrown nails and bunions. A mother-to-be's hard working feet deserve to be pampered with kindness and attention to their smallest aches and pains. In the long run, mother and child will both be grateful for it. Here at 110 West Squantum St., No. Quincy, we deal with all kinds of foot problems, whether they're caused by pregnancy, stress, injury, disease or hereditary conditions. Call us when you need treatment or preventive care at 617-472-3466. We'll respond with quality, compassionate foot care for the family.

P.S. Make sure shoes do not rub against you uncomfortably and that they are roomy enough to allow a finger's width between its tip and the big toe.

CPAAA Raises $3,800 To Bring 'Bak' Here New Special Police Dog From Czechoslovakia Ready For Duty March 20

A new four-legged Quincy police "recruit" will soon be hitting the streets thanks to a successful fund-raising effort by the Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association.

"Bak," a 17-month-old German shepherd from Czechoslovakia, and Officer Scott Smith are in a 16-week training program. Officer Smith is a 12-year veteran of the Quincy Police Department and was formerly assigned as a motor cycle officer in the Special Operations Unit.

They will be on the street March 20. The pair will be assigned to the Special Operations Unit.

Bak is being trained in obedience tracking and bit work. Later, the police dog will be trained in drug searching.

To bring Bak to Quincy, the Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association raised $3,800 through a prize drawing. The fundraising event was co-chaired by Terry LaBelle and Betty Straughn.

The Citizen Police Academy Alumni Association is a 65-member volunteer organization. Members have graduated from a 10-week Citizen Police Academy.

The organization was formed in January, 1995 and has volunteered more than 5,000 hours to the police department and community. The CPAAA has assisted in child safety, fingerprinting youngsters, bicycle rodeos, National Night Out, and other police sponsored programs.

Over the past five years, the CPAAA has purchased a hand-held radar unit for the Traffic Bureau and water life saving devices for each cruiser that patrols waterfront areas. They have also purchased finger print kits for the child safety programs, photo equipment for the Community Policing Unit, in collaboration with Midas Muffler, gave four child seats for police cruisers.

They have also made cash donations to the D.A.R.E. program, the Quincy Fire Department's thermal imaging helmet drive, and the First Parish Church Project. They were instrumental in acquiring the Fatal Vision Goggles which are used in the Department Drunk Driving Program.

"BAK," 17-month-old German shepherd police dog, is welcomed to the Quincy Police Department by (clockwise from bottom left) Officer Scott Smith, Betty Straughn and Terry LaBelle of the Quincy Police Academy Alumni Association and Chief Thomas Frane. Bak (pronounced "Bach") will be assigned to the department's Special Operations Unit after he completes training March 20.

Citizens Police Academy To Start March 16

Chief Thomas Frane announces the Quincy Police Department is again offering the Citizen Police Academy program to residents.

The next Citizen Police Academy will begin March 16 and run through May 25.

The 11-week program will meet at the Quincy Police Academy, 1 Sea St., on Thursday evenings from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Topics include: Domestic Violence, Criminal Law, Search and Seizure, Criminal Investigations, Patrol Procedures, Self Defense, Crime Scene Investigation, Weapons and Tactics, and much more.

Those selected for the program will participate in a four-hour ride along with a police officer as well as a trip to the gun range to fire police weapons.

Over the past years, the department has received many applications for the 35 available seats in this program. Applicants must be at least 21 years of age and be registered voters in the city of Quincy. Applications are available at the front desk of Quincy Police Headquarters.

For more information, contact the Project Director, Officer Bob Hanna, at 745-5719.

Fed up with bank mergers?

Switch to "Practically-Free Checking" from Colonial Federal Savings Bank

Galvin Urges Residents To Fill Out, Return U.S. Census Forms

Secretary of the Commonwealth, William Galvin is urging cities and towns across the state to aggressively promote the upcoming federal census on Primary Day, Tuesday, March 7.

In a statewide mailing to city and town clerks, Galvin sent hundreds of posters urging the public to fill out and return their Census Forms by April 1.

"In 1990, Massachusetts lost millions of dollars and one important seat in Congress to other states," said Galvin, the Massachusetts Census 2000 Liaison.

Census totals reduced the Massachusetts Congressional delegation from 12 to 11 members in 1980 and from 11 to 10 members in 1990.

This is a joint partnership with the U.S. Census Bureau and the Secretary of the Commonwealth.

"We appreciate the efforts of Secretary Galvin in helping the people of Massachusetts understand the importance of Census 2000," said Arthur G. Dukakis, Regional Director for the U.S. Census Bureau in Boston.

The posters: "Census 2000: Don't Be Missed" is a reminder that each person not counted in the census will cost Massachusetts money and politically.

"Now it's Census 2000. We must all fight hard for our fair share of federal dollars and [political] representation for the next ten years," said Galvin.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL.

On March 1, 1692, the Salem Witch Hunt begins when Sarah Goode, Sarah Osborne and Tituba, an Indian slave from Barbados, are charged with the illegal practice of witchcraft ... On Feb. 29, 1736, the founder of the United Society of Believers in Christ's Second Appearing, a Christian group commonly known as the Shakers, is born in Manchester, England ... On March 5, 1770, the Boston Massacre begins when a mob of Patriots gathers at the Royal Exchange building, also known as the Customs House, and begins taunting the British soldiers guarding the building ... On March 4, 1789, the first session of the U.S. Congress is held in New York City as the U.S. Constitution takes effect ... On March 2, 1807, the U.S. Congress passes an act to "prohibit the importation of slaves into any port or place within the jurisdiction of the United States ... from any foreign kingdom, place, or country." ... On March 3, 1863, the U.S. Congress passes a conscription act that would lead to the first wartime draft of U.S. citizens in American history ... On March 3, 1931, President Herbert Hoover signs a congressional act making "The Star-Spangled Banner" the official national anthem of the United States ... On March 1, 1932, Charles Lindbergh Jr., the 20-month-old son of Charles A. Lindbergh, the famous American aviator who made the first solo, nonstop trans-Atlantic flight in 1927, is kidnapped from the nursery of the Lindbergh home in Hopewell, N.J. ... On March 5, 1953, Joseph Stalin, who became the leader of the Soviet Union after Vladimir Lenin's death in 1924, dies of a cerebral hemorrhage at the age of 73 ... On Feb. 28, 1993, in Waco, Texas, agents of the U.S. Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) launch a raid against the Branch Davidian compound, beginning an extended gun battle.

'The McCain Shuffle'

It has been what you might call "The McCain Shuffle."

Some 855 Quincy registered voters have switched party affiliations for next Tuesday's Massachusetts Presidential Primaries.

And, the biggest benefactor appears to be Arizona Senator John McCain in his bid for the Republican nomination.

McCain

This has been a Democratic stronghold since the coming of John Kennedy but the largest cross-over was among Democrats: 645 of them switched, 554 to unenrolled and 91 to Republican.

Only 89 Republicans changed horses: 67 to unenrolled and 22 to Democrat.

And, 121 unenrolled declared themselves Democrats or Republicans: 70 as Democrats, 51 as Republicans.

The unenrolled didn't have to switch. They could have voted either as a Democrat or Republican by merely taking one ballot or the other next Tuesday.

They would technically be a Democrat or Republican at the moment but could change right back to unenrolled status if they desired by filling out a registration card available at the polling place.

The 855 voters switched between last Dec. 1 and Feb. 17, the deadline for registering for the March 7 Massachusetts Primaries.

So is this crossing over any kind of barometer of what to expect next week?

City Election Department staffers can't recall as much switching in recent years. They think there was more of it this year than back in 1980 when Ronald Reagan was courting Reagan Democrats.

The name mentioned most by those changing over was McCain's. They made no bones about the fact they were switching to vote for him.

"I'm voting for McCain," one man waiting in line to change was telling the man standing next to him when a third walked by, overheard him and said: "You've got that right."

One of the Election Department staffers said: "McCain seems to have energized voters."

And it wasn't only with many of those changing party affiliation.

A few registering to vote for the first time -- including middle-aged and over -- were talking up McCain.

Tex as Gov. George Bush's name was seldom heard. And those switching to or registering Democrat weren't saying whether they intended to vote for Vice President Al Gore or Bill Bradley.

McCain's name just seemed to keep popping up. Maybe the fact he started out as an underdog against all that early Bush money helped attract a following here. Maybe they like what he has to say. And maybe they think he's the best bet to clean out the Clinton White House.

The fact he has his Massachusetts campaign headquarters here in Quincy (1550 Hancock St.) is helping him here, too. None of the other Presidential candidates even have a local office here.

The Bush people downplay Democrats switching over to Republican to vote for McCain.

Those Democrats, they contend, are meddling in the Republican primary and only want to get McCain nominated because they feel he would be easier for Gore (or Bradley) to defeat in November.

That may be whistling by the cemetery.

QUINCY IS ASSURED of having two state committee women and one state committeeman elected in the Norfolk-Plymouth District next Tuesday.

On the Democrat side incumbents Sheriff Michael Bellotti and Bernice Mader, administrative aide to Mayor James Sheets, are running unopposed.

Geraldine Harold Sharkey and Judy Folsom Roberts, both of Quincy, are the only two candidates for the open Republican state committeewoman seat.

The seat was held by Stephanie Bradley of Braintree who has moved out of the district.

Sharkey is chairwoman of the Ward 4 GOP Committee and a cousin of City Council President Paul Harold.

Roberts is a member of the Ward 2 Republican Committee. Her husband, Mark, ran for the Ward 2 city council seat a few years ago.

And, there's a Quincy connection to the contest for Republican state committeeman. Incumbent Darrin McAuliffe of Braintree, was a long-time Quincy resident. His opponent is Alexander Mann of Holbrook.

Also on the ballot are ward committee candidates, Democrat and Republican, in each of the city's six wards.

A COCKTAIL RECEPTION

for Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott is set for Wednesday, March 8, 6 to 8 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd. Tickets are $50 per person. For tickets or more information, call the McDermott Committee at 471-3366.

MILESTONE: School Committeewoman Christine

Cedrone isn't afraid of telling her age.

She turned a pretty 30 this week. Christine has a couple of more big dates coming up: On May 26 she will graduate from the New England Law School. And, in November, 2001 she and Vin Scarnici will be married.

Congratulations on all three dates, Christine.

GOOD FRIEND Charlie Sweeney, former school committeeman and a member of the Quincy Board of Registrars, is home and on the mend after a two-week stay at the Quincy Medical Center for injuries suffered in a fall on stairs at his home.

He's feeling good enough to resume his early morning walks at the Plaza.

"I'm taking it easy," he says. "But I'm getting there."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1950 postcard view of the Northway Service Station on the corner of Hancock and Hunt Streets next to North Quincy high School. The postcard was mailed to local residents encouraging them to have their car winterized here. The Tydol brand name and the 'Flying A' logo have been lost in the big-oil company mergers. The power car wash on the left was known as the 'Washmobile' and it cost $1.50 for an exterior wash, which was not cheap considering that gas was only about 12 cents a gallon 50 years ago. On the right was Richard Barry's Insurance office. Today this corner is the site of a D'Angelo Sandwich Shop.

READERS FORUM

Concerned About Wollaston Manor

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
On Feb. 3, Virginia Kelley of HUD met with the tenants of 91 Clay St. to discuss the plans and future of the residence.

We, the tenants, appreciate the efforts but feel we are in the dark as to what is really going on.

We would like to have some representation on our part to protect us, along this move, whatever it may be.

We would like to thank Mayor Sheets for attending the meeting and his concern. The actions we have seen throughout the years, as a matter of expression, "People just being put out in the cold."

We would like any and all information on these matters as soon as they are available.

Patrick Smyth
Wollaston Manor

Proud Of His Quincy High School Students

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Thomas Jefferson said that a little rebellion now and then is good for the republic. If he only could have been at the Federal Courthouse on Boston's Rowes Wharf on Jan. 29. On this day, 18 Quincy High School students from my political science class competed in a statewide contest to judge whether or not their knowledge of the Bill of Rights and Constitution would enable them to beat seven other schools and compete in Washington, D.C., and maybe meet the President.

Thanks to a grant from the Friends of Quincy High, the students worked for over two months in preparation for an intense round of hearings to determine whether or not they could convince a panel of judges that they not only understood what our Founding Fathers said, but could apply it to real life.

Inside the $40 million dollar courthouse lavished with walnut paneled rooms, carpeted floors, and vaulted ceilings, students like Chase Clarke, Allison Jones, and Patrick Delval used examples like the Wollaston Beach and Blacks Creek cleanup efforts to describe how citizens had a civic responsibility to help their communities. In fact, these three individuals won their overall unit which was based on the idea of civic virtue and citizenship. In addition, junior Delval observed, "I believe that the presence of Quincy High added a whole new aspect to the competition because we were one of the only multicultural groups present."

As the groups prepared their positions on the Bill of Rights, for some it was the first time speaking in front of a panel of judges in such a competitive setting. Junior Michelle Shea added, "It was intimidating because of the judges and the other schools. I learned how to speak in front of people when I was nervous." Over lunch at South Station, the students felt satisfied that they had the opportunity to use their knowledge outside of the classroom and see what it's like to practice citizenship.

"It's all about team effort," said senior Aivy Lau.

A Message For The Candidates

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Would somebody tell Hillary Clinton that the aborted children will never, in all eternity, become "healthy adults."

Would somebody tell Vice President Gore and Senator Bradley that an aborted American boy will never grow to adulthood and be able to run for the American Presidency.

Would somebody tell Senator McCain that an aborted girl will never grow to adulthood and face a dilemma to abort or not her child conceived by rape!

Would somebody tell Senator McCain and Governor Bush to ask an unborn child, aboy or girl, conceived by rape or incest: "Do you agree with the American, highly civilized "moral code" that a mother should have the right to decide whether to kill (abort) or let live such a child thus conceived?"

Officials Tour Quarries For New Dump Site

By PAUL HAROLD

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert and Councillor George McDonald toured the quarry district looking for an appropriate site for a new city dump.

The tour came following a request of McDonald, the Ward 4 councillor who represented the district where most of the quarries were located, that the Hitchcock and Djerf quarries be closed. He noted that they had reached near capacity and their continued use created a nuisance for the neighbors.

The quarries looked at for future city use included Lower Fallon, Faulkner's, Field and Wilde, the last two privately owned.

YARRINGTON BOOSTS HIGH RISE

George Yarrington, executive director of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, told the Kiwanis Club that the city should rezone certain prime Residence B areas to Residence D for high rise development.

Yarrington said that modern high-rise apartments were the best way to expand the city's tax base. "This is the most fertile field for new construction in today's real estate market yet the investors are forced to pass by Quincy simply because our zoning does not allow for the construction of high rise apartments," he said.

Yarrington was introduced to the Kiwanis meeting at the YMCA by Walter Martinson.

MERRYMOUNT PARK NIKE SITE CLOSED

The Army officially closed its Nike site at Merrymount Park this week, reassigning the 80 men and 11 officers to Ft. Banks in Winthrop.

The site now came under the command of Col. William Quirey, the commanding officer at Ft. Banks.

While there were no plans for the future ownership or use of the site, it was speculated that it would be taken over by the National Guard.

Maria Droste Benefit Fashion Show March 23

The Sisters of the Good Shepherd's Maria Droste Agency is partnering with Talbots to present a fashion-show fundraiser Thursday, March 23, from 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. at Lantana's in Randolph.

The Hingham based fashion retailer, known for its tradition of well mannered dressing, will present a collection suitable for many ages and several styles.

The clothes will be modeled by women from Quincy and other communities of the South Shore who have volunteered their services to the fundraiser.

The event promises "an evening of fashion, friends, and food" to both benefit the Maria Droste Agency and highlight new fashions for spring.

The Maria Droste Agency has served as a community counseling service since it opened in Quincy Center in 1992. The agency is staffed and operated by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd and several professional, clinically certified volunteers. It provides support services to individuals, couples, and families.

Director Sister Joanne Westwater, LICSW, ACSW, BCD and her clinicians have provided hundreds of counseling hours serving clients as young as five years of age and as senior as 75 years of age. An adjustable fee scale is based on their client's ability to pay. This affordability is made possible through the generosity of community supporters and fund raising activities like the fashion-show fundraiser.

Anne Howley is chairperson of the event.

For more information about the agency, tickets, or the event call (617) 471-5686.

Irish Program For N.Q. Catholic Women

The Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy will meet Thursday, March 9 at 7 p.m.

John's Garlic & Oil Pasta

It was one of the balmy nights, (25 degrees) and my husband and I were heading out after dinner to shop. Before we went out, I wanted to bring a piece of my brother John's favorite cake to him, so we headed up to his house. He and his wife Anita ended up by going with us to shop.

After that we ended up at their house for coffee and dessert. We never escape a night without discussing some sort of a new recipe. Here is John's different version of a classic pasta with garlic and oil. (ailio-oilio) as I think is the Italian spelling

John's Garlic & Oil Pasta

1/2 pound linguine (or favorite pasta)
3-4 tablespoons olive oil
2-3 garlic cloves (chopped)
1 cup plain breadcrumbs grated romano cheese

In the hot oil, sauté the garlic and breadcrumbs turning frequently so that they don't burn. Set aside.

After the pasta is cooked, place in a serving dish and sprinkle with the grated cheese, and then top it with the breadcrumb mixture. Different and delicious!

NQHS Course Selection Process To Start March 7

The course selection process for grades 9, 10, and 11 at North Quincy High School will begin Tuesday, March 7.

Students will be instructed in the process by the Guidance Staff and will have input and recommendations from department heads and their teachers.

Students and parents are encouraged to read the program of Studies and Course Description booklets, which students will receive and bring home, and participate with the students in making informed choices on the course selection sheets.

Those with questions about the process may call their child's guidance counselor at 984-8747.

Deadline to return the course selection sheet signed by student and parent is Thursday, March 16.

East 182nd Street Film At First Parish Church

Delahunt Urges Veterans' Families To Check On VA Insurance Money

Congressman William Delahunt urges relatives of military veterans to take simple steps to determine whether they may be owed money by the US Veterans Administration (VA).

Delahunt said the federal agency owes sums of money -- totaling more than $34 million - to beneficiaries of VA life insurance policies whom the agency has been unable to locate.

The money owed represents insurance proceeds, dividend checks and premium refunds that were originally mailed to policyholders and beneficiaries and later returned to the VA as undeliverable. The VA holds these funds indefinitely, in hopes of locating the policyholders.

Delahunt urged anyone wondering about the status of a VA insurance claim to pursue the matter on-line, through a website -- <http://www.vba.va.gov> -- which contains a database of specific individuals to whom more than $34 million is owed. For policies purchased after 1995, the

WILLIAM DELAHUNT

VA will also pay accrued interest on the unclaimed benefits.

"It takes just a few minutes to see whether the VA has been trying to mail you a check -- perhaps a sizable one," Delahunt said, adding that he will post a link to this service in his own congressional website at www.house.gov/delahunt.

In addition to encouraging veterans' families to check for unclaimed checks, Delahunt urged local veterans to update the VA about address or status changes, to ensure their survivors ultimately receive the benefits to which they are entitled.

Delahunt also cautioned that the VA insurance obligations are not related to a recurring "VA dividend" hoax, which involves inaccurate rumors about a "special dividend" on government life insurance for all veterans.

The relevant policies were issued under these programs (and their policy numbers begin with these letters): US Government Life (K); National Service Life Insurance (N or V); Veterans Special Life Insurance (RS or W); and Veterans Reopened Insurance (I, JR. or JS).

Beneficiaries without internet access can pursue unclaimed benefits by calling the Veterans Administration toll-free at 1-800-669-8477. The office address is: VA Regional Office and Insurance Center, Attn: Unclaimed Funds (292 O/C), PO Box 42954, Philadelphia, PA 19101.

Steakhouse Restaurant Planned At Former TV Site

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board voted to continue a decision regarding the opening of a new restaurant in Quincy-- Outback Steakhouse until March 14.

Addressing the board at Tuesday's meeting, Atty. Robert Fleming, representing the owners of the steakhouse said the 8,000 square foot restaurant would be at the site of the former MediaOne on School Street and seat about 245 persons. He added that there would be from 130 to 150 parking spaces available.

Fleming showed the plans for the renovation of the building with hopes of opening sometime this summer.

Chairman Joseph Shea told Fleming he had received a letter from Rev. Peter Quinn, pastor of St. John's Church, who was concerned about the parking.

Shea suggested that board members meet with Father Quinn and Jack Gillan, the city's engineer. He added that Ward 3 Councilor Pat McDermott, who could not attend Tuesday's meeting, called and said he wanted more of a chance to talk to the owners.

In discussing the history of outback steakhouses, Fleming told the board that they were developed in 1987 in Tampa and have now 600 restaurants nationwide and are in 10 countries.

He said that the eatery would not be open for lunch, just for dinners every night of the week, noting that the owners have a history of creating a casual and friendly atmosphere, and are community oriented.

Fleming said with the opening of such a restaurant, it will bring people down town at night and maybe various shops will open thereafter.

The restaurant will have an Australian theme suggesting a rustic Australian outback, with memorabilia, boomerangs, surfboards, maps and flags.

He said the manager Vin Vidello of Norwood, as all other managers of outback steakhouses own a part of the business, so that they would be more attentive, efficient, well-trained and service-oriented.

He said the menu would feature uniquely-seasoned steaks, prime rib, chops, ribs, chicken, seafood and pasta.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said his concern was the odor stemming from the cooking of the steak etc. However, Fleming said the equipment the steakhouse has is "state of the art" and that they do not feature a wood fired grill, but instead cook with gas.

Gorman said he thought the only concern about parking as far as St. John's Church was concerned was at the 4 o'clock Mass on Saturdays.

Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Business Center Professional Association, said the opening of the steakhouse would "add another choice for fine dining that we can experience". She added that Quincy was becoming a "mecca for eating places."

Reiterating her statements was Michael Rie, economic development director of Quincy, 2000, who said they were "excited" about the restaurant coming to Quincy.

Kevin Harron, owner of the steakhouse assured the board that when meeting with Father Quinn he would listen to the issues and show him that they will be responsible citizens, a good neighbor, and said he thought the meeting will be "more positive than negative".

The 8,000 square foot restaurant would be open Monday through Thursday from 4 to 10:30 p.m.; Fridays from 4 to 11:30 p.m.; Saturdays from 3 to 11:30 p.m. and on Sundays from 3 to 10:30 p.m.

Fleming said the only other tenants in the building will be the small beauty salon that is already there and medical offices on the second floor.

QHS Students Visit McCain Headquarters

Quincy High School students took a recent field trip to Sen. John McCain's state campaign headquarters at 1550 Hancock St. to see primary politics up close and personal.

The seven students, juniors and seniors in teacher Stephen Dexter's political science course, observed McCain volunteers as they geared up for the Massachusetts presidential primaries March 7.

"It was fantastic. The kids loved it," said Dexter of his QHS students. "The students got a chance to see how citizens organize to support a candidate. They learned that it's not just a campaign on TV, that people are actually out there, pounding the pavement and holding signs."

Students visiting the headquarters were: Amanda Loos, Aivy Lu, Patrick

Delval, Ryan Donnelly, Dennis Wong, Enjie Zeng, and Ismail Aydujan.

The students were greeted by Jean Inman, McCain's campaign chairman in Massachusetts, who spoke to the group for fifteen minutes on the grassroots efforts of the McCain volunteers.

The students then observed volunteers manning phone banks, watched a video on McCain, and even got a look at the "war room" where state maps are filled with the pins of various McCain coordinators. Finally, the students asked questions on where the Arizona Senator stands on various issues.

Several students, Dexter said, stayed behind after the event to enlist as McCain volunteers.

For her part, Inman was happy to give QHS students a real taste of primary politics. "It's great that the students can observe a campaign in-action and have a chance to chat with the volunteers," she said.

Inman also said the state's McCain campaign wants nothing less than a Massachusetts victory March 7. "A presidential campaign is a marathon and each state's results are important, both in that state and overall," Inman said. "But our focus since New Hampshire has been winning Massachusetts and the response we've had has been tremendous. People are responding both to the man and the message."

The McCain state headquarters opened Feb. 13 at 1550 Hancock, the former site of Colpitt's Travel.

Sheets Defends Land Deal For New Quincy High

Mayor James Sheets defended Quincy's $3.5 million purchase of land for the new Quincy High School, calling it "a good buy" for the city.

The 14 1/2 acre parcel, Sheets said, became more valuable from one owner to the next because the new owner, Atlantic Development Corp., added utilities and provided much needed access to the property, which is adjacent to Faxon Park.

The purchase became an issue last week when Councillor Frank McCauley introduced a resolve asking the city council's Oversight Committee to "review the process and procedures involving the purchase of land off Quincy Avenue for the location of the new Quincy High School."

McCauley wanted to know why Atlantic Development Corporation and developer Donald J. MacKinnon could buy 21 acres of land from C.J. Partnership in December of 1997 for $1 million and sell 14 1/2 acres of that same property to the city for $3.5 million in March of 1998.

According to figures released by McCauley, the assessment of the property (all 21 acres) in Fiscal Years 1995, 1996, and 1997 was $1,018,400.

Before buying the property, the city appraised the land (14 1/2 acres) at $3.84 million.

The reason for the dramatic increase in appraisals, Sheets said, was that MacKinnon added value to the property the same as any developer would. "Mr. MacKinnon bought a piece of property that was landlocked," Sheets said. "He brought in an access road and utilities and the land became very valuable."

"Actually, we bought that property below its appraised value," said Sheets. "Now it's probably worth more than $4 million. And, if there had been a roadway into that parcel and utilities, Mr. MacKinnon would have paid a lot more for it."

PRIME TRAVELER by George P. Murphy

As heard on WJDA Radio, 1300 AM every Thursday at 11:00am!

CAPTIVATING CAIRO

Because Cairo is enormous in size and population, it seems overwhelming. But within numerous districts and communities is a charming city waiting to reward the patient visitor. People are friendly but often steer you in the wrong direction inadvertently, so it helps to stay relaxed. To the West are the Egyptian pyramids of Giza, Abu Sir, and Saqqara. In downtown Cairo, the Egyptian Antiquities Museum beautifully supplements the monuments with its vast collections. The Nile River runs through the city's center and works as a northwest landmark for those seeking direction in this huge place. Cairo's oldest districts are worth visiting, as they hold more cultural and historical interest than the newer areas, which have more hotels, restaurants and shops.

For a taste of the extraordinary, a visit to Cairo shouldn't be missed. Egypt's people are special, its antiquities awesome (in the true sense of the word), and its history and appeal indisputable. And you don't have to be a history buff or archeologist to enjoy this incredible place. When you are ready to experience the wonders of the world, we'd love to see you at PRIME TRAVEL. We've got lots of good ideas so that you'll end up with the trip of a lifetime. Ready to go? Here at 500 Victory Road, Marina Bay, we'll be happy to help you get there. PH: 617-472-3697.

Deadline Friday For Open Space Surveys

The Mayor's Open Space Committee reminds residents that Friday is the deadline for submitting completed copies of the city's current Open Space Survey.

Completed surveys must be returned to the Park Department or local community center.

The deadline has been extended to allow for added input.

The Open Space Committee was formed by Mayor Sheets last year to help update the city's Open Space Plan. The Committee is working to inventory all open space parcels and identify any potential acquisition sites.

The Open Space Survey is comprised of eight questions gauging the support of the protection of open space, rating priorities for municipal resources with regard to open space protection, rating the existing park system, and other related questions.

The Open Space Committee consists of six ap-

Teen Dating Violence: Fact And Myth

The following are some of the myths about Teen Dating Violence and Domestic Abuse:

Myth - It can't happen to me.

Fact - More than 1 in 10 teenagers experience physical violence in their dating relationships.

Myth - Jealousy and possessiveness are a sign of true love.

Fact - Jealousy and possessiveness are a sign that the person sees you as a possession. It is most common early warning sign of abuse.

Myth - Teen dating violence isn't really that serious.

Fact - Thirty percent of all women who are murdered in this country are killed by their husband or boyfriend. According to a Massachusetts study, that same high percentage applied to teen women, aged 15-19, as well. Also, 60% of all rapes reported to rape crisis centers are committed by acquaintances, and the majority of victims are aged 16-24.

Myth - Men are battered by women just as often as women are battered by men.

Fact - The U.S. Bureau of Justice Statistics reports that 95 percent of the reported incidents of assaults in relationships are committed by males.

Myth - Alcohol causes a man to batter.

Fact - Many men who batter do not drink heavily, and many alcoholics do not batter their partners. Further, batterers who do drink don't necessarily give up battering when they give up drinking. While some abusers do beat their partners while they are drunk, the alcohol acts as their excuse.

Myth - Victims bring on the abuse themselves. They ask for it.

Fact - Perpetrators believe they have the right to use abuse to control their partner, and they see the victim as less than equal to themselves. The victim has no control over the abuser.

Myth - If a person stays in an abusive relationship, it must not really be that bad.

Fact - People stay in abusive relationships for a number of reasons: fear, economic dependence, confusion, loss of self-confidence, not recognizing that what's happening is abusive, belief that the abuser needs their help or will change.

Myth - Most batterers are bums or crazy people.

Fact - Batterers are found in all classes and types of people, rich, poor, professional, unemployed, black, white, urban, rural.

Remember, help is available.

Heavy Vote Seen For March 7 Primaries

(Cont'd from page 1)
kind of interest back then seems to be here in 2000.

Fifty percent of Quincy voters went to the polls in March 20 years ago.

Republicans, with the help of Reagan Democrats and independents, gave Reagan 40 percent of the vote on the Republican ballot. George Bush got 27 percent.

The rest was scattered among some pretty good names: John Anderson, Howard Baker, John Connolly and Robert Dole.

Senator Kennedy who decided to challenge President Jimmy Carter that year took Quincy by storm with 63 percent of the vote on the Democrat ballot. Carter got only 27 percent, Jerry Brown trailing. Carter won his party's nomination but was defeated by Reagan in November.

There are also two Republican state committee contests in the Norfolk and Plymouth District that includes Quincy.

Judy Folsom Roberts of Curtis Ave., Quincy Point and Gerardine Harold Sharkey of Forest Ave., West Quincy, seek the state Republican committee-woman seat vacated by Stephanie Bradley of Braintree.

GOP State Committeeman Darrin McAuliffe of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, is being challenged by Alexander Mann of Holbrook.

On the Democrat side, the two incumbents, Committeeman Michael Bellotti, Norfolk County sheriff; and Committeewoman Bernice Mader, administrative aide to Mayor James Sheets are unopposed. Both are Quincy residents.

Also on both ballots are candidates for ward committee.

TESTING A BALLOT computer for next Tuesday's Presidential Primaries are William Draicchio, member Board of Voter Registrars and City Clerk Joseph Shea. The computers are being tested in all of the city's 30 voting precincts.

City Now Has 51,775 Voters

Quincy's Voter registration is now 51,775--up 984 since last November's city election.

Democrats now stand at 25,619; unenrolled 19,118 and Republicans at 6,698.

It's a slip of 390 for Democrats since last November. Republicans are up 149. But the big gain was in the unenrolled ranks, an increase of 1,230.

These figures are subject to change after the March 7 primaries when there will be some switching party affiliations back.

Other registered voter party numbers: Libertarian, 156; Independent Third Party, 130; Reform, 40; Conservative, 7; Socialist, 4; Green Party, 2; and Rainbow Coalition, 1.

855 Switch Party Affiliations

Between last Dec. 1 and Feb. 17, some 855 Quincy voters switched party for the March 7th Presidential Primaries.

This is how they changed:

Democrat to Unenrolled	554
Democrat to Republican	91
Unenrolled to Republican	51
Republican to Enrolled	67
Republican to Democrat	22
Unenrolled to Democrat	70

WHAT IS A BIOPSY?

The word Biopsy is heard often these days. For some people, the word itself can sound threatening and produce fear and concern. A biopsy is simply the taking of some tissue to try to determine if it is normal or abnormal. The tissue is sent to a pathology laboratory and interpreted or "read" by a qualified Pathologist. Podiatrists sometimes need to do biopsies to help determine if a condition is "benign" or "malignant" (cancerous). Although relatively rare, malignant conditions, such as melanoma, are seen in the human foot.

The first is a shave biopsy that allows a portion of skin to be removed without creating a large skin defect. The second is a punch biopsy that is better for determining the "depth" of a suspected abnormality. The defect left by a punch biopsy sometimes has to be closed with sutures (stitches). Both types of biopsies can be useful in identifying the type and how serious a skin condition may be.

If you are having any foot problems, call and schedule an appointment at 617-773-4300. We are located at 1261 Furnace Brook Parkway, Suite #18, Quincy, and are affiliated with Carney and South Shore Hospitals and Quincy Medical Center.

Sheets Declares 'Aggressive' Open Space Initiative

might wish to purchase. The Beaches and Coastal Commission has been asked to provide a report on desired improvements to the city's beaches by the same date.

The mayor has also requested the Parks Department to present a plan for immediate funding of the acquisition efforts no later than June 1.

If all goes according to schedule, on June 1 the mayor would recommend acquisition and renovation priorities to the city council so that work could begin as soon as possible.

Sheets explained that, even though revenue from the occupancy tax wouldn't be seen for another year, he would be able to float city bonds which would not have to be paid until the money became available. "At most, there would be a gap (between payment and revenue) of a couple of months."

"Time is of the essence," Sheets told the crowd at Pageant Field Tuesday. "With the hotel tax being phased in gradually, we cannot wait until 2004 to preserve open space. We must act swiftly in the interest of protecting the open space that remains in this city."

The mayor said he chose Merrymount Park as the site of his announcement because Charles Francis Adams II donated the 83-acre parcel of land to Quincy at a town meeting held September 24, 1885.

At the same meeting, Sheets said, Henry Hardwick Faxon donated a 27-acre parcel of land which would become Faxon Park. Sheets called that town meeting "one of the most significant dates in Quincy history."

"They (Adams and Faxon) had the courage to act upon that vision and take a bold step towards protecting the future of our city," Sheets said. "Today, we must share their vision, courage, and initiative and take the bold steps necessary to protect the quality of our lives, and the quality of life for those who will come after we are gone."

Sheets Optimistic On US Funds For Germantown

Mayor Sheets returned Tuesday from the HOPE VI Conference in Atlanta, GA, with high hopes for obtaining funds to revitalize public housing in Germantown.

The city, Sheets said, will have its project application in by May 1 and the mayor expects a decision by September of this year.

At stake is up to $35 million in federal funds available through the Housing and Urban Development's (HUD) HOPE VI program.

The Quincy Housing Authority wants to combine federal, state, city, and private funds to transform Germantown's existing public housing into a mixed use development including affordable housing, market value housing, commercial development, and assisted living facilities.

Although the mayor could only spend a few days at the conference, several Quincy representatives are still in attendance. They are: Ward 1 Councillor Gregory Hanley; Jack Mather, director of the Quincy Housing Authority; F. Jean Kennedy, newly appointed member of the OHA Board of Directors; and George Shields, president of the Germantown Tenants Association.

"We had a chance to meet with those who will make the decisions on the project and attend a number of workshops," Sheets said. "It gave us valuable insight as to how all three levels of government have to work to make this happen. The application will be improved because we have this information as well as advice from cities across the country who've been successful with this application."

The city has hired ABT Associates, a consulting firm, to guide it through the application process.

Relief From Severe Heartburn

By TIMOTHY BABINEAU, MD
Chief of Surgery, Quincy Medical Center

Acid reflux. You've probably heard of it. Chances are you've probably experienced it. But what exactly is it and what can be done to get relief from it when it becomes severe?

Antacid advertisers refer to it as acid reflux, but to you and me it's just plain old heartburn. It is caused by acid in the stomach splashing up into the esophagus, or swallowing tube. It happens when the valve at the bottom of the esophagus opens at the wrong time causing acid from the stomach to go into the swallowing tube. This results in a burning pain which we call heartburn. To some people, heartburn is an occasional inconvenience. But to others, heartburn can become a severe problem called gastroesophageal reflux disease or GERD.

How do I know if I have serious heartburn?

An average, healthy individual will experience heartburn as often as once a week or as seldom as a few times a year. But for people suffering from severe heartburn, or GERD, the experience can happen as many as four times an hour after eating a meal. This causes problems because constant exposure to stomach acid can cause irritation or serious injury to the esophagus and can even lead to other health problems such as the development of ulcers or a hiatal hernia.

Frequent heartburn is the most common symptom of GERD. But patients may also experience difficulty swallowing food or liquid, hoarseness, wheezing or coughing at night or even a need to clear the throat repeatedly.

What causes serious heartburn?

Certain diet and lifestyle choices can contribute to the development of GERD. For instance, some foods, such as fatty foods and tomato products, increase the production of acid in the stomach. People who are overweight sometimes experience increased episodes of heartburn, and even pregnant women can suffer from serious heartburn.

Simple heartburn becomes GERD when the frequency, duration, or severity of acid reflux episodes increases. The repeated irritation of the esophagus by stomach acid can lead to inflammation, bleeding, and even ulcers. Some people may develop scar tissue as a result of GERD and others experience a narrowing of the esophagus. Under certain conditions, esophageal cancer may develop.

What treatments are available?

There are different methods used to treat serious heartburn. Lifestyle and eating changes are among the first treatments to be considered, followed by acid reducing medications like Tagamet, Zantac and Pepcid AC. But for a number of patients with GERD, surgery may be the only way to help ease heartburn suffering.

Surgery can help end heartburn suffering

Surgery is considered for treatment of heartburn when the disease is severe and other treatment options have not proven effective or practical.

Heartburn surgery, called laparoscopic nissen fundoplication, is a minimally invasive procedure whereby the surgeon wraps the esophagus with part of the stomach so acid from the stomach cannot come back up. In the past, this surgical procedure was a major operation, which involved a long recovery period. Now, however, the surgery is performed laparoscopically, which means there are only a few small incisions in the upper abdomen and a tiny incision at the naval. The patient usually returns home one to two days after surgery.

Each year, thousands of people throughout Massachusetts are relieved of heartburn pain and complications associated with the disease through this simple, surgical procedure.

More Families Eligible For Fuel Assistance

The state Department of Housing and Community Development approved an increase in fuel assistance eligibility limits up to 200 percent of the federal poverty level.

This change, coupled with the release of $13 million in emergency funding from the Federal Department of Health and Human Services, means additional cash assistance for a greater number of working families and elders.

Under the new guidelines, a family of four, earning up to $33,000 annually, or at 200 percent of the poverty level, may receive up to $500 in assistance for their oil bill.

A family of two, earning $11,060 annually, or at 100 percent of the poverty level, is eligible to receive up to $960 towards the cost of their home heating oil.

Locally, the Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. (QCAP) operates the fuel assistance program, also known as the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP).

QCAP is currently accepting applications at their 1509 Hancock St. location. Residents of Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree, and Milton who need help paying their home heating bills may call (617) 479-8181, extension 101, to schedule an appointment.

New applications will be accepted by QCAP through April 30.

Beth Ann Strollo, QCAP's executive director, is encouraging anyone who may be eligible to call QCAP's energy program. "We want to make sure that we get assistance to those in need, especially given the extreme increase in oil prices," Strollo said. "We don't want people to have to choose between paying their rent or mortgage over turning their heat on."

Over the next few weeks, QCAP staff will be busy contacting families and individuals who may have been ineligible to receive assistance under the old guidelines. In addition, notifications of the new benefit levels will be mailed to households that are currently receiving program assistance.

QCAP's fuel assistance program has been providing families and single adults with financial assistance for their home heating bills since 1973. Both homeowners and renters are eligible to apply. Eligible residents can also access substantial electric, gas, and telephone discounts. Homeowners may also receive a 25 percent subsidy for their water and sewer bills.

Funding for LIHEAP comes from the Federal Department of Health and Human Services, and is administered in Massachusetts through the Department of Housing and Community Development's Bureau of Energy Programs.

Quincy Business Council 'Enough Is Enough' Strategy Meeting March 7

The Quincy Business Council will hold a "Enough Is Enough" strategy meeting on the 175 percent tax classification for commercial property recently passed by the City Council.

The 8 to 9 a.m. meeting will be held Tuesday, March 7 at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 336 Miller Stile Rd., Quincy.

Members will review an action plan for the year 2000 involving:

- The tax increase impact on the Quincy business community.
 - How Quincy compares to other city and towns in the state on tax classification.
 - How to stem the tide of the "anti-business sentiment in the city."
- Also to be discussed:
- A review of a letter

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Antioxidants are powerful chemicals that disarm free radicals, the harmful molecules created when the body converts food into energy or breaks down toxic substances. If left unchecked, free radicals injure brain cells. Thus, scientists believe that it is possible to improve the functioning of the brain by getting the right antioxidants in your diet. For instance, blueberries and strawberries are rich in anthocyanins, which are the powerful antioxidants found in deep red and purple pigmented foods. Studies suggest that anthocyanins may facilitate the functioning of neurons in the brain, as well as discourage blood clots from forming. Spinach, too, is an antioxidant powerhouse brimming with beta-carotene, vitamin C and folic acid. So eat to your heart's (and brain's) content. It can be hard to understand all the ins and outs of the new research, which is why it is helpful to have medical professionals on hand to discuss such matters with. SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH & FITNESS

Helping Adolescents Avoid Dangerous Drinking

Spring break and prom season are just around the corner. Graduation and summer vacation are close behind. Tragically, there's little doubt that somewhere in Massachusetts, young people will suffer serious injury or death as a result of alcohol-related behavior.

Underage drinking and the damage that results from it is on the rise. Adolescents in the Bay State and elsewhere are drinking more alcohol more often than ever before. Alcohol is universally available, and peer pressure makes it very difficult to say "no" to a drink.

But for many youths, the decision to drink is a deadly one. For example:

- A 16-year-old is more likely to die from a drinking related problem than from any other cause.

- This year in America, more than 10,000 people ages 16 to 25 will die as the result of alcohol.

- More than 3 million students drink alone; 4 million drink when they're upset, and 3 million drink when they're bored. The implications for future health are troubling.

- The typical American college student spends more on beer than on textbooks. MIT physician Mark Goldstein, M.D., is co-chair of the MIT Working Group on Dangerous Drinking. He and his colleagues have begun to use the phrase "dangerous drinking" when they discuss drinking among young children.

"It's a very important distinction," notes Dr. Goldstein, who also chairs the Massachusetts Medical Society's Committee on Student Health and Sports Medicine. "The phrase 'binge drinking' has been embedded in our minds by on-campus deaths publicized by the news media, and indeed it is a problem," he says. "But what's overlooked is that two drinks or even one drink in a person who is small, or not used to drinking, or who is very tired, can easily lead to trouble."

What's A Parent To Do?

If you're a parent, Dr. Goldstein recommends these steps to help your kids avoid dangerous drinking:

- Learn the signs of alcohol use and abuse. A few of them: Your child gives up activities he or she once enjoyed; your child has tried several times to quit drinking and failed; your child becomes secretive and withdrawn; his or her thinking becomes distorted; school grades suddenly slip; your family has a history of alcohol abuse.

- Enforce "no use" rules including staying away from parties where there is alcohol and helping your kids learn the skills to refuse alcohol.

- Be sure you know where your kids are and what they are doing; let them know you'll be checking on them.

- Give youngsters confidence that if they find themselves in a situation where drinking has become a problem, they can call you to pick them up or pay for a cab ride home.

A Self-Test For Students

If you are an adolescent or college student, you can check your own drinking habits by answering the following questions:

- Do you ever drive when impaired by alcohol?
- Are you ever a passenger with a driver who has been drinking?
- Do you drink to forget your problems or to relax?
- Do you drink alone?
- Are your school grades slipping as a result of your drinking?

- Do you ever try to drink less and fail?

- Have you ever had a drink in the morning?

- Do you ever experience memory loss?

- Have you begun to lie to your family and friends about your alcohol use?

- Do you gulp your drinks instead of sipping them?

If you have answered "yes" to any of the questions — even one — seek help from your physician, school guidance counselor, or a qualified health professional, or call 1-800-327-5050, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health's substance abuse hotline.

Free Screenings In April

On April 6, many health care organizations in Massachusetts will participate in National Alcohol Screening Day. Plans for the program include educational presentations, a written screening questionnaire, and the opportunity for participants to meet with a health professional. Referrals for further treatment will be provided when appropriate.

To locate a site near you that will be offering alcohol screenings on April 6, call 1-800-284-5100 after March 20.

Hearing aid

"Tips from Tobias"
Will a hearing aid correct my loss right away?

Not! You will notice an immediate difference in volume and some sounds will be clearer but it takes time to re-learn how to hear with a hearing aid. Your maximum potential may not be reached for a full year. Hearing is a learned process, the brain needs to store information received from the ear. When you first get a hearing aid, it is foreign to the brain. The brain wants to hear and will learn to the best of its ability, if you give it enough practice. Try to be patient, practice, and keep in touch with your Hearing Instrument Specialist for adjustments and fine tuning. Don't wait too long to get help. The longer you wait, the more difficult it is for the brain to re-learn how to hear again. This is a major reason why a hearing aid can end up in a desk drawer instead of an ear. There are other reasons, most of which can be overcome if your Specialist is dedicated to your success! If you carefully select your Specialist, he or she will carefully select your hearing instrument.

Now you go and spread the news! -Steve

It's High School Hockey Tournament Time

Quincy Vs. Bishops
Friday At Stoneham

By CHRIS POISSON

If you look at the seedings in the Division 1 South bracket, you would think Quincy would be favored in the first round of the MIAA hockey tournament.

But whoever put together the pairings Monday afternoon must not have factored in the strength of schedule. The seedings are misleading.

No. 7 Quincy (10-6-2) will drop the puck against No. 10 Archbishop Williams (9-6-4) tomorrow (Friday) night at 8:10 p.m. at Stoneham. The winner will face the winner of the Natick-Norwood game Sunday in the quarterfinals.

AW has battled some of the state's top teams this season. As a member of Catholic Central, it has battled Austin Prep, Arlington Catholic, Catholic Memorial and Boston College High — all which are taking part in the famed Super 8 tournament.

"Oh, we're definitely the underdogs," said coach Bob Sylvia. "The seedings mean nothing. We have a lot of respect for a team like Archies. They play some real tough competition with BC High and CM. It's going to be an uphill battle."

Quincy faced off against some tough competition in Old Colony League foes Falmouth (No. 4) and Silver Lake (No. 5) this season. But the Presidents didn't fair so well, going 0-3-1 against the powers.

After a five-game winning streak in late January, Quincy struggled down the stretch. It ended the regular season with a poor performance against rival North Quincy.

"Our kids are ready to play and they'll have some fun," Sylvia said. "But if we're not ready to play, we could easily lose 15-1."

The Presidents are not a strong defensive team but they're a team that has the capability of putting up some impressive offensive numbers. Sophomore forward Billy McKeon has developed into a legitimate goal scorer, netting 18 this season. He finished with 41 points.

"Billy has put up some great offensive numbers," Sylvia said. "He's only going to get a lot better."

But Quincy will need strong efforts from senior captain Brian Nolan, junior forward Paul Campbell and sophomore forward David Germain to have a shot of advancing in the tournament. Senior goalie Ryan Kruegar has to be on top of his game as well. He can't afford to let in any soft goals.

"Nolan, Campbell, they're all going to have to step it up," Sylvia said. "They have to take it to another level. And Kruegar is going to have to be pulling saves out of his legs."

"To be honest, we're going to have to hang tough and hope for a few breaks. Ideally, we would like things to be close in the third period and then see what happens."

North Vs. Hingham
Friday At UMass Boston

The North Quincy hockey team beat the odds as it slipped through the backdoor and into the MIAA tournament this season.

Now that it's there, it wants more.

No. 11 North Quincy (10-9-1) will get its chance Friday when it meets No. 7 Hingham (12-7-3) in the first round of the Division 1 South tournament at UMass-Boston at 6 p.m.

"They're a formidable opponent with a lot of returnees from last year," said coach Bob Doyle. "They're a perennial powerhouse in their division. We definitely have to be at the top of our game to have a shot at them."

The Red Raiders are clearly the underdogs when they line up against the Independent league champions. But that's just fine to them. They've played well in that role this season.

"We seem to play better against stronger clubs and I think you'll see that here," Doyle said. "The kids have risen under pressure this season. I like our chances as underdogs."

Doyle will also be bringing that lucky puck with the Yakoo to the game, the same puck he carried with him in the 3-1 win over Quincy that locked up the postseason berth.

"That puck will be with us," Doyle said. "I didn't return it to James [Flaherty of Quincy Youth Hockey] just yet."

After a 2-6 start to the season, North Quincy rebounded in the second half of the season to knock off the likes of Falmouth, Barnstable and Quincy. Doyle abandoned his slow-down, patient offensive approach and loosened things up for his players. Since then, the team as responded. And now is not the time to tinker with the game plan.

"I'm not going to change a thing," Doyle said. "We're going to play an up-tempo, forechecking system. We're going to have to be more physical. We're a smaller team. Hopefully we can clear some room for our finesse players."

"We're going to be positive and upbeat and not be intimidated by our opponent. They can be beaten. We just have to want it more than them."

The first line — sophomore Scott MacDonald, senior Ross O'Driscoll, junior Joe Cronin — has to play well, but Doyle believes it will come down to the second unit's performance.

Junior Paul Zenga centers that second line with sophomore Charlie Sorrento on his left and sophomore Ryan Barry on his right.

"The key will be how well our second line plays," Doyle said. "They need to match the intensity of what Hingham throws at them."

The return of senior captain Ryan Murray should give North Quincy a boost. He practiced this week and will be at blue line tomorrow. Murray injured his shoulder in the second period of the Quincy game and missed the season finale against Newton North.

Although North Quincy has picked it up lately, one glaring weakness has been its notorious slow starts.

"We've been known to start off sluggish," Doyle said. "We have to keep it close in the first period. If that takes place, we'll have a chance. We're not a team that can rebound from a huge deficit."

North Girls Tourney
Bound In Basketball

By CHRIS POISSON

Ten days removed from an emotional win over neighboring Quincy, the North Quincy girls' basketball team now finds itself as the city's only basketball team in the Big Dance.

After missing the party last season, North Quincy needed two all-stars, a dynamic point guard and a freshman to guide them back to the MIAA tournament.

In the four years prior to last year's absence, North Quincy never made it out of the first round, losing at Falmouth each time. Thanks to a season-ending five-game winning streak, the Red Raiders earned a home game for the opening round and will look to take the next step.

North Quincy (13-7), a No. 7 seed in Division 1 South, faced No. 10 Somerset (13-9) yesterday (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. The winner will face the winner of the Marshfield-Taunton game in Friday's quarterfinals.

North Quincy is familiar with No. 2 Taunton, if they should happen to meet in the next round. The Old Colony League champs have beaten North Quincy twice this season by a mere total of seven points.

The Red Raiders have been bitten by the flu bug lately. Senior tri-captain Caitlin Powers saw limited time in the Quincy game and the second unit has also been sick. MacFarlane hopes the 10-day break will give him a loaded team for a tournament run.

"Hopefully the layoff will help us get everyone back healthy," said coach Doug MacFarlane. "Every game is important now. It's tournament time."

North Quincy isn't familiar with Somerset, which hails from the Eastern Athletic league, but MacFarlane has a general idea based on a scouting report.

"It looks like they're primarily a perimeter team," MacFarlane said. "But they'll drive to the basket if you give it to them. Their point guard looks pretty good. She's a three-point shooter and she can drive to the basket."

Somerset will press teams and then drop into a zone. But North Quincy has handled the press all season long and MacFarlane isn't too concerned.

"We're going to do what we've been doing all year," MacFarlane said. "Offensively, we're not afraid to put the ball up. We're going to run. It's our main offensive threat. If we slow down then we'll get into trouble."

Senior sharpshooter Jill Nicholson, an OCL all-star, is the team's first offensive weapon with a team-high 15 points per game. She's deadly behind the arc, as she canned 62 3-pointers in the regular season.

Down the stretch, however, opponents zeroed in on her and took her out of the game. Last year, the Red Raiders would've lost if Nicholson wasn't scoring. But this season, they have a strong supporting cast.

The Quincy Bantam A's blanked Adirondack, 2-0, to capture its division championship, while the Quincy Squirt A's came out on the losing end, falling to Riverside, 5-1, in the final game.

Lewiston, Maine won the Mite championship with a 3-2 triumph over Weymouth, and Hingham whipped Canton, 6-0, for the Pee Wee crown.

The week-long tournament (Feb. 21-27) is expected to raise about $7,000. The proceeds will benefit the Quincy Kiwanis youth charities, including needy and underprivileged children in the local area.

"The tournament was a tremendous success," said Michelle Stenberg, tournament director. "None of us can speak. The first few days were mobbed. And the championship games were packed, especially the Bantams."

The tournament featured 34 teams from the South Shore, Greater Boston regions, California, New York, Rhode Island and Maine.

Here's a wrap-up of the four Quincy teams:

BANTAMS

In the Bantam championship, goalie Bruce Maggio shined behind the pipes as he backboned Quincy to the win over coach Barry Melrose, former NHL player and manager and now ESPN hockey analyst, and his Adirondack team.

Billy McKeon put Quincy on the board first when he struck at 2:01 of the first period with an assist from Matt Grazioso. Brendan Conley tallied the second goal at 2:56 of the third to seal the win.

Quincy went 5-0 in the tournament to grab the championship. It opened the week with an 8-0 thrashing of Smithfield. Maggio picked up the shutout and Ryan Conley and Brendan Conley each blasted a pair of goals.

It went on to tie Riverside, 3-3, and Lewiston, 4-4, to reach the semi-finals Sunday morning. Quincy cruised to a 6-3 win to set up the date with Adirondack.

Also skating for the Quincy Bantams were Brian O'Hanley, Brian Lewis, Mike McGonaglie, Bob Donovan, Andy Ross, Rob Mooney, Tim Duggan, Ryan Tobin, Josh Giordani, Steve Kelley and Ryan Donahue.

SQUIRTS

In the Squirt championship, Quincy couldn't find its offense as it managed only one goal. Chris Rooney scored with an assist from Johnny McInnis. Frankie Sorrento and Matt Connors shared the duties in net.

Quincy went 1-1-1 on its way to the finals. It battled to a 2-2 tie against Riverside in the opener, suffered a 4-3 loss to Weymouth and then bounced back with a 5-3 win over Canton.

Also playing for the Quincy Squirts were John Kurpeski, Mike Griffin, Tommy Pasquantonio, Zach Deegan, Mike Maxey, Teddy Walsh, Jimmy Fitzpatrick,

PEE WEES

After a 12-2 rout of Dorchester to kick off the tournament, the Quincy Pee Wees suffered two straight defeats the rest of the way. It dropped a 4-1 match to Riverside and a 5-2 affair to Canton.

MITES

The Quincy Mites started off with a bang, winning its first two games. It edged Riverside, 5-4, in the opener and carried that exciting win into its next game, where it pulled out a 5-3 victory over Braintree.

But Quincy was kept out of the championship hunt when Dorchester came out on top, 4-2, Friday morning.

Suiting up for Quincy Mites were Stephen Barresi, Matthew Bridgeman, Christopher Brown, Andrew Bythrow, Samuel Calley, Kyle Craig, Matthew Furey, Brandon Gilmore, Douglas Haskins, Billy Kiley, Michael Lebel, John Magliozzi, Brian McLean, Scott Richardson, Scott Vallatini and Patrick Young.

Mite B's Advance To Cranberry Tourney Finals

The Quincy Mite B travel team strung together three wins in the recent 28th annual Cranberry Tournament at Pembroke, but fell to the Brewins, 3-1, in the championship game.

Kevin Shea scored the lone goal with an assist from Joe Vialpando as Quincy's hard work and great team play earned them the second place trophy.

In the first round, Quincy and Whitman Hanson-Kingston battled to a 3-3 tie when WH-K scored with one second left in the third period. Shea, Vialpando and Matt Rodriguez scored for Quincy. Derek Murphy had an assist.

In game 2, goalie Jeff Giordani backboned Quincy to a 4-1 win over Pembroke. Giordani shined between the pipes and made a sensational glove save in the second period.

Murphy netted a pair of goals and Ryan Shea and Jeremy Mock also found the cage. Andrew McCarthy, Rodriguez and Kevin Shea picked up assists.

In game 3, Quincy blanked the Brewins, 3-0. Giordani earned the shutout. Vialpando, Rodriguez and Zac Helfrich tallied the goals. Meg Gillespie, Vialpando and Helfrich collected assists.

In previous action, Quincy bested Belmont, 5-2. Kevin Magoon staked Quincy to a 1-0 lead in the first period with an assist from Seamus McKenna. In the third, Quincy erupted for four goals. Vialpando, Patrick White (first of the season), Wayne Milford and McKenna lit the lamp. Milford, McKenna and Magoon had assists in the period.

Quincy lost to Needham, 3-1, to end its winning streak. McCarthy scored the only goal. Ryan Shea had an assist.

Quincy cruised to a 5-2 win over South Boston. Murphy and McKenna each netted a pair of goals and Helfrich added one.

Giordani was strong in the cage in a 1-1 tie against Brookline, stoning shot after shot. McCarthy scored Quincy's lone goal when he chased down Magoon's pass along the boards.

Quincy failed to capitalize on its many scoring chances in the third and with 1:40 left in the game Brookline netted the equal-izers, and Peter Eley, Kevin Shea, Magoon and Helfrich each had one.

OPERATING IN A VACUUM

When a vehicle experiences performance problems, it is always a good idea to check for vacuum leaks. These may be responsible for upsetting the operation of a computer system and cause a wide range of symptoms. In addition, several engines sensors and vacuum actuators (vacuum switches) rely on engine vacuum for operation. Vacuum leaks are frequently caused by deteriorated, broken, or loose vacuum hoses. Air leaks that occur after the airflow sensor can cause problems. The sensor cannot measure the air being taken into the engine through the leak. As a result, the air-fuel mixture will be incorrect. As sophisticated as they are, a vehicle's computer systems may sometimes be compromised by something as small as a leak.

Quincy's Dan Kelly Top Boys' Basketball Scorer In School History Reaches 1,026 Points To Set Mark

By CHRIS POISSON

Dan Kelly first captured the attention of local basketball coaches when he was a 5th grader in the Presidents Youth Basketball League.

One of those coaches happened to be John Franceschini, who was in his seventh year at the helm of the Quincy boys' basketball team. Back then, he knew he was watching someone special.

"I vividly remember Danny as a 5th grader when he worked out with the 6th grade team," said Franceschini, recounting the first time he laid eyes on his star player. "At that point, Danny was a part of the basketball family."

After climbing through the ranks of the Quincy youth programs, he's now the head coach.

In his final game last Tuesday, a 66-61 loss to Stoughton in the final of the Quincy Invitational, Kelly pumped in 28 points to become Quincy High School's all-time leading scorer in boys' basketball with 1,026 points, eclipsing the 1,011 scored by Jack Uhlar (1974-77).

Needing only two points to reach the magic number, Kelly hit a pair of free throws 3:11 into the game to achieve the milestone. With under 10 minutes left in the game, he passed Uhlar when he drained a 3-pointer to cap off an individual run of 12 straight points.

What makes his achievement even more remarkable is that he played the last two years with a banged up left knee. As a two-sport all-star in football and basketball, he didn't have the time to rest, either.

Four days after

quarterbacking the Presidents to a 21-13 triumph over North Quincy in last November's 67th annual Thanksgiving Day game, Kelly finally decided to have knee surgery.

Kelly was sidelined for 39 days, missing the entire preseason and the first seven games of the year. On Jan. 8, with only four days of conditioning under his belt, he made his season debut against Waring and scored 13 points.

For a majority of the season he wasn't in 100% shape and he still felt discomfort in his knee. In fact, he didn't reach midseason form until recently, when he scored 22, 20 and 28 in his final three games.

"There were many days in practice, and people also saw it in some games, where there was discomfort," Franceschini said. "But he didn't complain."

Not once did Kelly mention 1,000 points when he returned to the hardwood. He only talked about it one time and that was when he was out of action. He told Franceschini, "If it happens, it happens. I just want to get back as soon as possible."

"It was a big thing in his heart, but it came second to the team," Franceschini said.

With only the Quincy Invitational left in the season and the team already eliminated from the postseason, that's when 1,000 points became a target. Up until that point, it was silent.

"We never mentioned the points until the first game of the tournament," Franceschini said. "His teammates understood and were really supportive. They knew he needed 22 points and they really rallied behind him."

game from her because she can change the complexion of a game," MacFarlane said. "She's had a tough time getting shots off lately as teams have been keying in on her. But the nice thing is we have other people stepping up."

Sophomore guard Lauren Sleeth, also an all-star, is the perfect sidekick to Nicholson. Sleeth is averaging 10 points, 6 rebounds and 5 steals per game and has played well in the second half of the season.

Junior Casey Ridge runs the team from the point. She creates the shots for her teammates and her unselfishness shows as she dished out a team record 102 assists this season, breaking the old mark of 90.

"She has really made a big difference this season," MacFarlane said. "She penetrates to the basket and if she doesn't have the shot, she dishes it out to her teammates."

Freshman center April Suprey has played well as a backup to Powers, the starting center. Junior forward Jennifer Conley and sophomore Kahli Dearnani are also strong off the bench.

Kevin Magoon Powers Kiley Real Estate

Kevin Magoon scored four goals and picked up an assist in Kiley Real Estate's 9-5 win over Doherty & White in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Mite Division House League play.

Mike Feeney netted a pair of goals and had an assist. Kevin Keefe, Ned Gould and Andrew Beaton added goals. John Jones had an assist.

Matt Rodriguez scored all five of D & W's goals. Ryan Shea notched two assists and Kyle Craig and Scott Richardson each had one.

Paul Harold Club knocked off Barry's Deli, 6-3, behind Doug Haskins' four goals. Kat Bossart and Nicholas Block added goals. Zach Helfrich, Sal Tortomasi and Zach McCaul earned assists.

Andrew Barba netted a pair for goals for Barry's Deli and Brian McLean had a goal and an assist. Steve Barresi picked up an assist.

Joey Vialpando scored a hat trick in Bruce Ayers Club's 8-2 win over Hayes' Dream. Brandon Gilmore had two goals and two assists and Cory Dalton had two goals and an assist. Adelia DeSisto also found the back of the net. Frank Flora collected four assists and Kevin Shea had one.

Scott Vallatini and Terrence Rooney scored for Hayes' Dream. Sean Dunn had an assist.

Paul Reardon and Steve Brown each tallied hat tricks in Doran & Horrigan's 14-2 win over Lydon Russell. Victoria Virtue, Chris Brown, Steve McNally, Ryan Polley, Brendan Gibbons, Tim Riordan, Kevin Keith and Sam Calley also scored. John Sullivan and Virtue picked up three helpers each. Reardon and Gibbons each had a pair, and Christian Durham, Brenna Morrissey, Riordan and Polley had one.

Matt Troy and Ryan O'Connell scored for Lydon Russell.

Brian Bowe blasted four goals in Quincy Sheet Metal's 9-2 win over Jay Cashman. Matt Furey netted a pair and Wayne Milford, Brian Furey and Jeff Mathies each had one. Nick Furey notched two assists and Eddie McManus, Lucas Reilly and Mathies each had one.

Andrew Bythrow scored both of Cashman's goals. Patrick Young and Ricky Pugsley picked up assists.

Marissa Deegan Leads Coffee Break Cafe

Marissa Deegan netted two goals in Coffee Break Cafe's 7-5 win over Mike Morrissey Club in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division House League play.

Dan Nieczajowski had a goal and two assists and Brendan Linnane, John O'Donnell, Paul Graham and Pat Devlin added goals. Joe Connelly, Dave Finnegan, Dave Tapper, Kevin French, Devlin, O'Donnell and Graham had assists.

Sean Warwick had two goals and an assist for Morrissey Club. Joe Cafano, Pat Malone and Kevin Nee also scored. Nee had two assists and Tim Fernandez, Brendan Clifford, Mark Adams and Andrew Donovan had one.

Brendan Linnane and Pat Mullen each tallied three points (2 goals, assist) as IBEW Local 103 bested Bernie's General Store, 7-2. Phil Hong, Frank Feeley and Steve Bythrow added goals. Jason Amato picked up two assists and John O'Donnell, Sean O'Neil, Mike McNulty and Bythrow each had one.

Andrew Connolly and James Spellman scored for Bernie's. Tim Lally, Matt McHugh, Mike Barter and Brendan Mulcahy had assists.

Kristin Manganaro had three points (goal, 2 assists) in Wood Commercial's 5-3 win over Colonial Federal. Joe Sweeney, Jim Callahan, Kevin Shinnick and Stephen Keith also found the cage. Andrew Cardarelli had two assists and Mike MacPherson, Keith and Callahan had one.

Dave Tapper and Jon O'Connor scored for Colonial Federal. Mike Arrufat picked up two assists and Mike Gibbons, Bob Newcomb and Andrew McCabe each had one.

Mike Marshall Hat Trick For Car Wash

Mike Marshall scored a hat trick in Quincy Car Wash's 7-5 win over Keohane's in recent Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt Division House League play.

Tom Conley netted a pair of goals and Kyle Tobin and Brian Sullivan each added one. Michael Grant and Sullivan each tallied two assists and Erik Johnson, Matt Newell, Glenn Peterson and Tobin had one.

Craig Calley scored two goals and Scott Jackson, Pat Totten and Ken Patey each had one for Keohane's. David Bowe, Courtney Jago and Patey collected assists.

Pat Foley Painting edged Westminster Dodge, 8-7, behind James Cedrone's hat trick. John Kennedy scored a pair and Charlie McGee, Nash Winters and Mike Gillespie also found the cage. Meg Shea, Winters and Gillespie each had two assists and Tom Johnson one.

Chris Rooney had a hat trick and an assist for Dodge. Casey Conley, Steve McDonagh, Matt Connors and Alyssa Fontana added goals. Steve Graham picked up two assists while Jeff Bailey, Ted Finnegan, Mollie O'Connell, McDonagh and Rooney had one.

Mike Maxey scored a pair of goals and had an assist in Burgin Platter's 4-2 win over Cotter Club. Joe Ferris and Alex Smith added goals. John Kurpeski picked up two assists and Pat Morrissey and Ferris each had one.

Jim Corbett tallied two points for Cotter Club. Brian Campbell scored a goal and Mike Cronin and Matt Flaherty notched assists.

Jeremiah Foley scored two goals in Quincy Sun's 5-4 win over Smith & Brink. Kevin Bossart, Robert Mann and Joe Canavan also lit the lamp. Canavan recorded two assists and Tom Henry and Frankie Sorrento each had one.

Rob DeAngelis netted a pair and Jim Fitzpatrick and Tom Keefe also scored for S&B. Joe Morris, Fitzpatrick and DeAngelis had assists.

Six Local Players On Basketball All-Star Squad

Six local basketball players were named to the Old Colony League All-Star team recently.

Senior Dan Kelly of Quincy and sophomore Phil

McGilllicuddy of North Quincy made the boys' team.

Senior Jill Nicholson and sophomore Lauren Sleeth both represented North Quincy on the girls' squad.

Quincy seniors Colleen and Caitlin Nichol were also on the team.

The all-star game was Feb. 19 at Taunton.

Kelly Wigmore Competes In Giant Slalom For Colby-Sawyer Alpine Racing Team

Kelly Wigmore of Quincy finished 23rd in the giant slalom to help the Colby-Sawyer women's alpine ski racing team to a fifth-place finish in the season finale at the recent Smith College Carnival. It also finished fourth in the slalom.

The Chargers placed fourth in the Eastern Collegiate Ski Conference Osborne Division to advance to last weekend's United States Collegiate Ski Association Eastern Regional Championships. If they finish in the top five at regionals, they will make their third straight trip to the USCSA National Championships.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that a man with his head in the clouds is in no position to watch his step.

When driving in your car, have you ever been irritated and alarmed (and scared, too) by the way in which children, intent on their play, sometimes run suddenly out into the street oblivious of the traffic? If they pay any attention to it at all, they usually only look one way and fail to notice the traffic coming from the opposite direction.

This habit of looking only one way is not only characteristic of children, but can often be seen in older people as well. We all know some young people who made a snap judgement to drop out of school after looking only one way at the traffic of life. We all know persons who have been equally hasty and ill-advised in starting businesses without adequate preparation...

"Standing on the curb" and looking carefully at dangers and problems coming from all directions might take a little more time, but it is the only way to insure a safe passage across the street.

There is a word for this way of meeting life's problems - Maturity...

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A little woolgathering is good right now. It helps you sort out some problems before you try to work out their solutions. But don't be out of it for too long, or you'll miss getting in on something important.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your acquisitive self will find this time favorable for buying something you've wanted for a long time. Your inquisitive self leads to the disclosure of some important facts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) It's time to come down to earth and face the reality about someone in your life. Get to the truth, and then decide what you'll do about the relationship.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Relationships on the job and in your personal life seem to be in flux at this time. Trying to get a handle on things is frustrating and probably futile. Wait for events to return to a steady, even flow.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might be everyone's idea of a cool cat, but you'd really prefer going somewhere warm for a while, and this is the time to do it. Expect good news from someone who is working hard on your behalf.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Things seem to be slowing down. Use this quieter time to do some much-needed meditation. You'll come away with a new understanding of what compels you to do what you do.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Marriage and mergers are favored at this time. Relationships, both personal and professional, might appear to be unraveling. But quick action can make long-lasting repairs.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A loved one reacts happily to a romantic suggestion. Consider a cruise if you have the time and money. But a movie and dinner will do just as well.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Don't wait for someone to help you bridge an emotional gap between you and a loved one. You need to take the initiative yourself. The result will be worth all the effort you put into it.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Stop blaming yourself for that problem at work. Someone else set the situation in motion, leaving you on the spot when something had to be done. So perk up. You have lots of people on your side.

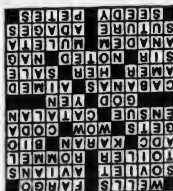

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Positive aspects continue to favor explorations of new career opportunities. While you're eager to check these prospects out, you also need to spend more quality time with your family.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Cupid has an arrow with your name on it. But you need to help him find his target by getting into the social swim where, with luck, the chubby cherub could pin two hearts with one arrow.

YOU WERE BORN THIS WEEK: You are honest and loyal. People trust you with their secrets. You would make a wonderful counselor or member of the clergy because you know how to listen to the heart as well as the voice.

Retirement, Tax Saving Seminar At Bank Of Canton March 8

A retirement and tax saving seminar will be presented Wednesday, March 8 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the Bank of Canton, 275 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

The seminar, led by Brian Allsop, an investment officer with The Bank of Canton and licensed through Inlfinx Financial Group, will include topics such as Roth and traditional IRA's, maximizing retirement income through tax savings, inflation and its impact, and growing assets.

Attendees will have an opportunity to learn how appropriate planning and investing can help them achieve their financial goals. Real-life examples will be used as well as explanations of mutual funds, tax deferred annuities, stocks, bonds and insurance, as a means to achieve those goals. There will be a question and answer period as well.

"We are pleased to bring area residents this opportunity to learn how to make their money work for them," said Michelle Higgins, manager of The Bank of Canton's Quincy branch. "Brian is knowledgeable and easy to understand. He can really help people find their way through the maze of financial advice and opportunities," she said.

Space is limited. To reserve a seat, call The Bank of Canton at 617-770-4222.

The project consists of removing and disposing of all existing metal windows, glass block, window blinds, sealant, flashings and related construction, including all shoring and protection of building areas, systems and landscape areas; removing and replacing lathe and plaster, as shown; removing, and reinstalling new and existing exterior security window grating, signs, light fixtures and related items; furnishings and installing new wood blocking, shims and nailers; furnishing and installing new sheet metal flashings, cladding, trim and accessories; furnishing and installing new thermally broken, aluminum factory glazed window units; furnishing and installing joint sealings and backer materials; furnishing and installing new window shades; repairing dents in exterior metal wall panels; painting existing exterior metal panels, column covers, lintels, trim and related items; and all associated work as required within the contents of the project specifications.

General Bids will be received until 1:00 PM local time on Thursday, March 16, 2000 in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

Filed Sub-Bids for the trades listed below will be received until 1:00 PM on Wednesday, March 8, 2000 at the above address and publicly opened at that time.

Mailed Bids should be sent to the Department of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 and received before the date and time specified above, for receipt of general bids.

SUB-TRADES:

- 07900: Joint Sealants
- 09900: Painting

All work shall be performed in accordance with the 780 CMR Massachusetts State Building Code, the Mass State Plumbing Code, the Electrical Code, all as last revised, and all other industry standards and regulations, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A refundable deposit of $25.00 (certified check or money order) is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:30 AM to 3:30 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Contracts/Bidding Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, February 23, 2000.

A pre-bid conference will be held on March 3, 2000 at 10:00 am in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street. Attendance at this pre-bid conference is mandatory for parties submitting bids.

General bids and sub-bids shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond from a surety company acceptable to the City. The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 149, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All prospective bidders must be certified by the Division of Asset Management (formerly the Division of Capital Planning & Operations [DCPO]) in the Metal Windows category. The bid will only be valid when accompanied by a Certificate of Eligibility issued by the DCPO, showing that the Bidder has been approved to bid on projects of the size and nature of that advertised, and an update statement summarizing the Bidder's record for the period between the latest certification and the date the Bidder submits a Bid for this Project.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Business Enterprise, Women Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents, and Apprenticeship Training must be complied with.

Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted. The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

Foreclosure Puts Shipyard's Future High In The Air

make. There will be no delays. MARAD will move quickly to sell those assets."

Sheets pointed to the demolition of old buildings and the construction of new steel buildings, the $1.3 million new electrical service, the asbestos removal, and the capping of hazardous materials at the site with four to five feet of dirt. "It now has a substantial amount of value," Sheets said. "We knew that if shipyard didn't work out, the property would still be developable. For the first time, we now know that in a very short time, possibly within the next year, the shipyard will be back on the tax rolls."

The mayor said that shipbuilding would still be the first and best use for the site, adding that MARAD could even bring MHI back into the picture if they were to obtain the proper financing.

Raymond echoed some of the mayor's sentiments concerning the present state of the yard and its future as a developable property. "I was disappointed to hear the news (of the foreclosure)," Raymond said. "But I remain hopeful that the federal government will find a suitable buyer for the project and return shipbuilding to Quincy Point. If that fails, we are still in a better position than we were three or four years ago."

In addition to the shipyard renovations, Raymond said, $4 to $6 million in state funds are being used to resurface roadways, replace water mains, improve sidewalks, and plant trees in the area surrounding the shipyard.

"The highest and best use of this land is shipbuilding," Raymond said, but added that he would be willing to work with all interested parties "to make sure the yard is productive as early as possible."

President Harold does not dispute the improvements made to the yard or the neighboring community, but argues that really isn't the point. "Yes (there were improvements), but at what cost, on what timeline?" Harold asked. "We could have cleaned up the shipyard in three months for $5-7 million."

"What we wanted was the creation of manufacturing jobs and taxes and we didn't get it. That's the bottom line. It's pretty hard to put a positive spin on this."

Harold, who has been questioning the financing of the project for nearly four years, said this outcome was not a surprise to him or anyone in the business community. "I had two resources available to me, a telephone and common sense, and I used both of them," Harold said.

At last week's council meeting Harold introduced briefly his plan for the city to form an Economic and Industrial Corporation (EDIC). The EDIC, Harold said, would be a local redevelopment authority which could negotiate with the federal government for control of the yard.

Harold said the three main benefits of the EDIC would be that, unlike the public/private partnership Quincy 2000 in its current state, the EDIC could float revenue bonds, be more accountable to the council, and more easily include all parties, including Braintree, on which 40 acres of the shipyard is located.

"It's the issue of transparency," Harold said. "One reason that we got in this situation in the first place was because everything was such a secret."

Sheets disagreed with Harold but said he was willing to discuss the issue this week. "The shipyard is owned by MARAD," Sheets said. "There's nothing for Quincy 2000 or an EDIC to control. They're not going to give away ownership of the property and machinery."

And if there were a role to play, Sheets said, Quincy 2000 would be the logical choice. Its board, he said, contains some of the city's most experienced politicians and businessmen and already has a director, office space, and a budget.

Forming a separate EDIC, Sheets said, would require time, money, and, in many ways, be redundant.

Voter Turnout Only 32 Percent

McCain, Gore Winners Here

THIS IS THE $2 million Brookline home of Greek developer Sotirios Emmanouil which the City Council voted to place a lien on Monday night in an attempt to recoup some of the $7.8 million his company owes the city in his failed venture to reopen the Fore River Shipyard. The stately house is located at 130 Goddard Ave.

Vote To Place Lien On Emmanouil's Home Council In Explosive Session Over Shipyard

BY CRAIG SALTERS

Emotions ran high at Monday night's City Council meeting as councillors argued over the embattled Fore River Shipyard.

The honesty of Sotirios Emmanouil, owner of Massachusetts Heavy Industries (MHI), was called into question as were the merits of the entire project.

At one point Councillor Frank McCauley went so far as to call Emmanouil "a modern day Pontius Pilate" for his handling of the shipyard crisis, which saw the U.S. Maritime Administration (MARAD) pay off a $55 million dollar loan to Fleet Bank and take control of the shipyard Feb. 25.

The drama increased as Council President Paul Harold, a longtime critic of the shipyard deal, cited Mayor James Sheets, the six-term mayor of Quincy, for "the poorest judgment that many of us have seen in years and possibly for years to come."

Harold's comments drew a spirited defense from John Keenan, the mayor's executive secretary, as well as others.

Later in the evening the council passed a resolution calling on the city solicitor to place a lien on a $2.1 million property at 130 Goddard Ave. in Brookline, which is owned by Marine Industrial Services, a subsidiary of MHI. The property, which has a previous lien from Fleet Bank, is the local home of Sotirios Emmanouil.

Mayor Sheets, who spoke to The Sun Tuesday, remained steadfast in support of both Emmanouil and his own decision to advocate for the shipyard. Said the mayor:

"First of all, those comments (concerning Emmanouil) are not true. The confidence I have and still have in Sotirios Emmanouil is no different than that held by Senator Kennedy, Senator Kerry, and Governor Cellucci who have all worked with him every step of the way."

Concerning his own judgment, Sheets replied, "I'm very pleased to allow the voters of this city to make that judgment and I would make the same decisions all over again. The president of the United States made $55 million available to modernize the shipyard and Senator Kennedy, Senator Kerry, Congressman Delahunt, and the governor all felt an obligation to make that work.

"There was no other option. If we didn't move to modernize the shipyard, it

Arizona Senator John McCain and Vice President Al Gore rolled to easy victories here in this corner of Super Tuesday's Presidential Primaries.

McCain, attracting unenrolled and Democrat voters thumped Texas Governor George W. Bush 65.81 percent to 29.86 percent. The vote was 3,870 to 1,756.

Alan Keyes was a distant third with 171 votes for 2.91 percent.

Gore topped former Senator Bill Bradley 58.21 percent to 34.56 percent. Their vote count was 5,925 to 3,518.

Lyndon H. LaRouche, Jr. trailed almost out of sight with only 47 votes for a .46 percent.

The Quincy vote was in step with Massachusetts in both the Republican and Democrat primaries as McCain and Gore swept the state.

The Quincy turnout was a fraction under 32 percent of the city's 51,775 registered voters, considerably smaller than the 52-54 percent predicted.

Of the 16,213 ballots cast, 10,315 or 63.62 percent were Democratic. The Three Republican candidates who had dropped out of the race were still listed on the ballot and picked up a few votes.

Steve Forbes collected 20, Gary Bauer 14, and Orrin Hatch 4.

There were 20 "no preference" votes, 26 write-ins and 17 blanks.

There were 322 "no preference" votes on the Democratic ballot, 366 write-in and 137 blanks.

Roberts of Quincy carried the city in the Norfolk-Plymouth District races for Republican state committeeman and state committeeman.

McAuliffe, a former Quincy resident, topped Alexander Mann of Holbrook 74.92 percent to 24.44 percent. The vote was 3,166 to 1,033.

Roberts won Quincy over Geradine Harold Sharkey 59.89 percent to 39.51 percent. The vote was 2,497 to 1,647. Sharkey is a Quincy resident.

Park Dept. Proposal To Maintain School Grounds Before Council

Park Department Executive Director Tom Koch will appear before the City Council's Park and Recreation Committee Monday, March 13, at 7 p.m. in the City Council chamber to discuss a proposal to have the park department take over the maintenance of the city's 20 public school grounds.

Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott presented a resolution last month requesting the Park Department to develop a comprehensive management plan with regard to the maintenance and beautification of the city's schools.

"I believe that our neighborhood schools are the foundation of pride for our communities. Unfortunately, with the growing needs of the school facilities, the School Department Maintenance Division must focus its efforts on larger priorities within the buildings themselves," McDermott said.

McDermott has served as chairman of the City Council's Park and Recreation Committee for four years and has worked closely with the Park Department in other neighborhood beautification efforts. "The expertise of the Park Department professionals would be a valuable asset for our city's school ground maintenance program."

"We want to make every effort to outreach to school principals, PTO representatives, parents, and students to support this plan," said McDermott. Koch highlights the need for better communication regarding the needs of school ground maintenance.

"A level of frustration can occur when a call is bounced from one agency to another with the explanation that the property is under another agency's jurisdiction. A 'buck stops here' approach would make the entire process easier and more user-friendly for the general public," said Koch.

Although the incorporation of the school grounds into the Park Department's responsibilities is a large undertaking, Koch said he believes immediate improvements can be made as early as this spring.

For more information, call the Park Department at 376-1251.

McCauley Calls For HOPE VI Cost Analysis

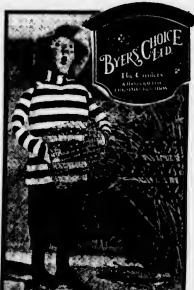

The City Council passed a resolve Monday night requesting Jack Mather, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, to provide a cost analysis on the QHA's current HOPE VI project.

Councillor Frank McCauley, who introduced the resolve, requested the "cost analysis of all funds needed from all sources to complete the proposed redevelopment project in Germantown."

The city is seeking the HOPE VI grant to transform Germantown's public housing into a mixed-use development.

The project requires city, state, federal, and private participation.

Firefighters Want Training, New Gear For Twin Rivers

By CRAIG SALTERS

"Give us the tools and we'll do the job," was the message of William Arienti, president of Local 792 of the Quincy Firefighters Union at Monday night's meeting of the Public Safety Committee of the city council.

The "job" Arienti referred to was dealing with the unique safety hazards posed by Twin Rivers Technologies, a fatty-acid processor located at the former Procter & Gamble site in Quincy Point.

The "tools" most often mentioned by Arienti and others were: detailed knowledge of the dangers of the plant; a master plan for dealing with incidents at Twin Rivers based on that knowledge; a second set of gear for Quincy firefighters; and adequate washers and dryers at fire stations to clean gear which might be "contaminated" by the chemicals from Twin Rivers or other sites across the city.

Arienti also called for the city to hire a Fire Protection Engineer.

QFD Chief Thomas Gorman said he thought a Fire Protection Engineer and new gear were good ideas and said he had been working closely with Twin Rivers and its own safety consultant, Professor Robert Zalosh of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Chief Gorman estimated the cost of new gear at $250,000.

Deputy Chief Paul Cuddy, Deputy Chief Paul O'Connell, Capt. Francis Sullivan, and Paul Angelico, senior vice president of Twin Rivers, also spoke at the meeting, called by Ward 1 Councillor and Public Safety Committee Chairman Gregory Hanley to discuss safety issues at the plant.

The meeting, which was carried over to a later date, was prompted by a letter to Chief Gorman Jan. 25 from the Quincy Firefighters Association detailing fears about handling incidents at Twin Rivers.

The plant, which uses many chemicals and natural oils at very high temperatures, has had several incidents in the past two years, including a fire which resulted in the death of 32-year old worker Joseph Conti last March.

Although several speakers -- including Chief Gorman, Deputy Chief Cuddy, and Arienti himself -- emphasized the cooperation and improvements made on the part of Twin Rivers, many said the processing plant still made firefighters uncertain.

"It's the not knowing," said Deputy Chief O'Connell, who was himself injured during a recent call to Twin Rivers. "It's the natural instinct of a firefighter to want to go in and fight the fire, but Twin Rivers is a very hazardous situation. A lot goes on in an incident commander's head as to whether sending his men is right or wrong."

O'Connell spoke of instances where firefighters went back on duty, and even back into fires, with gear considered contaminated by various chemicals.

Deputy Chief Cuddy made the distinction between "reasonable" and "unreasonable" risk, defining unreasonable risks as "anything in addition that could be done but is not being done." Cuddy called for written policies and Standard Operating Procedures for Twin Rivers and extensive training for all types of incidents.

Capt. Sullivan, who is in charge of training Quincy firefighters, said the first step in devising a plan for Twin Rivers was to find out exactly what the dangers were. "We first need to identify the issues with significant engineering assistance," Sullivan said. "Then make a plan to deal with those hazards."

"We're not fully prepared to fight a fire or an incident in that complex," Sullivan added.

Angelico spoke last and addressed both the council and the audience, saying that safety was a top priority at Twin Rivers but admitting that there was still more work to be done. He said that many of the Fire Fighters Association's "valid suggestions" were implemented before the letter had even been written.

Angelico said that $1.2 million had been spent on plant safety in the past 12 months, including the hiring of safety personnel. He also said that 12 of the 16 recommendations made by Professor Zalosh in a draft of his recommendations had been implemented or were in the process of being implemented.

Angelico said he expects Professor Zalosh's final report within the next two weeks.

ELECTION DAY WAS also a good day to make residents aware of another civic duty: to respond to the 2000 U.S. Census. School Building Needs March 13 Meeting Topic

A public meeting to discuss the recommendations of the School Building Needs Task Force will be held Monday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. at the Sterling Middle School, 444 Granite St.

According to David Colton, commissioner of the DPW, the task force's current plan is for the new Quincy High School to open in September of 2004.

The existing QHS would then be renovated in time to become the new Central Middle School by September of 2006.

Students at Sterling Middle School would then attend the old Central Middle School while renovations took place at Sterling.

The renovated Sterling would open in September of 2007, at which point the old Central Middle School would be shut down and all renovations complete.

All are invited to attend the public meeting.

The Future Of Education Reform

(Special To The Quincy Sun)

By SEN TED KENNEDY

This year, Quincy will receive $240,000 in federal aid to add technology to the classroom and $228,000 to hire additional teachers and reduce class size in elementary schools.

The city will also receive over $2.130.000 in funds to enable more children to attend preschool and learn to read earlier. This aid will have a significant impact on the education of thousands of children across the city. Unfortunately, some in Congress are seeking to dismantle these worthwhile programs and substitute block grants in their place.

Last week, the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee began debate on the reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act. That Act is the cornerstone of federal education policy and funding for schools across the nation. The pending reauthorization is an excellent opportunity for Congress to shape the future of education in America and achieve the promise of true education reform.

Together with Democratic committee members, I will fight to reduce the class size, expand training and mentoring programs to at-

Shipyard Dream A Nightmare?

Reopening and reviving the Fore River shipyard was a nice dream that now looks more like a nightmare instead.

A multi-million dollar one in this case.

It all sounded good in the beginning.

Get the yard -- shut down for 14 years -- up and running again. Build tankers. Create 1,000 jobs. Put Quincy back on the shipbuilding map where it once stood out as one of the top shipyards in the world.

A nice dream -- one everyone wanted to see come true.

But it seems there was an early warning sign that it wouldn't.

Then a funny thing apparently happened: the warning disappeared.

Greek developer Sotirios Emmanouil was around convincing a lot of people -- including local, state and federal officials -- that if anyone could get the shipyard humming again, he was the man.

Get him the money and he would do it.

They got him the money -- over $100 million -- in loans, grants and guarantees. Including $7.8 million from the city of Quincy which the city borrowed to lend to him and now must pay back.

Emmanouil did do modernization at the yard but never got it up and running.

The Maritime Administration which had guaranteed a $55 million loan tossed his company, Massachusetts Heavy Industries, out of the yard last month for defaulting on payments on that loan.

Despite all the optimism, promises and political photo-ops at the shipyard no one got to crack a bottle of champagne against the bow of a single tanker.

Not too surprising, it would seem, considering that early warning as reported last week in a "It's Your Money" segment on ABC World News with Peter Jennings.

A partial transcript of that segment follows.

"The plan (to reopen the shipyard) sounded good, but would it work? By law, before it can guarantee a loan, the Maritime Administration, MARAD, is required to answer this key question:

"Would it be economically feasible to have an operating shipyard?" asked the Deputy MARAD Inspector General Raymond DeCarli. And the conclusion they reached was: "It would not be," says DeCarli.

"But that did not stop Congress.

"They, ah, removed the economic criteria from the loan decision process," explains DeCarli. "They just took it out."

By taking it out, it exempted the Quincy shipyard from the criteria of being an economically feasible venture, making it a gamble.

"It couldn't measure up," says Senator John Kerry, who appears in the segment. "I mean it just wasn't rational at that point to measure it that way, you had to measure it by how many jobs you could create--if it was working."

If it was working. But, as it turned out, it wasn't.

Emmanouil appears in the segment in an interview in Greece sounding like reopening the shipyard really wasn't his idea. Or, now, his problem.

"I didn't decide to revitalize the shipyard," he says, "it was the United States government who decided to revitalize the shipyard."

The government did say it was making loan guarantees available for reviving shipyards.

But it was Emmanouil who said he could and would bring the Quincy yard back to life.

He would modernize the facility: new buildings, new equipment with robotics to build double hulled tankers. He had six contracts in his pocket, he said.

He did complete about 80 percent of the modernization work, but none of those contracts he said he had, ever became ships.

And even if they had become ships, would the Quincy yard have survived?

A number of shipyards in the country have closed. It's a tough business these days with keen competition from South Korea, Japan and now China where ships can be built cheaper.

The Maritime Administration, despite the $55 million bad loan to MHI, still would like to see shipbuilding there, according to Deputy Administrator John Graykowski.

But MARAD didn't lose the $55 million. The taxpayers did.

And right now, Quincy is out the $7.8 million it loaned to MHI plus the interest on it. Unless the money is somehow miraculously quickly recouped, it means tapping funds from other programs. Which would reduce those programs.

City Council President Paul Harold, who has been the most outspoken critic of both Emmanouil and the shipyard project isn't crowing "I told you so." But probably could.

Instead, he proposed the creation of a separate local redevelopment authority to give Quincy a voice in the fate of the shipyard and to look into the possible mixed-use of the 135-acre facility.

His idea got shot down by council colleagues Monday night in favor of the existing Quincy 2000 city-private sector partnership.

Harold thinks if Quincy 2000 is the agency to be involved it should undergo some reorganizing to widen its present scope.

Meanwhile, Mayor James Sheets who has been a staunch supporter of Emmanouil, hasn't given up on him. He would like to hear if he has any new ideas that might rescue the shipyard project.

Emmanouil, who has spent more time in Greece than in Quincy for some months, now, reportedly was coming back last Saturday to meet with officials. As of Tuesday, they were still waiting.

Emmanouil financially has had more lives than a cat since first arriving in town with his plan to restore and reopen the shipyard.

If he does have any new ideas, they are unlikely to get very far. Graykowski, the deputy MARAD administrator, is reported saying that it has lost confidence in Emmanouil.

A mix-use of this valuable waterfront property with its deep channel and railroad links might be a more realistic dream than shipbuilding. Ship repair work and residences could be in the mix.

Emmanouil had his chance at shipbuilding but didn't make it.

Maybe someone else can -- at something else.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1929 postcard of the banking hall in the old Granite Trust Company building in Quincy Center. This view is looking from the vault toward the main entrance. After passing through several ownership's and now owned by Fleet Boston the classic art deco features of the hall remain well preserved. Large pictures of local historic places have been hung in the wall panels and the teller cages on the right have been replaced with small open offices. But, even to regular visitors, the grandeur of the hall remains compelling. This postcard is one of a series published when the bank was built.

Has Concerns Over New Germantown Public Housing

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

According to a front-page story in The Quincy Sun (Feb. 17), the Quincy Housing Authority is still pushing for one of those HOPE VI grants to rebuild the Germantown public housing development, but as Chester A. Riley from "The Life of Riley" fifties sitcom often said, "What a revolting development this is."

Mayor Sheets will lead a Quincy delegation to Atlanta on a mission to change the face of Germantown. The delegation goes south in their quest for $35 million in federal funds. Ward 1 Councilor Greg Hanley said the goal of the HOPE grant is to create a mixed use community of housing. It won't be only for the poor or near-poor any longer.

Hanley, who chairs the City Council's Housing Committee, supports the HOPE grant quest saying, "This program is near and dear to my heart. I lived in public housing for 13 years and I know the good and the bad of it. It's unique that, as a public official, I can talk the talk and walk the walk."

I wish I had as much faith in this HOPE grant hope for the future of public housing. I too lived for many years in public housing provided by the Boston Housing Authority. Recently, in Boston, they rebuilt the face of Orchard Park. That project is now called Orchard Gardens. New buildings, different look. But regardless of its new name and new look, it is still a public housing project to me.

The goal of ending the clustering of the poor in isolated housing with invisible walls separating it from the outside world is a worthy goal. I remember the stigma attached to living in the projects. However, the real success of public housing projects isn't in rebuilding them for a new millennium but ending them once and for all. Projects, no matter how nice they look, are still, I believe, a sign of failure by society.

The Quincy Housing Authority is spending big bucks to write the grant and guide it through government channels. Life in post-HOPE VI Germantown sounds great. A public housing community in which residents can control their destinies but, like the folks in Missouri, I'll believe it when I see it.

Public housing should always be considered housing of the last resort. Projects were never meant to be intergenerational. People shouldn't be lining up to get applications to get in. I do not look back with fondness at those gone by days. My family lived there out of necessity because affordable housing was and still is so limited and it was the only choice my parents had.

Will the new Germantown still be that face of dependency which hurts people so silently? Turning Germantown into mixed use. Adding market-rate units. It all might actually complicate the affordable housing shortage it is meant to solve.

Just as I never liked the idea of projects creating urban ghettos for the poor, neither do I place much value in creating high-priced apartments to attract middle-class folks.

Rather than seeking cure-alls like HOPE grants, it is time for QHA to create an environment that helps people escape the projects while at the same time empowering people.

Germantown neither before or after HOPE VI grants shouldn't be a life sentence. The HOPE grant program could be renamed the HOPE-LESS program because even if it worked, residents still lose in the long haul.

I am glad that Greg Hanley is going to Atlanta. He knows what public housing is like because he lived it like me. I hope his optimism is right. I won't mind being wrong if the HOPE grant actually works. But as I said, when it comes to public housing, I'm from Missouri. You have to show me.

The 10 classroom, t-shaped building would include an auditorium and an administrative wing.

SQUANTUM PILOT KILLED

A Navy reserve pilot in a routine training flight was killed when his Corsair fighter plane crashed into Dorchester Bay, only 100 yards off the Squantum Naval Air station.

Squantum grocery store operator Norman DesChamplain heard the base alarm, but said, "All we could see was the tail of the plane sticking out of the water. But we couldn't tell whether it was a big or small plane."

CURTIN NAMED HEAD OF FIRE PROTECTION

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman named Captain William Curtin head of the fire protection bureau, replacing Captain Thomas Murphy who had recently died.

Curtin was a 31-year member of the department. He served at various stations throughout the city, having recently been in charge of Engine Two at Atlantic. He was president of the Quincy Fire Fighters Association (AFL).

A veteran of World War II, the West Quincy resident was also a master plumber. He was the brother of Quincy mill inspector John Curtin, police patrolman David Curtin and former city councillor Laurence Curtin.

QUINCY-ISMS

City Councilor Amelio Della Chiesa announced a one-day paper drive in South Quincy to raise money for the South Quincy War Memorial. Ten thousand dollars was raised, with the need for an additional $25,000. . . At Quincy City Hospital, a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gacicia of Woodward Ave., a son to Mr. and Mrs. Richard Walter of Delano Ave. . . Burgin-Platner Insurance moved from the Adams Building to the Central Building. Mayor Thomas Burgin was president of the company that he started in 1925 when he bought out Herbert Whitman. . . Robert Malvesti was on the safety patrol at the Willard School. . . The city council, at the urging of Edna Austin, appropriated $5,500 for new street signs. . . George "Porgy" McDonald died at age 58. He was the former Ward 4 councillor and a charter member of the Morrisette Legion Post. . . The Chester Campbell Men's Club at Wollaston Congregational Church celebrated its 43rd anniversary. It was named for the former mayor and former Governor's Councillor. . . Councilors David Crowley and Carl Anderson voted against the hospital budget to register their opposition to the pay raise given to medical director Dr. Ensio Ronka. . . Proposed Radio Tower Meeting At Fenno House

A community meeting on Sprint's proposed flagpole/radio tower at 41 Weston Ave. will be held Thursday, March 9, at 7 p.m. at the Fenno House, 540 Hancock St.

The issue goes before the Zoning Board Tuesday, March 14.

Sprint Spectrum is seeking a special permit to install an 80 foot flagpole which will contain a GPS antenna mounted inside the flagpole.

Councillor Timothy Cahill said that residents are concerned with how the antenna will affect their neighborhood. "The major concern is safety," Cahill said. "The neighbors are concerned and they want some information from Sprint as to just what will be put up there."

Another issue, Cahill said, is the tower's proximity to the Wollaston Child Care Center, currently under construction.

Cahill said he cannot attend the meeting himself due to a previous commitment but plans to attend the hearing of the Zoning Board.

McCauley Resolve Seeks Open Space Listings

The City Council Monday night passed a resolve asking the Open Space Committee to prepare and submit its list of open parcels to the council "at its earliest convenience."

The Open Space Committee is scheduled to submit its list of prospective land purchases to Mayor Sheets no later than June 1 as part of the mayor's open space initiative.

Funds to buy those properties will come out of a proposed motel/hotel tax which is currently before the council.

Councillor Frank McCauley, who sponsored the measure, said he wanted the council to have as much information as possible "so that we can vote more intelligently on the percentages" involved in the motel/hotel tax.

Currently, 90 percent of motel/hotel tax funds would go towards the purchase of open space, with 10 percent set aside for tourism.

Phyllis Godwin Leads YMCA's Annual Support Campaign

The South Shore YMCA announces Phyllis Godwin, chairman and CEO of Granite City Electric Supply Co., will lead the South Shore YMCA's Annual Support Campaign.

The Y's eight-week campaign recently kicked-off at the Neighborhood Club and concludes April 13 at the victory celebration. During the campaign, volunteers from the community will raise funds for the YMCA.

This year's goal is to raise $300,000 to help those who cannot afford to pay the full fees for programs and memberships. Financial assistance ensures that no one who needs or wants services is turned away. The YMCA seeks to serve all people, regardless of age, gender, race, religion, or economic circumstances.

"The Annual Support Campaign allows us to reach out to children in need," Godwin said. "The campaign helps the Y provide a wide range of programs and activities for families who cannot afford the cost of programs. These include childcare, after-school activities, youth sports, swimming lessons, and programs especially for young adults."

Godwin is a strong supporter of the Y and has served on its Board of Directors since 1990. She is also involved in the community as a director and former chairman of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, founder of the Women's Business Connection, former director of the South Shore Conservatory of Music, director of Electric Institute of New England, Quincy 2000, and Patriots Girl Scout Council.

Bank Of Canton Donates Computer To Marshall School

The Quincy Banking Center office of the Bank of Canton has donated an Apple I-Mac computer to the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School in Quincy Point.

As a part of its continuing "We're With You" commitment to community service, The Bank of Canton gave over $1,800 for the purchase.

The donated computer will "update our technology and software needs and match up with the computers we presently have," said Marshall School Principal Philip J. Connolly.

The Bank maintains an ongoing "Business Partner" relationship with the Clifford H. Marshall Elementary School.

Michelle Higgins, manager of the Quincy branch office, said the contribution illustrates the values the bank has had since its inception in 1835. "We've been a community bank for 165 years," she said, "and we believe strongly in investing for the future of our neighbors."

The bank has branch offices in Canton and Quincy and another soon to open in Randolph.

D'Amico Establishes 'E-Mail Bank'

Councillor Michael D'Amico announces that his "e-mail bank" initiative to boost constituent services is well underway.

D'Amico's e-mail address is mdamico@ci.quincy.ma.us.

Anyone interested in receiving an online meeting notice and newsletter pertinent to South and West Quincy should send his or her e-mail address to the councillor.

"Let's work together to make this a cost effective means of building a strong voice in Ward 4," said D'Amico.

Entry Deadline April 7 Evergreen Program Marks 10th Year With Drawing For Prizes

The Quincy Evergreen Program is celebrating its 10th year by holding a drawing for those who send photos of their trees, reports Leo Kelly, chairman of the Evergreen Program.

The drawing will be held Saturday, April 15, at 2 p.m. at the New City Hall Atrium. Cash prizes of $100, $200, and $300 will be awarded as well as many surprise gifts.

"First of all, we want to celebrate the program," said Kelly, who along with Mayor Sheets and 10-year sponsor Jay Cashman form the Quincy Evergreen Program Committee. "Secondly, we want to get a handle on where the trees are and how the program is progressing."

"We don't care about the biggest or the highest tree. Anyone who's participated in the program is eligible to enter their name in the drawing."

To be entered in the drawing, residents should send a snapshot of themselves with their trees and include name, address, and phone number on the back of the photo.

1999 program participants who have yet to receive trees can send a postcard with name, address, and phone number.

Send pictures or postcards to: Quincy Evergreen Program, c/o Mayor James Sheets, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy 02169.

Pictures or postcards must be received by April 7 and will become property of the Evergreen Program Archive.

The Evergreen Program allows Quincy residents to recycle their old Christmas trees while receiving brand new trees to plant around the city. The old trees are turned into valuable mulch while the new trees, estimated at close to 19,000, help clean the air.

Kelly was quick to thank Jay Cashman for his commitment to both the program and to the city in general. He also thanked Mayor Sheets for allowing the participation of various city departments. "The Parks Department, The School Department, the DPW, and Data Processing have all been extremely helpful over the years in this important recycling and environmental program," Kelly said.

Posters on the drawing will be posted in store windows this week.

For more information, call the Park Department at 376-1251.

Beechwood 'Hungry Ones' Fundraiser April 5

The Beechwood Community Life Center's 7th annual "Hungry Ones" dinner/auction fundraiser is scheduled for April 5, reports Sharron Beals, executive director of the center.

Proceeds will benefit the center's senior services.

The center recently held a "kick-off breakfast" to plan and organize the event. "We are most appreciative of the commitment and energy of our Development Committee chaired by Don Uvanitte," said Beals. "We are enthused and optimistic about 'Hungry Ones' 2000."

Ron Zooleck, executive director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, will emcee the annual fundraiser. Dan Flynn will serve as auctioneer.

The "Hungry Ones" fundraiser launches Beechwood's 2000 fundraising and development efforts. "Our expansion needs are dependent upon the successful efforts and support of many community leaders," said Beals.

Only 150 tickets will be

Halfway Point For Quarry Hills Project

David Colton, commissioner of the DPW, reported to the City Council Monday night that the Quarry Hills Project was over halfway complete and would be finished by 2002.

With the help of a fifteen foot scale model, Colton explained to councillors how three former solid-waste quarry landfills in West Quincy and Milton were being transformed into a 27-hole public golf course complete with soccer and baseball fields for residents.

"This is the biggest Public Works project in the city, perhaps in its history," said Colton of the $85 million project.

Money for the project, Colton said, comes from tipping fees paid by the Big Dig for dumping its fill in the quarries. So far over eight million tons of fill have been dumped in the quarries with an average tipping fee, Colton said, of $7.27 per ton.

According to Colton, $70 million of revenue has already been generated with $15 million expected in the next two years.

Councillor Michael D'Amico, whose ward the project is in, praised Colton for running such a large project "with almost no complaints in the ward."

Atty. Thomas Williams New President SSEDC

THOMAS WILLIAMS

Atty. Thomas F. Williams of Quincy will be installed tonight (Thursday) at 5 p.m. as the incoming President of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

Working with local private sector lenders, the South Shore Economic Development Corporation (SSEDC), an affiliate of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, fosters the growth of healthy small businesses throughout Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

"I am honored to have been selected to head up this backbone of any business community, and through the outstanding work of the SSEDC, the South Shore remains today a thriving and viable economic region."

Williams, a resident of Norwell, has practiced law in Quincy for the past 27 years, with an emphasis on real estate conveyancing, business law and estate planning. His office is located at 21 McGrath Highway in Quincy.

For more information, contact Kimberly Gomer at the Chamber of Commerce at 786-1536.

The ABC Report On The Fore River Shipyard

(Following is a transcript of the report on the Fore River Shipyard in a "It's Your Money" segment on ABC World News With Peter Jennings March 1.)

In 1986, after 101 years, Quincy, Massachusetts' shipyard shut down, costing 4,000 people their jobs.

For nearly a decade, the yard lay dormant. Then, just before the 1996 election, there was a dramatic announcement:

"We are going to build ships again in Massachusetts," said Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., "and at the Quincy shipyards specifically."

The federal government had just agreed to guarantee a $55 million loan to a Greek developer named Sotirios Emmanouil. He promised to reopen the yard.

Everybody in both parties took credit.

"I'm not sure that I would have been able to be as successful on the Quincy yard if I wasn't running for Senate," says former Massachusetts Gov., William Weld, a Republican, in 1996.

But Is It Economically Feasible?

The plan sounded good, but would it work? By law, before it can guarantee a loan, the Maritime Administration, MARAD, is required to answer this key question:

See Sunbeams

"Would it be economically feasible to have an operating shipyard?" asked the Deputy MARAD Inspector General Raymond Decarli. And the conclusion that they reached was: "It would not be," says Decarli.

But that did not stop Congress.

"They ah, removed the economic criteria from the loan decision process," explains Decarli. They "just took it out."

"It couldn't measure up," says Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass. "I mean it, it just wasn't rational at that point to measure it that way, you had to measure it by how many jobs you could create — if it was working. You had to make suppositions about what would happen if the contracts you had on the table were eventually being worked on."

It Still Failed

But in never did work: promised contracts never came through; renovations were never finished; the developer defaulted on the loan. Today, back in Greece, he (Emmanouil) said now it's Washington's problem.

"I didn't decide to revitalize the shipyard," insists Emmanouil, "it was the United States government who decided to revitalize the shipyard."

"Who knows?" says Kerry. "Maybe it'll wind up being extraordinary waterfront condominiums of value well beyond holdings. It is too premature to make a judgment about any kind of loss."

"So taxpayers have not lost money yet," adds Kerry, "nor do I think they will because of the value of all the work done, the value of the shipyard, and ah, hopefully there are many other uses that this can be put to. This is way to premature."

Is it too soon or too late? Last week, the government paid off the bank, took over the yard and must now find a way to get the money back. It's your money.

A 55TH ANNIVERSARY tribute to Quincy Congressional Medal of Honor recipient Marine Pfc. William R. Caddy who was killed in action at Iwo Jima in World War II was held Sunday by the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League, named in his honor. The Congressional Medal was awarded posthumously. Flexible Mortgages Offset Impact Of Rising Interest Rates

By CAROL BULMAN
President

Conway Financial Services
The real estate market doesn't appear to be daunted by an increase in mortgage rates. People are still motiivated to purchase a home because they feel good about the economy and confident about their own financial situation.

Although rates have increased recently, there are mortgage opportunities available today that were previously underutilized or unavailable.

1. Automated Underwriting Systems (AUS). Loans that will be sold by a lender to one of the secondary market giants (Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac) are now approved (or "underwritten") by an automated underwriting system.

A customer's profile is entered into a computer system that weighs the risk and benefits of his or her financial situation. The software will then determine, based on years of loan-servicing data, whether this person will likely stay current on their loan payments.

The strict guidelines that included adherence to certain income and debt ratios and credit profiles are gone. Automated underwriting allows millions of people who previously could not qualify for a loan to obtain financing.

If you haven't looked into this opportunity, do so. You may be very surprised at the results.

2. Hybrid loans. Those disappointed by a half-point increase in interest rates can take advantage of the fixed/adjustable rate hybrid loan. This mortgage combines a fixed rate for a specified period of time (three, five, seven or 10 years), with an automatic conversion to a one-year adjustable-rate mortgage for the remainder of the loan.

These programs are attractive because the rate is generally a quarter to a half of a percentage point below the fixed-rate loan. It is perfect for the first-time homebuyer who likely will sell within five years, and for larger loan amounts, which are extremely sensitive to even a slight move in interest rates.

3. Portfolio loans. When the economy is good, people deposit more money in the bank, giving the banks more capital to lend. This type of lending does not involve the secondary market. When a loan is funded by Fannie Mae or Freddie Mac, the mortgage is sold to the secondary market right at the closing table. When a bank uses its own assets to fund a loan, this is called "portfolio lending." Some banks do the majority of their business this way, and will often utilize a mortgage company such as Conway Financial Services to market their products.

The old supply and demand theory is at work here — more money in the bank means more opportunities to lend, and more lending means the rates may be competitive.

4. Other opportunities. The popularity of the "subprime" mortgage, which carries a higher interest rate and requires a large down payment, has prompted the mortgage industry to sharpen its pencils.

Until about a year ago, a person with poor credit had one option — put 10 to 20 percent down and pay a considerably higher interest rate. These programs are still available and are suitable for those with more serious credit histories, but those who fall between the "standard" qualifying and the "subprime" category have two options:

1. A Federal Housing Administration (FHA) fixed-rate loan. These are now pro-

Council In Explosive Session Over Shipyard

would still be the worst brownfield in the Northeast."

The occasion for the council debate was an update on the status of the shipyard by Solicitor Stephen McGrath and Planning Director Richard Meade.

Meade explained to the council that Quincy's $7.8 million dollar commitment to the yard came from its yearly allocation of federal Community Development Block Grants (CDBG) from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

As it stands now, Meade said, HUD would be responsible for paying off the 20-year loan and would deduct the money from Quincy's yearly allocation of block grants.

Meade also said that the city had received a $1 million grant as a loan guarantee and that, after paying $650,000 to Chase Manhattan Bank already, $350,000 was still available to cover payments.

According to Meade, a $453,625 loan payment is due Aug. 1 and a roughly $222,000 loan payment is due Feb. 1 of next year. The average yearly payment will be around $740,000.

Quincy's CDBG allocation for next year, Meade said, is $2,441,000.
